WILD TRIP IN JAPAN FOR RACING AUTOS

Zust and De Dion at Tsuruga After Braving Dangers in the Mountains.

ALMOST OVER A PRECIPICE

Big Rock Alone Saves the Italian Car —Foreigners Now Ready to Sail to Vladivostok.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TSURUGA, Japan, May 12.—After a most remarkable journey across Japan, the Italian Zust and French De Dion cars in the Paris Matin-NEW YORK TIMES race from New York to Paris have arrived at this port. We will take the first steamer to Vladivostok.

We were forced to climb roads of the most primitive character, amid surroundings of the wildest description, over mountains which apparently have no local name, to reach Lake Biwa, and follow its shores toward the Sea of Tsouranga. The Zust and the De Dion have struggled through mountain gorges and over roads which were only wide enough to allow the wheels of the cars to pass between the mountain torrents on one side and the rice fields on the other.

Portions of the road were so extremely rocky, it being the rudest kind of a cartway, that wound through the woods, that night overtook us before we reached the small village where we were to remain until this morning.

Having gone without any food on Monday from 4 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock that afternoon, a small matter of more than thirteen hours, we started to cross a high mountain at 10 o'clock. Birds of prey circled in the air above us, between the rocky sides of the mountains, passing and repassing, searching for their victims. At our feet, concealed by the high grass, was the edge of a precipice.

Ascending and descending, we went ahead in the obscurity of the night. Suddenly we found ourselves on the edge of the gorge. Scarfoglio, Lascaris, and I, who had gone on ahead as scouts, shouted to Autran and Haaga, who were driving, that the cars were on the very edge. Only the quickest turn of the steering gear prevented a disaster. The front wheels of the Zust almost hung over the precipice. We all shouted at the tops of our voices for joy when we realized to the full the danger we had escaped.

The motor of the Zust was running free as the car, held by a large rock from going forward, stood trembling on the brink. Had the rock given way, the car would have fallen over the edge. The De Dion car stopped in time to avoid the danger.

Thankful for our escape, and quite worn out by fatigue after our all-day struggle, we determined to rest for a while on the spot. The darkness made it extremely hazardous to go forward without guides, daring the possibilities of the road, so, like foundered horses, we stretched ourselves on the rocks.

Afterward, making our way over rolling stones, we walked down the ravine and came back with ropes and tackle, over a road which I do not believe any horse could ever have traveled.

Getting our forces together, we pulled the cars from their perilous positions and continued our descent. We noticed that the best method of coming down these mountains consisted in shaking the automobile from ledge to ledge. Daylight came, and we found our way much easier and safer.

The automobiles soon were rolling along a new road cut in the perpendicular rock, 300 meters above the sea level. Our wheels were pulling themselves along between the rocks, but they rolled and rolled until we reached this place. We will be glad to embark for Vladivostok.

INTEREST GROWS IN NEW RACE.

Manufacturers Take Up Project for Double Transcontinental Tour.

Assured of the support of the American Automobile Association, approved by the most prominent members of the Automobile Club of America, warmly commended by the various trade associations, the prospect of the double transcontinental endurance race which THE NEW YORK TIMES has been invited to organize are exceedingly bright. Day by day the desirability of such a contest appeals more and more strongly to those having the interests of the industry and sport at heart, and offers of co-operation come from every side.

A meeting of the American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association was held in this city yesterday. The propect was submitted to the meeting by Secretary Alfred Reeves and referred to the Contest Committee. All the members of the governing body in attendance warmly approved the suggestion, and expressed the opinion that it would be tremendously beneficial to automobiling. To-day the matter will be presented to the Association of Licensed Automobile Manufacturers, and judging by the comments of the individuals who compose the Executive Committee it will receive their entire approbation.

The Importers' Automobile Salon will act upon the idea at their next meeting. Meantime influential members of the organization have expressed themselves as heartily in accord with the purpose of the race, and eager to forward it in any way that can be done. Individuals on every hand speak in the same vein about the enterprise, declaring it will transcend in importance and interest any contest which has been held in the American history of automobiling.

Alfred Reeves, in speaking of the race, said yesterday: "It appeals to me as the best sort of contest that could be arranged. It will be spectacular, and at the same time will take proper account of values. Speed and endurance will both

BESSIE JOHNSON SUES.

Cleveland Mayor's Daughter Asks Divorce from Frederico Mariani.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 12.—Mrs. Elizabeth Flournoy Mariani, better known as Bessie Johnson, daughter of Cleveland's Mayor, to-day filed suit for divorce here against Frederico Mariani of New York, whom she married little more than a year ago. Mariani is accused of abandonment, gross neglect, and extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Mariani asks for an absolute divorce, alimony, and the custody of their baby, Margaret Evelyn, 5 months old. On this point, at least, it is reported Mariani will evince strong opposition, and will utilize such rights as he can, being an Italian subject.

After an acquaintanceship in the East and a courtship in which like sympathies in music and the drama played their part, Mariani, scion of an old, aristocratic Italian family, came to Cleveland and married Bessie Johnson March 23, 1907. The young couple left soon after for New York City.

A few months later Mrs. Mariani returned to make her home with her father. Mariani remained in the East. Sheriff McGorray is directed to mail a copy of the petition and summons to Mariani, care of the Stratford House, 11 East Thirty-second Street, New York.

Mr. Mariani declined last night to discuss his wife's action for divorce.

TWELVE DIE IN TORNADO.

Storm Sweeps Through the Towns of Eastern Nebraska.

OMAHA, Neb., May 12.—Twelve persons are known to have been killed and a score injured by a tornado which swept over the northern part of Sarpy County and the towns of Louisville, Bellevue, and Ritchfield at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The storm, which gained velocity on its way south, started in Omaha about 4:30. At Bellevue the college buildings were damaged to the extent of probably $50,000, and several persons were injured, none fatally.

The storm was the most severe that ever struck Eastern Nebraska. The tower was blown from Park Hall at the college and the building wrecked. Lowry Hall and Rankin Hall were unroofed. The students ran to the basement, and many fatalities were thus probably averted.

The tornado struck Fort Crook, damaging several of the barracks buildings, but nobody was injured.

The heaviest loss of life is reported at Louisville, a junction point on the Missouri Pacific and Burlington roads, in Cass County. The Burlington station was torn to pieces, most of the business houses wrecked, and thirty residences destroyed.

SUES FOR HIS "SPIRIT" HOME

Lawyer White Says Spook Medium Got Him to Buy It for Her.

Believing that a message he received in July, 1902, from his dead wife was a sham, David S. White, a Manhattan lawyer, has instituted legal proceedings in Suffolk County, L. I., to gain possession from Henrietta L. Woodhouse to the title to some property he purchased for her at his dead wife's spirit's behest.

White married Margaret Gaylord and they lived in Hoboken until the wife's death, on May 13, 1901. In the Summer following her death he met the spirit medium, Henrietta L. Woodhouse. The defendant stated to him that she would communicate with his wife or her spirit, so that he might learn her wishes.

He received an alleged message from his wife that it was her wish that he should purchase a place in the country, out on Long Island, and have the title placed in the medium's name.

He purchased the home of Phebe J. Overton, and had the deed made in the name of the defendant.

The medium immediately took possession of the "soul-message" place, and has since occupied it, notwithstanding his recent demands that she vacate the premises, and turn over to him the title now vested in her.

EXPLOSION KILLS 7 MINERS.

Rescuers' Plan to Save Imprisoned Men Proved Fatal.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., May 12.—Seven miners were instantly killed and more than a dozen injured this afternoon in an explosion in the Mount Lookout Colliery of the Temple Coal and Iron Company at Wyoming, near here.

The explosion occurred 600 feet under ground and 1,800 feet from the shaft up which the miners make their exit. John Kosmith, a miner, left a small "gas feeder" burn in the extreme end of a gangway all of last night, which set fire to the timbers and the coal.

Early to-day, when the fire boss started into the mine to make his rounds, he discovered the fire. He at once reported it, and with three men he tried to subdue the flames, but they met with gas while trying to do so. Shortly after a slight explosion occurred, burning the four men but not seriously injuring them.

Another party was formed and the air was let in from another gangway to allow the gas to escape. While doing this a second explosion occurred, killing the seven men. The shock of the explosion was felt on the surface and a rescue party was formed, several of whom were overcome by gas.

$5,000 JOB GOES BEGGING.

Potato Trust Needs a General Manager, but Finds No Applicants.

Now that the Long Island Potato Trust has been completely organized and the vegetables have been planted, with hope of a large crop, the Directors of the organization are having their first trouble.

It is not often that jobs, good or bad, go begging, but the Directors of the trust are having great difficulty in finding some suitable man who is willing to take the job of marketing the product when it is ready.

The office of General Manager, at a salary of $5,000 a year, has been authorized, and also the office of General Inspector at a slightly smaller sum, but there have been no applications for the jobs, and when the last reports to the Directors were made it looked as if there would be trouble before the right men could be obtained.

These places will give all-the-year employment, and the Directors have appointed a committee, consisting of Josiah Layton of Easthampton, W. D. Van Brunt of Soutnampton, Samuel Dickinson of Southold, De Forrest Wells of Riverhead, and Henry R. Talmage of Balting Hollow, to drum up an applicant or two.

WEIGHTS HE LIFTED CRUSH A STRONG MAN

Ton and a Half of Iron Tumbles on Warren L. Travis While He Is Experimenting.

DYING IN THE HOSPITAL

The Man Was Practicing Alone in a Gymnasium for a Special Act He Was Preparing.

A dozen men who heard James Crealey, janitor of the Brooklyn Athletic Club at Bedford Avenue and South Fifth Street, Williamsburg, shouting for help on the sidewalk in front of the club late yesterday afternoon, followed the janitor into the gymnasium. On the floor, groaning beneath a mass of heavy iron dumbbells and bars, which he had been trying to lift on a platform, lay Warren Lincoln Travis, a professional strong man, of 101 South First Street.

Travis was almost senseless, but he begged the men to lift off the weights, and under the direction of Crealey they worked desperately, grabbing up weights from the pile that covered Travis and hurling them behind them. When they finally got Travis liberated he was senseless, and when Dr. Barnes got him to the Williamsburg Hospital he found that the man had internal injuries, many cuts, and bruises, and a dislocation of the left hip. The physician said he would probably die.

After a time, the strong man regained consciousness and told of the accident and the agony he had undergone before help came. He explained that he was practicing a performance to be given this Summer at Brighton Beach. He intended to lift twenty men, standing on a platform, with the strength of his shoulders.

In preparation for the feat, Travis has been practicing in the gymnasium, frequently getting members of the club to stand on the platform while he practiced lifting it. To facilitate his work, the performer arranged his platform on two iron horses, which held it about four feet from the floor and permitted him to stand with bent back beneath it.

Travis reached the gymnasium early yesterday afternoon, and found none of the club members about. In place of the living weight, therefore, Travis decided to load his platform with about 3,000 pounds of iron. He gathered up every dumbbell and iron bar in the gymnasium, and supplemented these with pieces of gymnastic apparatus, until the platform held about the necessary weight. Then he practiced lifting it.

He had repeated the performance once or twice, and was allowing the weighted platform to slip back on to the two horses, when one of them broke under the weight. The shifting of the load on the platform caused the other horse to topple over, and it struck against Travis's knees as it fell. The blow caused the man to fall, and upon him tumbled the 3,000 pounds of iron.

Travis tried to work himself free, but he was pinned and crushed beneath the mass and was unable to move himself. Then he began to shout for help.

Even with the help which Crealey got from the street, it was half an hour after the accident before Travis was carried into a reception room at the club and placed on a lounge. Yesterday was the second time that Travis has been in the Williamsburg Hospital within a year.

Last year he was with Barnum & Bailey's Circus, where he permitted an automobile to drive over his body at each performance. In Canton, Ohio, the driver of the car miscalculated and let the wheels of the vehicle strike Travis in the side instead of upon the hip. Three ribs were broken, and the man was brought to Brooklyn, where he lay for several weeks in the hospital. Travis is only 27 years old.

WOMEN PLAN CANAL CAMPAIGN

Suffragists Will Speak from a Boat Along the Erie.

Canalboat campaigning is one of the features of suffrage work announced at the new suffragist campaign headquarters opened yesterday at 32 Union Square. The headquarters have been established by the Equality League of Self-Supporting Women, which is about to undertake suffrage plans which Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch, the President, outlined.

A canalboat trip will be made by the suffrage workers after the trolley suffrage campaign is over. The workers will travel from Albany throughout the length of the Erie Canal, and will take their Summer vacations in this way. Suffrage banners will wave from the canalboat, and the passengers will speak at towns along the route.

In this city the Assembly districts are to be organized, a woman Captain in every district, to approach the candidates for Senators and Assemblymen to ask if they will present the subject of woman suffrage to the people, and if they are in favor of woman suffrage in municipal affairs. The headquarters will be open daily from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., and there will be a woman's parliament under Helen K. Hoy on the second and fourth Tuesdays at 8 o'clock. The Equality League women are affiliating with the organization.

'MERRY WIDOW' HAT ECLIPSE.

Pastor Requests Young Women to Take Them Off During Services.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., May 12.—Beginning with next Sunday the young women of the First Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Gorrel Quick is pastor, will discard their "Merry Widow" hats when the services begin.

This result was brought out last Sunday evening. The pastor tactfully spoke of the size of the hats this season, and after informing the members of the congregation that he had heard many criticisms of the headgear during the week, mostly to the effect that they hid the preacher entirely from view, he asked that the women who wear the large hats remove them after the hymn preceding the sermon.

The request was received good-naturedly by the congregation. Many of the members had suffered from an obstructed view of the preacher when the "Merry Widow" hats came into vogue, and they commended the pastor's remarks.

BRYAN'S SON-IN-LAW FIGHTS.

Beats Off Italian Model Who Attacks Him in Paris Studio.

PARIS, May 12.—W. H. Leavitt, a son-in-law of William Jennings Bryan, had a dangerous encounter in this city yesterday with an Italian named Cana, who had been sitting for Mr. Leavitt as a model in connection with a picture which the American artist is painting for the City Hall at Denver, Col.

After being released from his engagement Cana returned repeatedly to Mr. Leavitt's studio and demanded extra compensation. This was refused him. The model finally came back armed with a large bludgeon, with which he struck Mr. Leavitt a blow on the head. The artist was knocked down, but he jumped up at once and defended himself with a knife. He slashed at Cana and cut him in the head.

Help came and the Italian was arrested and taken to a hospital. Mr. Leavitt was cut on the head by the blow from the stick, but neither man is in a dangerous condition.

W. H. Leavitt, who is the son of a Newport photographer, went to Lincoln, Neb., in the Summer of 1903 to paint the portrait of Mr. Bryan. There he met Miss Ruth Bryan, whom he married the following October.

The couple lived a while in Denver, and last September Mr. Leavitt went to Paris. The first of this year there was a rumor that Mrs. Leavitt intended to get a divorce. This was emphatically denied on all sides.

SECOND EMPIRE HAS MISHAP

Water Scoop, Entangled with Wheels Derails Engine.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 12.—The second Empire on the New York Central Railroad, which ran through here at 2:47 to-day at full speed, had a narrow escape from being wrecked near Barrytown. Running at a high rate of speed, an attempt was made to scoop water. The scoop dropped from the engine and got so entangled with the wheels that the engine was partly derailed. The train was stopped in a very short distance and a serious accident was averted.

Officials at the Grand Central Station when questioned last night as to the accident said that the passengers had been transferred to another train that left New York ten minutes after the express.

QUEENS BOROUGH HALL SHAKY

Rush of Taxpayers to Escape When Floor Sags and Pillar Wobbles.

Coolness and prompt action alone prevented a disaster when the floor of the Tax Commissioner's office on the second floor of the Queens Borough Hall, in Long Island City, sagged yesterday under the weight of a gathering of fully 100 taxpayers of the Third Ward, who were before the Tax Commissioners to protest against increased assessments on farm lands.

Lawson Purdy, President of the Board of Tax Commissioners, was in the middle of an address when it was noticed that the floor was beginning to sag. A big wooden pillar about eight inches in diameter, which supported the third floor, was seen to leave its socket and sway back and forth. It was followed by a creaking of the floor timbers.

Instantly there was a rush toward the narrow exit, but President Purdy, calling for order, directed everybody to keep quiet and pass out of the room as easily as possible. Relieved of the weight of the crowd the floor sprang back into its place, but the wooden pillar was still fully six inches out of plumb.

A $25,000,000,000 BID.

Board of Water Supply Gets an Amazing Offer on the Wallkill Siphon.

President John A. Bensel of the Board of Water Supply was amazed yesterday when he saw the amount for which the Bradley Construction Company would be willing to build the Wallkill siphon, or pressure, tunnel of the new Catskill Aqueduct, which is to cross under the Wallkill River not far from the village of New Paltz, Ulster County. The bid of the company was for $25,003,730,000.

The other bids received were from S. Pearson & Son, Incorporated, $8,305,000; McArthur Brothers Company, $4,352,000, and from the T. A. Gillespie Company, $4,685,000.

It was assumed that the Bradley bid was caused by a mistake in bidding on one item. Tenders were asked, among other things, for pumping shafts and pressure tunnels, per million gallons. For this the Bradley Company bid $50,000 a million gallons instead of 50 cents. However, even if the tender is amended in the way suggested it would still amount to $3,780,000, considerably higher than the offer of S. Pearson & Son.

ACTING GOVERNORS CONTEST.

Queer Struggle for Control of Arkansas Government.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 12.—Telegrams received from Washington say Gov. Pindall has departed from the Governors' Conference there to contest with A. H. Hamiter, Speaker of the House of Representatives, for the office of Acting Governor. Mr. Pindall, as President of the Senate, became Acting Governor when a vacancy occurred. When he left the State Mr. Hamiter took the place.

Although Mr. Hamiter still denies he will try to hold the office after the return of Gov. Pindall, he is holding consultations hourly with prominent attorneys who are opposed to Gov. Pindall.

It is intimated that Mr. Hamiter will refuse to vacate the office, and Attorney General Kirby will be called upon for a decision.

Lawyers here say Gov. Pindall on his return, even though he succeeds in getting the office, cannot revoke the call of the special session made yesterday by Mr. Hamiter. The Democratic nominee for Governor, George A. Donaghy, who opposed the calling of the special session some weeks ago by Gov. Pindall, is said to be on his way home also, and will be a prominent factor in the special session.

FIRE SWEEPS BARRYTOWN, N.Y.

Two Hotels Among the Ruins—New York Central Station Saved.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 12.—A fire fanned by a strong southwest wind practically destroyed the little settlement at Barrytown Landing, on the New York Central Railroad, twenty-three miles north of this city this afternoon.

The Riverside Hotel, store of the American Ice Company, freight house of the New York and Saugerties Steamboat Company, Fred Lee's coal and lumber yards, a brick house belonging to the Tyler estate, the hotel of Sylvester Kisselback, and several smaller buildings were destroyed. The New York Central passenger station was saved by a bucket brigade.

The origin of the fire is unexplained. The loss is $58,000.

HUGHES MAN WINS SENATE ELECTION

William C. Wallace Chosen by 248 Plurality in the Orleans-Niagara District.

GOV. HUGHES IS DELIGHTED

Thinks Race Track Gambling Doomed —Carnegie Happy Enough to Buy Drinks, if He Drank.

Special to The New York Times.

NIAGARA FALLS, May 12.—Despite the opposition of the Republican bosses and the apathy of the Republican farmers William C. Wallace, Hughes Republican and foe of race-track gambling, was elected State Senator in the Orleans-Niagara District to-day. His plurality over Henry A. McMahon, the Democrat who represented the opposition to Gov. Hughes's reforms, is figured to-night at 248. Wallace got 7,601 votes, against 7,353 for McMahon. The same district in 1906 gave Franchot, Republican, 11,946, and Fluhrer, Democrat, 11,196. Niagara County gave McMahon a plurality of 599, but it was overcome in Orleans.

Niagara Falls is the home city of both Wallace and McMahon, and it gave McMahon 478 plurality, but this is not strange, as it is a saloon city, and has an open Sunday, and the sentiment in favor of race tracks is strong. McMahon carried Wallace's ward by 37 votes.

The Democratic majority in Niagara County is attributed to the failure of the country vote to turn out as largely as expected. Strong objection was voiced, chiefly throughout the farmer community, to the special election. It involved considerable expense, and it was frequently threatened that many who thought this expense unjustified would vote against the Republican candidate without regard to their sentiment on gambling. The returns show that the vote was particularly light in the country districts.

Mr. Wallace passed the day in the Second District of the Third Ward of this city. This evening he was at his home. Although assured of election he was still ready to hear of defeat.

"We never can tell," he said, "about the results of elections until the votes are all counted. In this case I feel that the majority is quite inspiring to Republicans and the cause of Governor Hughes, for we must consider that at this season many of the farming communities found it utterly impossible to leave their work and go to the polls. That was my great fear of defeat, but I feel that the State Constitution has been nobly upheld by the loyal electors of Orleans and Niagara Counties. Thank them for me."

The Prohibition vote was an inconsiderable factor, totaling about 300. That party's candidate, Mr. Hartman, announced during the campaign that he would be satisfied if the Prohibitionists voted for Wallace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Gov. Hughes sees in the election of William C. Wallace the doom of race-track gambling in New York. He showed his delight to-night over the receipt of the news of Wallace's victory. When he returned to the Willard Hotel after the banquet to the Governors at the White House he expressed his pleasure.

"The result," he said, "is what I had expected, and what I had hoped for. I am more than delighted with the outcome, and I will state that I think this is simply the beginning of the end for the race-track evil in New York State."

While the Governor was beaming on the group that had surrounded him, Andrew Carnegie came along. Pushing into the crowd he thrust out his hand.

"Isn't it great, this election of Wallace?" he said excitedly. "My joy and gratification are as deep as a well and as wide as a church. If I were a drinking man I'd take you all down and buy you a drink."

"Well," responded the Governor, "I'm not a drinking man myself, but I almost wish I were and that you could."

Gov. Hughes will be unable to remain throughout the conference at the White House. Duties at Albany compel him to return to-morrow night.

SENATOR FOELKER BETTER.

His Attending Physician Now Thinks He Will Recover.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 12.—The chances are to-day more favorable for the recovery of Senator Otto G. Foelker of Brooklyn, who is at the home of his father-in-law, Fred Bodenstein, in Staatsburg, where he submitted to an operation for appendicitis on Sunday.

After seeing the patient this morning Dr. F. N. Murphy said that his temperature was 100 4-5, or one degree lower than it was yesterday, when his condition was serious, owing largely to his nervous condition.

Senator Foelker slept well last night and was less nervous when the doctor saw him this morning. Dr. Murphy now believes that the Senator will recover.

Louisiana Governor Against Racing.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 12.—In Gov. Blanchard's message to the General Assembly to-day he urges strict regulation of the liquor traffic and says that if this does not correct its evils, there should be absolute prohibition. He urges the passage of employers' liability and anti-lobby laws, and says that race-track gambling is pernicious and should be abolished.

MRS. KNIERIEM WINS SUIT.

Court Grants Separation and Gives Her a Row of Houses.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., May 12.—Mrs. Jessie Knieriem got a separation from her husband, Edward R. Knieriem, the horse show exhibitor and dog fancier of Bayville, L. I., to-day in the Supreme Court before Justice Carr. Instead of alimony Mr. Knieriem is ordered to give his wife a warranty deed of conveyance to property which he owns in Jardine Place, Brooklyn, the numbers of the houses being 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, and 11.

In return Mrs. Knieriem is to make no further claims upon her husband during his life, or to contest his will upon his death. She is ordered to return to him the jewels in her possession belonging to his former wife.

"SWEETBREADS FOR BRAINS."

Roosevelt's Latest Attack on a Senator Angers His Colleagues.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—It developed to-day that something besides his three letters of defiance has stirred the wrath of Senators recently against the President. He has spoken in personal disparagement of one of the most highly regarded of the "old group."

"The trouble with him," Mr. Roosevelt is reported as having said of this Senator, "is that he has sweetbreads for brains."

A good many Senators, especially Foraker and his friends, were highly incensed over the letters to Senator Smith of Michigan and Stewart of Vermont, in which he announced his intention to veto the Foraker Brownsville bill if it should pass, and to ignore it if it should be passed over his veto. But their wrath at that defiance was as nothing compared to their rage over this disparagement of their colleague.

BRYAN PICKS MITCHELL?

His Omaha Organ Suggests Labor Leader for the Vice Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., May 12.—The World-Herald, of which William Jennings Bryan was editor when he was nominated the first time for President, in a leading editorial to-morrow will declare that John Mitchell, the labor leader, is the strongest possible man the Democrats can nominate for the Vice Presidency at Denver. Mr. Bryan spent Sunday with the editor of The World-Herald.

"John Mitchell in some ways is the strongest possibility," says the editorial. "He is the best-loved and most trusted labor leader in the country. The business world pays him tribute as an honest man and great leader. With Taft heading the Republican ticket the strength that John Mitchell would lend the Democratic ticket is obvious."

SPECIAL SHIP FOR A LEPER.

Immigration Department Charters One to Move Deported Woman.

The Cape Verde packet Ramona, formerly a schooner yacht belonging to the New York Yacht Club, arrived last night and anchored off City Island, with a Russian woman leper on board from the Massachusetts colony on the Island of Penikese. The Ramona was specially chartered to bring the woman to New York by the immigration authorities, and she will be transferred at sea to-day to one of the outward bound liners belonging to the company that brought her over.

No communication will be held between the shore and the Ramona while the leper patient is on board, and after transferring her the schooner will go to her dock at Weehawken. The railroads refused to transport the woman, and Inspector Sullivan of the Immigration Department went to Penikese on Monday, and made the arrangements for transferring her to the Ramona.

MME. GOULD AT MONTE CARLO.

Sagan Plays for Small Sums—Warned Against Count Castellane.

MONTE CARLO, May 12.—Mme. Anna Gould and her children, accompanied by Prince Helle de Sagan, arrived here this afternoon from Rome. Mme. Gould remained in an apartment reserved for her at the hotel, while the Prince dined in the restaurant, later going alone to the Casino, where he played for some time for small sums.

The party left Rome last evening, and arrived in Genoa early this morning. They had breakfast in the station.

Prince Sagan has been warned by a friend from Paris that Count Boni de Castellane, who was divorced by Mme. Gould, is determined to create a scandal the moment they meet. The Count is of the opinion that Prince Sagan caused Mme. Gould to bring the divorce proceedings.

HOBOES IN SMART CLOTHES.

Well-Dressed Youths, Believed to be Harvard Students, Arrested.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, May 12.—Clad in smart clothes, with clean collars and faces and all the appearances of well-to-do college students, Frank S. Horn and James E. Potter, both asserting they came from Cambridge, Mass., were in the Police Court to-day, charged with having stolen a ride on the blind baggage of an express train from Bridgeport to this city last night.

They were arrested in the local yards by railroad detectives. Judge Mathewson is inclined to believe that they are Harvard students on a lark, or sociological students, and continued their cases until May 15. They were taken to jail handcuffed together in the patrol wagon. The probation officer will investigate.

STABBED ON THE ELEVATED.

Unknown Man Mortally Wounded by Another Who Escapes in the Crowd.

A man whose name has not been learned was mortally stabbed in view of the crowd on the uptown Third Avenue Elevated station platform at Twenty-eighth Street about 7 o'clock last night. In the confusion which followed the man who did the stabbing escaped, and the police have little upon which to begin their search for him.

It could not be learned by the police whether the two men went to the platform together. The first that was known of the affray was a scream that startled those on the platform as a young man about 24 years old and about 5 feet 4 inches tall fell to the platform grasping his chest, from which he had withdrawn a blood-stained knife.

At the same time his assailant ran off, leaving behind him only a black derby hat bought in a Bowery shop with which to identify him.

The wounded man was taken to Bellevue Hospital. He was unconscious, and died without coming his senses. There was no mark about his clothing and no papers in his pockets which would give a clue to his name or address.

Proclaims Davis's Birthday a Holiday.

RICHMOND, Va., May 12.—Gov. Swanson to-day issued a proclamation requesting the people of Virginia to observe June 3, the centennial of President Davis's birth, as a holiday.

THE ALLEN IS DEAD; SLAIN, BROTHER SAYS

Coroner Holds Up Funeral of Gambler Who for Years Defied the Police.

MAY HAVE BEEN POISONED

Van Buren Allen, Summoned to Brother's Deathbed, Tells Coroner He Thinks The Was Murdered.

The Allen, the gambler and poolroom keeper, died at 10:20 o'clock last night in his home at 17 West Eighth Street. Less than an hour later The Allen's brother, Martin Van Buren Allen, standing over his brother's body, asserted that the gambler had been poisoned. The statement was made to Coroner Harburger, whom Martin Van Buren Allen had summoned to the house. The Coroner declared that, in view of Mr. Allen's statement, he would order an autopsy performed on the body this morning. The dead man was 76 years old.

The scene in the Allen home following the death of the master was a most dramatic one. There in the death chamber, Coroner Harburger held a virtual inquest, questioning relatives as well as the nurse and physician who had attended Allen.

Coroner Harburger, acting on suggestions from Martin Allen, asked if The Allen had refused to accept food and drink from members of the family at times, or if his medicine had been forced upon him. This the other members of The's family denied.

Those who were questioned, besides Martin Allen, were The Allen's half brother, William Allen; his granddaughter and adopted daughter, Mrs. Minnie T. Owens; Dr. Herman Boecker of 102 East Sixty-eighth Street, who attended him; Charles J. Beery, a professional nurse, who had been in attendance since Friday last, and Emil Fuchs, The Allen's attorney. All of these persons were present when The Allen died.

Coroner Harburger reached the house about midnight in response to an urgent telephone call. When he got there he was told by Martin Van Buren Allen that it was he who had insisted upon his being called. Martin Allen said that when his brother died an undertaker was summoned and prepared to embalm the body.

"I was suspicious," said Mr. Allen, "and I determined that nothing should be done until the proper authorities had been notified. When the others refused to call you I told him that I should stand on the front steps and shout for the police if they did not send for you. Then they decided to call you."

Coroner Harburger, after talking with Martin Allen, established a practical inquest. He asked Dr. Beecher how long he had attended Mr. Allen, and learned that he had been his physician for fourteen months.

"Was he crazy?" the Coroner asked.

"Not for thirteen months, but in the last month he had been deranged," the physician answered.

"Did he ever refuse to take food or drink, or did you ever hear him say that he didn't want it?"

Dr. Boecker replied that he had never seen Mr. Allen refuse food, nor had he heard him express a desire not to take food or drink. He said that he had been about to issue a death certificate when the Coroner arrived.

"I'd like to ask the doctor a question," broke in Martin Allen. "Ask him if he ever hear The say that he was poisoned or was afraid of being poisoned."

Dr. Boecker declared that The Allen had never spoken to him of such fear and said he had not heard of it. If he had, he said, he certainly should not have been ready to issue a death certificate.

"Why, The never wanted that man, anyway," Martin Allen cried. "They had to hold my brother down on the floor to give him medicine."

Dr. Boecker explained this by saying that The Allen had once crouched behind his bed, and they had been obliged to administer his medicine there. The doctor said that until a month ago he had given The Allen medicines for internal consumption.

"Then his stomach gave out and recently I gave him hypodermic injections," the physician said.

Coroner Harburger asked Beery, the nurse, if The Allen had been insane. Beery replied that he certainly had been, and that the malady was caused by locomotor ataxia.

"It was not necessary, however, to restrain him by tieing him up," he added, "although he became slightly violent at times."

Beery said that The Allen died peacefully and had not tried to make any statement before breathing his last.

Martin Van Buren Allen told the Coroner that he got to the house last Friday in response to a message from his brother asking him to come. It was the first time that he stepped inside the house in nine months, he said.

"We quarreled then and parted," he said bitterly. "They tried to set him against me, and made him think that I was trying to poison him. I nursed him for four years, and loved him as much as one brother can love another."

Oscar R. Sever, an undertaker, was censured severely by the Coroner when he admitted that he had brought embalming fluid to the house and had intended to embalm the body.

William Allen told of taking his half-brother for walks, supporting him under the arms. He said The Allen had never talked of money matters, and had never exhibited suspicion of any one in the house.

Mrs. Owens, The Allen's granddaughter, in her testimony said that she lived with The and nursed him. She said he never refused to take food or drink from her. At variance with the testimony of the nurse, she said that she had never seen anything unusual in her adopted father's behavior except "on one of his bad days."

"What do you mean by bad days?" demanded the Coroner.

"Well," said Mrs. Owens, "on last Thursday Mr. Allen arose and came to the table. There he suddenly took out his watch and examining it remarked, 'This is not my watch.' We assured him that it was, and then he picked his scarfpin out, saying, 'This isn't mine, either.' Suddenly he demanded, 'Where is my money?'

"I handed him $18, saying: 'There it is,' and that quieted him for a minute. Then he asked me to take him up to the front room on the first floor. William Allen helped me to carry Mr. Allen up.

"In the room he suddenly became violent and tore my gown. Then he tried to pull down a mirror and became very wild. He frightened William who suddenly asked him:

"'Heavens, The, what are you trying to do. Kill us?"

"'I don't care,' answered Mr. Allen, and an instant later William Allen asked:

"'Are you trying to commit suicide?'

"'Yes,' replied Mr. Allen. 'It might as well be now as later.'

"Then," continued Mrs. Owens, "Mr. Allen tried to throw himself from the window. William Allen and I caught and stopped him and he tore down part of the window sash shouting at the same time, 'Murder. Police. Will help please come?'"

Mrs. Ownes said that Mr. Allen struck both her and William Allen in his frenzy. As Mrs. Owens concluded Martin Van Buren Allen exclaimed:

"There's something wrong here."

"Are you convinced that there has been foul play here in this house?" demanded the Coroner.

"Yes, I am," replied Martin Van Buren Allen. "I think my brother was poisoned."

"Under such strange circumstances," declared Coroner Harburger, "I order that the body stay untouched and tomorrow morning early I will have an autopsy performed by my physician, Dr. O'Hanlon."

Frank Allen of 114 West 102d Street, who is a half brother of The Allen, was questioned at length by the Coroner, and hesitated only when Coroner Harburger suddenly asked if he had ever heard his brother say he was afraid to take food or drink. Allen kept silent until Lawyer Fuchs urged him to speak out and have no fear. Then he said, with evident reluctance:

"Yes. I heard Mr. Allen express fear at taking food. I have heard him say: 'I don't want that. I am afraid to take it.'"

"Who was offering him food when he made that remark," demanded the Coroner. Allen hesitated again and then replied:

"He said he was afraid, and wanted to have the stuff tasted by somebody else."

Lawyer Fuchs broke in with the explanation that the disease from which Mr. Allen was suffering frequently made the sufferer act in such a way.

Beery, the nurse, then asked if he could add something to what he had told and said that an hour before The Allen died, he had regained consciousness and murmured:

"Bring Minnie, (meaning Mrs. Owens) my granddaughter, I want her to pray with me."

Beery said that he wanted to make another important addition to his testimony, which was that before Mr. Allen died he had seen his sister, Mrs. Hannah Louisa Meyers, brush a handkerchief over The Allen's face several times. Coroner Harburger wanted to know if there was a fluid on the handkerchief, but the nurse said he couldn't tell.

The Allen's Career.

The Allen, who was 76 years old this year, has often been written down as a "nervous wreck," "physical wreck," and as a man not long for this world. This began as early as 1902. It was not until last year that he himself began to feel that the earth was slipping from under his feet, and then he offered to bet $100 even that he wouldn't live until June.

For many years Allen's poolroom and gambling rooms down in Sixth Avenue resisted the "efforts" of the police to close them. In 1878 a Police Inspector admitted, under the pressure of an investigation, that he simply could not get enough evidence against Allen's place, which was well known to every child in the old Greenwich Village, to close it.

But in later years the police really got after the old steel-barred gambling house. They raided it, after beating down doors and windows, over 100 times, and finally the old gambler, rough-and-tumble tough, divekeeper, and all-round bad man, had to admit that he could no longer resist the officers of the law. But they did not conquer him until he was a very old man and a rich one. His fortune is estimated at $500,000.

The Allen was the eldest of five sons, all of whom won unenviable reputations. His father was a respectable business man of the old Eighth Ward. The Allen was noted in early life as a barroom fighter. His favorite trick was to stick a lighted cigar into an opponent's eye before the other man could hit him. In a dive fight with an Italian in a saloon down in South Fifth Avenue in 1891, Allen came out second best, and he was in bed a long time. He was expected to die then.

Allen started his career in a butcher's shop. He passed through the stages of work in a saloon to the ownership of one himself. The next step after owning a saloon and becoming an Alderman—in those days—was to own a gambling house.

In 1878 a pistol in the hands of Allen went off and killed his partner in gambling—Eddie Molloy. He was indicted for murder in the first degree. He was either dismissed, or else the charge was never pressed—the old records are not clear; but, anyway, he got off.

His famous poolroom and gambling house was at 80 Sixth Avenue. Capt. Chapman of the Mercer Street Station personally led nearly 100 raids against it; it still lived. After the Percy-Gray law the place was turned into a club, barred with steel, and still the police kept at it. In 1906 Allen told Jerome that he had quit and would stay quit.

Allen always said that he was not a criminal in spite of the number of times he had been in court. He was a defendant in the police court nearly 200 times, and he went before all the higher courts up to the Supreme bench. He drew a fine distinction by saying: "I'm not a gambler; I'm a sporting man. The other fellow's the gambler."

The Allen often said that he would leave to his granddaughter, Minnie Allen, all he had. She is rich in her own name, it is said, having inherited some $200,000 from her mother.

Allen had a civil war record. Of this he used to tell:

"I went into the first battle of the civil war and stayed in the service until the last one was fought. Six months after enlisting I was assigned to the Secret Service. I assumed the rôle of a fugitive from the Confederate States, went to Montreal, where a reward of $50,000 was put on my head. To get information for my Government I joined the raiders in their attacks on St. Albans, Vt. I was captured there by the United States forces, and sentenced to be executed the next day.

"A telegram from Secretary of War Stanton to Gen. Schofield, in command of St. Albans, saved me. That, I suppose, was the narrowest escape from death I ever had. It was Henry Ward Beecher who, by telegram, informed Stanton of my plight. Beecher was billed to lecture in St. Albans the day of my arrest."

Allen dated his "solitary life" from the hours following his arrest after killing Maloy, when he found himself friendless, saying: "It's me against the world, from now on, this side of the Jordan River I'll never stand and deliver."

The Allen's wife was a very religious woman, and The used to help her in some of her charitable work among the very poor in the old Greenwich Village section. He paid the funeral expenses of nearly four hundred persons, men, women, and children. Allen adopted five children.

One of the adopted children is cashier of a big firm in this city. Allen found her as a baby twenty-nine years ago in a doorway at Canal and Thompson Streets.

TO RESTORE COIN MOTTO.

Senate Committee Reports Bill Favoring "In God We Trust."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Senate Committee on Finance to-day reported favorably on a bill ordering restored to the coinage the motto, "In God We Trust." The bill already has passed the House. The inscription was dropped some months ago on new coinage designed by Saint-Gaudens at the order of President Roosevelt.

Since that time petitions for its restoration have poured into Congress from religious and patriotic associations all over the country. The bill is expected to pass.

4 NEW TAMMANY SACHEMS.

Rush, McAvoy, Harburger, and Loft Chosen at 119th Annual Meeting.

At the 119th annual meeting of the Tammany Society held last night at the Wigwam four new sachems were installed with the ancient rites. The new officers are Thomas E. Rush, leader of the Twenty-ninth District; Thomas F. McAvoy, leader of the Twenty-third; Coroner Julius Harburger, leader of the Tenth, and George W. Loft, the candy manufacturer.

The meeting of the Board of Sachems will take place on May 25th. It was said last night that the question of moving the headquarters further uptown will also be taken up then.

Daniel F. Cohalan, who will probably succeed Bourke Cockran as Sachem, was re-elected Chairman of the Law Committee. The society will oppose Senator Page's bill providing for more complete means of identifying voters at registration.

FELL MESSENGER, ROB TRAIN.

Bandits Loot Safe on the Great Northern and Escape.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 12.—J. E. Perrine, Great Northern express messenger on the train which left Seattle at 8:10 o'clock this morning for Vancouver, B. C., was beaten and tied hand and foot by two men who looted the strong box of a sum estimated at from $1,000 to $10,000. The robbers escaped.

Seeks Missing Bracelet in Lost Column

Mrs. Frank G. Sprague of 116 Riverside Drive is anxious for the return of a gold chain bracelet, to which was attached a heart pendant. The pendant was also of gold, and was set on one side with diamonds and on the other with rubies. Mrs. Sprague has offered a reward of $50 through the Lost and Found columns of THE TIMES for its return.

be perfectly tested, and the machines will show just what they can do on the road under conditions which they would have to face in ordinary extended touring use. The automobile manufacturers with whom I have talked about the matter have all commended it, and believe it will prove a complete success. I shall be glad to do anything I can do to help make it a success."

Harry Clinton said: "I shall be glad to bring it to the attention of the Licensed Association, and believe it is just the thing needed to stimulate and sustain interest in automobiling. I like the idea of a contest which will try out automobiles from every standpoint under actual road conditions, and reaching the varied sections of the country that it does it would command the attention of every one in America who is interested in automobiling. The tentative lines suggested seem to me the proper lines for the race, and if carried out as outlined it cannot fail to be a big success. I shall do everything possible to secure a representative entry for the contest."

Walter Lee of the Importers' Salon spoke in the same enthusiastic way. "The best thing ever suggested in automobiling and will do an immense amount of good," he said. "It covers all the various lines in which the automobile owner is interested, and affords a trial that can be made conclusive. All the importers I have talked with about the race approve of it thoroughly, and hope it can be successful in every way."

It is anticipated that the conditions will be drawn at the meeting of the leading automobile men in the Times Building on Friday evening, so that they can be announced to the manufacturers by the end of the week. Half a dozen entries are already assured.

COL. STEWART, U.S.A., LIKENED TO DREYFUS

Senator Rayner Says Army Officer Ordered to Lonely Arizona Post Is Inhumanly Treated.

ATTACKS THE PRESIDENT

In Letter Roosevelt Insists He Is Within His Rights and Calls Stewart "Nuisance in the Army."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Senator Rayner to-day delivered a bitter speech in denunciation of the President for his order banishing Col. William F. Stewart of the Coast Artillery to an abandoned military post in Arizona, declaring it to be more unjust and inhuman than the Dreyfus case. Incidentally he read the letter the President had addressed to him, in which the charges against Col. Stewart, on which Mr. Roosevelt acted, were summed up. This is one of the three letters to Senators about which there has been so much speculation. The President, in a note written this morning to Rayner, gave him permission to make it public.

The tenor of the epistle is defiant. It has not served to mollify the Senate. None of the Senators would discuss it to-night, although there was considerable excitement after it was read, and it has been a topic of interest in certain circles.

Rayner intends to force the issue. He will call up his resolution to-morrow, commanding the President to order a court of inquiry into the Stewart case. It is his intention to demand a roll call, thus putting the Senators on record.

The President's explanation began with a history of the objections made to Col. Stewart by his fellow-officers, enlisted men, and civilians. It recited quarrels in various barracks, both with army men and outsiders. The letter declared also that he had been guilty of applying strong language to men under his command. On one occasion the Colonel is said to have called a Sergeant of twenty-nine years' service a "dirty, insolent pup."

The President declared him to be a "nuisance in the army," and declared his "nagging demoralized the soldiers." Stewart also was said to have "temperamental and other defects" that made him an "incompetent commanding officer." In short, the President regarded him, to quote the language of the letter, as "not only a pernicious but a very inefficient officer."

No Need of Court-Martial.

In closing his reply to Rayner the President practically informed Congress it could not interfere in his actions, asserting that he was within his rights. That portion referring to the request for a trial is as follows:

> Now as to your suggestions for a trial. For the reasons given above, and also in the memorandum which I herewith forward, there is no point in having a court-martial. At present I do not see how a court of inquiry could be of use, for I do not see how any court of inquiry would express an opinion to which I should pay more heed than to the judgment of Gens. Wade, Grant, Murray, Duvall, and Davis, in accordance with whose recommendations I have acted. You say it is only by a court of inquiry that we "could ascertain the truth or untruth of the charges." I feel the truth of the charges has been established beyond the possibility of upsetting by the reports quoted in the body of my letter.
>
> I do not understand your allusion to a joint resolution by Congress; such measures as those taken in this case are purely within the scope of the President's duties and authority. The course followed in this case is the course which will hereafter be followed, to the great benefit of the army, in all such cases; letters to this effect have already been addressed to the commanding officers of the several departments.

Rayner said he was asking simple justice for a victim of the President's error. This victim, as he termed him, had served forty-one years in the army, was the possessor of medals of honor, and had been promoted for gallantry in action in the Indian wars.

Says President Exceeds Rights.

Rayner insisted the President was entirely beyond his constitutional rights in inflicting punishment on an officer without sanction of a regular court-martial. He read from the President's letter, in which the word "punishment" was used four times on one page, and held that the charges lodged against Stewart, to which he was not permitted access or the right to reply in his defense, were frivolous and petty.

Turning to a letter from Stewart, which Foraker produced, and in which the Colonel complains of the impossible conditions of the Arizona post, Rayner showed, according to Col. Stewart, that of the six shaky buildings at Fort Grant, only one was fit for human habitation, and that was a mere shed in which the occupants suffered from the cold.

"Take the case of Dreyfus," declared Rayner. "This is similar to that, except that it is worse. Dreyfus was legally tried, then retried, and acquitted. Here is this case at hand—a gallant soldier is prevented from communicating with his friends and denied a trial. He is convicted because he has engaged in a few petty squabbles and used an emphatic word or two. As a matter of fact, he is convicted because he dared be too much like his Commander in Chief."

It was now up to Congress, Rayner insisted, to see to it that justice was done.

Senator Bulkeley was requested by Senator Foraker to announce that Foraker would call up the Brownsville matter to-morrow.

PUBLISHERS CLOSE FREE PAPER PLEA

Evidence to Show That Paper Makers' Wages Have Not Been Raised.

NOT CAUSE OF PRICE RISE

The Manufacturers of Paper Will Probably Testify Before the Committee at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Select House Committee resumed its investigation of the paper industry to-day after its trip to Corinth, N. Y., where the works of the Hudson River Mill were gone over. John Norris of THE NEW YORK TIMES was again on the stand, testifying for nearly four hours.

Mr. Norris called attention to a census bulletin which indicated that the wages of paper workers had not been increased recently, though forty other industries did show an increase. This bulletin, he said, refuted the statement of the manufacturers that the increased cost of labor had necessitated higher prices.

He then produced a letter from Senator La Follette which inclosed a letter from the Commissioner of Labor showing a general increase in the cost of labor of 17 per cent.

"I am expecting," concluded Mr. Norris, "a report for the last six months which will, I think, show a reduction in the pay of paper workers by reason of the business depression and a reduction in the time the paper workers were employed by reason of the closing of mills in the effort of the manufacturers to maintain artificial prices."

Mr. Norris's Testimony.

Mr. Norris stated that last year the International Paper Company's imports of wood pulp from Canada were 170,000 tons. He quoted from a newspaper article to show that the company took the pulp that was imported, and put it into its export paper in order that it might get the benefit of the reduced cost, as it would save four-fifths of $1.67 on every ton imported by reason of rebates from the Government.

Mr. Norris had said that The Boston Herald, according to his understanding, had a contract with the International Company calling for shipment on the basis of cost of manufacture and providing for an audit to determine the cost.

"Is this similar to THE NEW YORK TIMES contract?" asked Mr. Sims.

"So I understand," replied Mr. Norris.

"By the way," interposed Chairman Mann, "we have not yet had that TIMES contract."

"I have been asked to state that the New York Times Company declines to furnish its contract," replied Mr. Norris. "I am, however, willing to answer freely and fully every question put to me within my knowledge, and to give all the information I have."

"Yet THE NEW YORK TIMES is unwilling to furnish testimony on which relief can be granted," said Chairman Mann.

Should Hear All Newspapers.

"I do not think I would state the case in that way," replied Mr. Norris. "It might be said that it is unfair to take out one newspaper and make its business and its contract the basis for this entire investigation, while there are other newspapers, with larger contracts and larger prices, about which no inquiry has been made. If you take all of them and make all show up, it would be on an entirely different basis."

"Here is a case," said Chairman Mann, "where the newspapers are insisting that speedy action be taken by Congress, preliminary to which there must be action by this committee. The newspapers are making the request, and yet we are met on all sides with the evident disinclination of the great majority of the large papers to furnish us necessary information upon which to base any just conclusions.

"It seems to me there may be a question whether they desire any action taken—whether they are not well satisfied with the contracts they now have and are putting this investigation up as a matter of bluff. I am not confining this comment to the New York papers. I have letters from many publishers who do not want to testify. It is perfectly evident to you, and must be evident to every one else, if we have to get this testimony by force we would not end this Summer. We are trying to get through and make a report at this session of Congress. Instead of getting the help of the newspapers, we have to use force."

Mr. Norris had a report he had made to President Ochs of THE TIMES Company concerning his examination of the International Company's books relating to the Hudson River Mill for the years 1906 and 1907, showing a profit on paper at the price paid by THE TIMES of $7.50 per ton, equal to 27 per cent.

The answer of the company's accountant to Mr. Norris's report was read. He contended that the cost of manufacture was not $27 a ton, as asserted by Mr. Norris, but $28 at the mill, and that the percentage of profit should not be computed upon the cost at the mill, but upon the cost of delivery at the newspaper office, which included the transportation from the mill to the newspaper office.

Mr. Norris placed in the record additional letters and telegrams from publishers of newspapers, showing the increased cost in the price of their paper. In some instances the increase was as high as $15 a ton.

Mr. Norris called attention to a dispatch in The Paper Mill, a trade journal, dated Bangor, July 10, 1906, stating that an agreement had been made in Boston to curtail the production of spruce in Maine 50 per cent. in the month of July, 1906.

"This may be of use to the committee," he said, "as showing that the paper companies are buying spruce rather than cutting their own lands."

Mr. Norris then announced that his statement to the committee was closed. Several members expressed a desire to question him and an adjournment was taken until to-morrow morning.

It is probable that the papermakers will be next examined by the committee.

DEADLOCK LIKELY ON CURRENCY BILL

If House Passes Vreeland Measure Senate Is Likely to Send It to Conference.

HAS LITTLE CHANCE THERE

Adjournment of Congress Would Probably Find It Still Under Discussion.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—There is extremely small prospect for the newest Vreeland Currency bill to be enacted into law at this session, none at all if Congress adjourns on the 23d of this month, as is now the programme of the Senate and House leaders. The bill has first to run the gantlet in the House day after to-morrow, and its opponents among the Republicans are already declaring that they have plenty of votes to defeat it, in conjunction with the solid Democratic opposition, of which they are assured. The House leaders admit that there will be a sharp fight, but express confidence of their ability to carry the bill through.

But when it reaches the Senate, if it does, it will be referred to the Finance Committee. There was an informal meeting of several members of that committee this morning, at which the bill was discussed. The decision was reached to shelve it at once on its arrival in the Senate. The plan is to strike out all but the enacting clause and substitute the Aldrich bill, practically as it passed the Senate, but eliminating the La Follette amendment, which forbade banks to lend money on the security of stocks of corporations in which their officers were interested.

No decision was reached as to the plan for a currency commission. There are many Senators who favor this plan, and it may be accepted.

The result of the proposed Senate action will be to send to conference the Aldrich bill. There has never been any chance that the House would accept this bill, so that it seems probable that Congress will adjourn with the conferees wrangling over the whole currency subject.

Shortly after the House met to-day the Democrats held an informal conference to discuss the advisability of a caucus to agree on a plan of action to follow when the bill reaches the floor of the House. Such unanimity against the measure was developed, however, that it was considered unnecessary to call a formal meeting.

The Vreeland bill provides for the organization of National Clearing House Associations, composed of ten or more National banks, estimated geographically to one in a district, which shall have the power to issue emergency currency to an aggregate amount of $500,000,000.

The currency is to be based upon "any securities, including commercial paper," which the banks may hold. Any bank may join the association of its district, but no bank may belong to more than one association. Each association is a body corporate, may sue and be sued, and is governed by a board composed of one officer of each constituent bank.

Any association member having a National bond-secured circulation outstanding to an amount equal to 40 per cent. of its capital, which has unimpaired capital and a 20 per cent. surplus, may take out the new circulation, receiving from the Treasury notes up to 75 per cent. of the cash value of the securities deposited.

The assets of all the banks in each association are joint and severally liable for the circulation of any bank, and the Government has a first lien on them for that purpose. In general each association is made fully responsible for each of its members.

The total circulation of any bank, National bond secured, and emergency, is limited to the amount of its unimpaired capital and surplus. Issue by any association must bear the same ratio to the $500,000,000 limit that the aggregate capital and surplus of its membership bears to the aggregate capital and surplus of all the banks in the country.

"Central reserve city" banks must maintain always on hand a gold or lawful money reserve of 25 per cent. against the new currency. Banks in reserve cities must maintain the same reserve, but may deposit half of it in central reserve city banks.

Outside "central reserve" and "reserve" cities, banks must maintain a 15 per cent. reserve, but may deposit nine-fifteenths of it in "reserve cities."

All the banks in an association are liable for the 5 per cent. redemption fund of any of its members. Redemption of the special currency is unlimited.

The special currency is taxed at 4 per cent. for the first two months, with 1 per cent. per month added for each additional month up to 10 per cent. A bank officer making a false report as to the amount of circulation out is punishable by a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000, or imprisonment from one to five years.

The bill includes provision for a special currency commission to be composed of six Senators, six Representatives, and six others appointed by the President.

There's no test like trying. There's no proof like your own experience. One bottle will tell you the whole story.

Try it for the shampoo. Was ever anything so deliciously dreamy and soothing? Just as remarkable in its effect on the scalp and hair. Nature is put in the way to do her very best. Result, healthy hair, glossy, silky, beautiful hair. No dandruff, no dryness—just the health and vigor of youthful growth and condition.

Vero-Form Soap may also be had in cake form for use where a cake soap is desirable.

Vero-Form Liquid and Cake Soap are on sale at all high-grade Drug and Department Stores.

GIRL CAUSES ARREST OF R. W. FULLERTON

Son of S. H. Fullerton of St. Louis Accused of Abducting Gladys Hobart.

LURED TO SEA, SHE SAYS

He Is Found at Seattle and Forced to Accompany New York Detectives to San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 12.—Robert W. Fullerton, Cornell graduate and son of S. H. Fullerton of St. Louis, President of the Chicago Lumber and Coal Company, arrived here to-day on board the steamer Watson. He was in the custody of two New York detectives, who had arrested him in Seattle.

Immediately on arrival, efforts were made on behalf of the young man for a review of the warrant under which he was arrested. The case was taken before Judge Sewell of the Superior Court. The New York detectives denied in court that Fullerton was kidnapped.

Fullerton was arrested on a warrant signed by Gov. Hughes, in his office in Seattle on Saturday at the point of two pistols presented by the New York detectives. He made no resistance and was hustled into a waiting automobile and rushed down to the docks just in time to catch the Watson.

Before the boat left Seattle, however, he managed to get a hurried note to John B. Collins, the coast manager of the Chicago Lumber and Coal Company. It read: "Am arrested and on my way to New York. Prerogative of habeas corpus denied me. Wire father full particulars. Too much ammunition in my face."

WOMAN'S TALE OF ABDUCTION.

Miss Hobart Found by It a Champion in Judge Beall of Yonkers.

Assistant District Attorney Perkins, who has charge of the case against Robert W. Fullerton, yesterday refused to discuss it, or even to give out the name of the young woman concerned. It was learned, however, that she is Miss Gladys Hobart of 30 Hawley Terrace, Yonkers. She is now employed as a stenographer in this city, is 25 years old, and a very attractive-looking blonde. Her counsel is City Judge Joseph H. Beall of Yonkers.

Judge Beall said last night that his attention was first called to the matter in December, 1906, by Miss Hobart's friends. After investigating her story he decided to take up the cudgels for her. The story as told by Judge Beall is that young Fullerton and Miss Hobart were co-eds at Cornell. She was graduated in 1904. After graduating Miss Hobart took up school teaching, but kept up her friendship with Fullerton, chiefly by the aid of letters and telegrams.

Fullerton in September, 1906, appeared at the place where Miss Hobart was staying and announced that he had booked a passage on the Royal Mail Steam Packet liner Trent for South America, sailing from this city on Sept. 29. On the date of sailing Miss Hobart went to the pier to see Fullerton off.

According to Judge Beall Fullerton took the young woman aboard under the pretense of showing her the boat, and just before sailing time suggested that they should get married and that she should accompany him. Miss Hobart refused to go, but said that when he returned she was willing to marry. The next she knew was that the Trent was backing out into the stream. Fullerton told her not to mind, and then went and registered with the purser as "Mr. and Mrs. Fuller."

Judge Beall would not give the name of the port in South America at which the young couple disembarked, but according to Miss Hobart, after they went ashore she begged Fullerton to carry out his promise and marry her. She says he dallied along for ten days, making various excuses, and then she became suspicious. They quarreled, and she took the first boat back here.

She went to her parents in Lewis County, N. Y., and in December, 1906, came back to Yonkers. It was then that the matter was brought to the attention of Judge Beall. After investigating, he saw District Attorney Jerome, and, as a result, the Grand Jury, in January, 1907, indicted young Fullerton on a charge of abduction.

$1,250,000 LOOT OF PITTSBURG BANK

Cashier Montgomery Surrendered by Bondsmen and Bail Raised to $100,000.

POLITICIANS NOT INVOLVED

Fearing He Will Commit Suicide, Cashier Will Be Guarded Day and Night—More Arrests Likely.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., May 12.—After it had been discovered to-day that the defalcations of William Montgomery, former cashier of the Allegheny National Bank, are $1,250,000 instead of $489,000, as was originally supposed, and fearing lest Montgomery would comit suicide, George E. Tener, his bondsman, delivered Montgomery up to the officials of the United States court. Four hours later, after Montgomery had made his first statement in the presence of witnesses, Mr. Tener again consented to become one of his bondsmen, the other being Richard R. Quay, son of ex-United States Senator M. S. Quay. Montgomery's bond was increased from $50,000 to $100,000.

In the presence of witnesses Montgomery told a part of the story of looting the bank. A stenographer took down his statement, which will be used in an effort to regain as much as possible of the stolen plunder. The only part of the confession given out to-night by Bank Examiner Folds was that Montgomery had exonerated fully all the politicians whose names have at various times been brought into the case. He also gave information which will probably result in the arrest of several other persons.

Mr. Folds stated that although the defalcation of Montgomery would reach $1,250,000, and probably more, the capital of the bank is intact. Already about $300,000 has been recovered in notes and stocks, and it is hoped that considerable more will be found.

Montgomery's rearrest this afternoon was spectacular. As soon as Mr. Tener discovered the extent of Montgomery's defalcations he announced that he would surrender the former cashier.

Deputy United States Marshal McBirney arrested Montgomery at the office of his attorney, C. C. Dickey.

Montgomery broke down, and announced that he would make a statement. A stenographer was summoned and joined the party. It was 8 o'clock this evenmg before Montgomery had finished his story.

Meantime Mr. Tener and Richard R. Quay announced that they had become his bondsmen in the sum of $100,000, the amount demanded by Commissioner Lindsay.

Montgomery broke down completely when the ordeal was over. Two of his friends went home with him. So fearful are his friends that Montgomery will attempt to take his life that a constant guard will be kept with him day and night.

The investigation which resulted in to-day's sensational developments has been in progress since Montgomery's defalcation was first discovered. Bank Examiner Folds has been working on the books of the institution, and according to his statement to-night he found many forged notes, false entries, and alterations in the books, which convinced him that he had far underestimated the extent of Montgomery's defalcation. He found, too, indications that others besides Montgomery had profited by the latter's peculations.

Since the first arrest of Montgomery he has made arrangements to turn over to the bank every penny of his own fortune, which, before the failure, was estimated at about $500,000. On Saturday last he turned over all that was left of the shares of stock of Tonopah Extension, which he, with Charles M. Schwab, purchased from Robert Hall, a local broker, at $6 a share.

Yesterday 900 shares of Tonopah Extension were sold in the market, breaking the price down from $1.15 to $1 a share. To-day 1,490 more shares were offered. The stock opened this morning at $1 and declined to 80 cents at the close. Montgomery also turned over to the bank to-day 1,200 shares of stock of the Allegheny National Bank. The stock is worth $120 a share, the total value of Montgomery's holdings being $144,000.

WOMAN'S SCREAMS SAVE HER.

Forced Into a Cab by 3 Men, Policeman's Shots Stop Them—One Caught.

The screams of a woman, coming through the open window of a taxicab being driven along Central Park West early yesterday morning, attracted Policeman William Henne and he started in pursuit. He called to the chauffeur to stop, and as the vehicle came to a halt three men jumped from the opposite side and ran in the direction of the Park wall.

Henne drew his revolver and began firing, calling to the men to stop. The shots, while going wild, so scared one of the men, who afterward said he was John McDermot of 432 West Thirty-seventh Street, that he surrendered.

Henne then went to the cab and found a woman in a state bordering on collapse. Her dress was torn and her waist and hat were almost in shreds. He ordered his prisoner into the cab and told the chauffeur to go to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station.

To the Lieutenant on duty the woman said she was Mrs. Bella McManus of Providence, R. I., and that she was stopping in the city on a short visit. She would not give the police her address, but told how she had been standing on the corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue at 4 o'clock yesterday morning waiting for a street car, when the cab stopped in front of where she had stood. Two men jumped out, grabbed her, forced her into the vehicle and ordered the chauffeur to drive on. She said she struggled to get away and then managed to get a window down so she could scream.

McDermot and Mrs. McManus were taken before Magistrate Walsh in the West Side Court yesterday morning. McManus was held in $2,500 bail. The woman was sent to the House of Detention as a material witness. She refused to tell Magistrate Walsh anything further about herself.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 12.—Frank McManus of 669 Westminster Street believes that the woman who was assaulted in a taxicab in New York City early to-day was his wife, Belle, who left Providence a week ago, and was expected home to-night. She was visiting Mrs. Edith Wood at 523 West Fifty-second Street, Manhattan. Mr. McManus believes robbery to have been the motive for the attack. He does not know John McDermot.

Increase in Weight Does Not Endanger It, Engineers Say.

Austin Lord Bowman, consulting engineer of the Department of Bridges, and John D. Wilkins, engineer in charge of construction of the Blackwell's Island Bridge, denied yesterday a newspaper allegation that the weight on the bridge has been so increased as to make it dangerous. The dead weight of the bridge has been increased over the original specifications, said Mr. Bowman, but in doing this the stress upon the structure has not been changed.

SUGGESTED MEETING TO THE PRESIDENT

W. G. Jordan Tells How He Proposed a Conference of State Executives.

THIS WAS ONE YEAR AGO

Thinks It Will Cement the States and Prevent Danger of Encroachments on State Rights.

William George Jordan, ex-editor of The Saturday Evening Post, is much interested in the meeting of the Governors of States which begins to-day in Washington. As long ago as February, 1907, Mr. Jordan says, he conceived the idea of such an assembly, and communicated his plan to President Roosevelt, who called the present meeting. Mr. Jordan embodied his idea in a pamphlet and sent copies of it not only to the President, but to the members of the Cabinet and to the Governor of each State. Nearly thirty of the latter have replied to Mr. Jordan indorsing his plan.

Mr. Jordan told a TIMES reporter yesterday about the facts and circumstances which led him to advance his idea of a House of Governors. He said:

"There are three basic weaknesses in our present system of government. The first is the menace of centralization, the Federal Government usurping the rights of the people; second, the uncertain shifting, undignified status of State rights, and, third, the lack of uniform legislation on vital questions throughout the Union.

To Check Federal Encroachment.

"In the latter part of 1906 and in January, 1907, both President Roosevelt and Secretary Root said that more power must be given to the Federal Government in dealing with great questions, that the States were unable to meet them, and that the Government must. There was more than a threat that the powers of the central Government would be increased 'through judicial interpretation and construction of law.' I felt this a most dangerous attack on the very soul of the Constitution. I believed the States amply able to meet and solve these great questions if a simple way were provided for the States to meet as States, and I then proposed a new element in American politics, to be known as the House of Governors. I proposed that the Governors of the forty-six States meet annually for a session of two or three weeks to discuss, consult, and confer on vital questions affecting the welfare of the States, the unifying of State laws, and the closer unity of the States as a Nation. The House of Governors would have no lawmaking power, nor should it ever aspire to such power. Its force would be in initiative, in inspiration, and in influence. The Governors would seek to unite on a general basis of action on great questions to be submitted to the Legislatures of the respective States in the Governors' messages.

In the House of Governors no majority vote should be binding on the minority. If on the subject of, let us say, divorce, twenty-five members of the House were to agree on a general plan, the twenty-five Governors thus concurring would suggest to their respective legislators in their ensuing messages the passage of a bill in accordance with the recommendation. The recommendation would have a greater dynamic effect and a stronger moral influence when each Legislature knows that twenty-four other legislatures are considering the same proposed law. Let us assume that of the twenty-five States eighteen passed this bill. At the next meeting of the House, with the prestige of the adoption of the law by eighteen States, ten new converts might be made, and so in the course of a few sessions we might have uniform State legislation on this vital problem without Federal action. A law thus finally passed by all of the States would more truly represent the sentiment of the American people than any law passed by the Federal Government, even if constitutional amendment or new revised interpretation of the Constitution empowered the passing of the law.

Questions for the Governors.

Mr. Jordan suggested that the House of Governors might discuss vital questions concerning the welfare of the States that require uniform action, but upon which Congress cannot act because the Constitution affords it no power to do so. Among such subjects, upon which he said free discussion tending toward uniform legislation is desirable, Mr. Jordan named marriage and divorce, rights of married women, corporations, and trusts, insurance, child labor, capital punishment, direct primaries, convict labor, prison reform, contracts, uniform system of conveyancing, inheritance tax, income tax, mortgages, referendum, election reforms, and similar topics.

The best interests of all would be conserved, said Mr. Jordan, by having the house meet not in Washington, but in the State capitals selected by vote of the house, or by decision of a committee, and giving the honor to States in rotation, but on a general plan of choice, until the forty-six shall have been recognized.

On the point of increasing Federal power as a means of coping with great National questions, Mr. Jordan had this to say: That the primary idea of the Constitution was to limit rather than to extend Federal power, and he quoted Congressional statistics to show that in the years from 1889 to 1904, 435 amendments to the Constitution failed of getting the two-thirds vote of both houses, entitling them to be born, although no one of them provided for any increase of Federal power.

"Before the Federal Government could legally legislate in all matters which might come before the House of Governors," said Mr. Jordan, "some fifty questions, each requiring an amendment to the Constitution would be raised. In view of this record of fifteen years, how likely would this be to come about?"

Mr. Jordan touched on the frequently advanced statement that the Constitution is a "back number" and in need of complete revision to meet present-day conditions, to declare that the Constitution "is no more outlived than the Ten Commandments."

"No new sin has been discovered since the days of Moses," he said. "They are all covered in the 'ten.' The Constitution is a marvelously wise, broad, able plan. It is true it may not fit a paternal, imperial, centralized Government, for it was not designed for such, nor do we want such, but if we are to continue as a Republic, where the people govern, where the sovereign States are self-governing, and the Federal Government only does those things which the States individually cannot do for themselves, then the Constitution has not been outlived; it merely has not been lived up to. The suggestions to 'read new interpretations' into the Constitution, to torture it in a way that kills its soul is dangerous. There is no menace in a Consitution that, limiting the powers of the Government, retains all powers thus not exclusively guaranteed in the hands of the States and the people. The trouble has been that, while the States have had the power, no way has been provided for them to get together as States and to execute the will of the people. The House of Governors seems to meet this need perfectly, simply, and in absolute harmony with the spirit and essence of the Constitution."

Danger of Presidential Domination.

"If the conference of Governors now in session in Washington were to meet annually with the President, as it seems likely will be proposed, would that meet the need?" Mr. Jordan was asked.

"No; decidedly no," he replied. "It would not be a meeting of the Governors as a body of peers, with the dignity of a 'House,' representing their separate States and working out solutions to suggest to their Legislatures, but a body subject to a President, dominated by him, and under his leadership. They would be tags on the tail of the Administration kite, and the evils that the House of Governors is designed to correct would be intensified, and a false, deceptive glamour of State sanction would be thrown over Federal usurpation."

"What would you say is the immediate step to be taken?"

"The letters with which nearly thirty of the Governors have favored me show them in strong indorsement of the House of Governors. At the close of the present conference with President Roosevelt they might meet and appoint a committee to arrange dates for the first session of the House between June and October, 1909, and prepare recommendations to be submitted to their respective State Legislatures convening in January to indorse and approve of the 'House,' in whatever form may seem best. Thus forty-six Governors, representing their States and working in harmony with forty-six Legislatures and the people behind them, should be a potent force for good. Public opinion crystallized into public sentiment has a voice, a vote, and a veto—the House of Governors should make it an actuality."

PRESIDENT MEETS GOVERNORS

Gives Dinner Preliminary to Conference on Saving Natural Resources.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The President entertained one of the largest dinner companies of the year this evening as a preliminary to the conference of Governors and other distinguished delegates which opens to-morrow to discuss the conservation of the Nation's natural resources.

Thirty-six States were represented by their Chief Executives; also Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico.

The dinner was served in the state dining room, with the Marine Band playing in the red corridor. The entire company included the President, the Vice President, the Chief Justice, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, Justice Harlan, Justice Brewer, Justice White, Justice McKenna, Justice Holmes, Justice Day, Justice Moody, the Secretary of the Interior, the Secretary of Agriculture, Senator Newlands, Senator Bankhead, the Governors of Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut, Maryland, South Carolina, New Hampshire, Virginia, Rhode Island, Vermont, Kentucky, Ohio, Louisiana, Indiana, Mississippi, Illinois, Alabama, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Kansas, West Virginia, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Washington, Idaho, Wyoming, and Utah, the Acting Governor of Arkansas, the Governors of New Mexico, Arizona, Alaska, Hawaii, and Porto Rico; William Jennings Bryan, Representative Theodore E. Burton, Brig. Gen. Alexander Mackenzie, Andrew Carnegie, James J. Hill, George C. Pardee, John F. Hill, John Mitchell, Herbert Knox Smith, Gifford Pinchot, W. J. McGee, F. H. Newell, Col. Charles S. Bromwell, Capt. Frank R. McCoy, and Capt. Archibald Butt.

The President has invited his Cabinet officers to meet at the executive offices to-morrow, shortly before 11 o'clock, and attend with him the conference of Governors and other officials in the East Room.

PROSPERITY LUNCHEON.

A. Barton Hepburn Entertains the Sunshine Delegates from the West.

E. C. Simmons of St. Louis, President of the National Prosperity Association, and several other members of the committee of that organization who called on President Roosevelt on Monday, were entertained at luncheon yesterday by the Executive Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which A. Barton Hepburn, President of the Chase National Bank, is Chairman. The luncheon was informal, and was held in the Chamber's rooms on Liberty Street.

Mr. Simmons and his colleagues are in New York to enlist the co-operation of commercial organizations here, and the luncheon was made a means of getting in closer touch with the leaders of business here. After the luncheon, Mr. Simmons said:

"We came to New York with a view to securing co-operation and approval for our endeavors. The country has been sick, so to speak, but the illness has passed, and it would, naturally, return to a normal condition of financial security and strength within a certain period. Our object is to hasten the return of complete strength and confidence, to make people understand that there is no reason for anything but confidence."

President Hepburn was asked whether he believed natural conditions favored a return of good times at once.

"I certainly do," he replied. "All prosperity comes from the soil. The crops this year promise to be remarkably prolific. Let these crops reach the market and let the people understand that there is no longer any occasion for financial worry, and the country will enter upon an unprecedented period of prosperity."

Mr. Hepburn said he was not in a position to say what part the Chamber of Commerce would take in the movement inaugurated in St. Louis.

STOLYPIN FIGHTS REACTION.

Russian Premier Approves Denunciation in Duma of Arbitrary Acts.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 12.—An Octobrist campaign against the excessive prerogatives usurped by the provincial satraps has begun. It is part of a determined effort to further centralize power in Premier Stolypin's hands and to weed out notorious Governors whose ultra-reactionary zeal constantly has run counter to the Government's policies. Hitherto they have not been amenable to control, owing to protection in high places.

A brilliant and powerful arraignment of the Ministry of the Interior for its adherence to the absolute and arbitrary methods of administration originated by Von Plehve and Sipiaguin was delivered by Vassili A. Maklakoff, Constitutional Democrat, in the Duma to-day. It was with the full cognizance and approval of M. Stolypin.

M. Maklakoff was generously applauded, even the Conservatives joining in the demonstration. The administration was under fire from several other members.

Neither Premier Stolypin nor the Vice Minister of the Interior was present to defend the Ministry. M. Stolypin intends to permit the Duma's deliberations to work their full effect without an energetic counter-move.

GUNNESS ACCOMPLICE PICKED FOR ARREST

Police Believe That New Evidence of Farm Murders Will Draw Confession from Lamphere.

3 RINGS ADD TO MYSTERY

Scissors Bent Like Surgical Instruments Are Found in Ruins—Moe and Budesberg New Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 12.—Evidence which the authorities believe will go far toward clearing the mystery of the murders at the Gunness farm accumulated to-day with rapidity. From guarded statements by officials and a few facts which have become known, it is believed that the investigators are preparing to spring a coup—the arrest of an accomplice of Mrs. Gunness in the murders, the production of a witness who will drive Ray Lamphere to confession.

It is known that in another Indiana city a clue is being run down. Whether the quest fails or succeeds is a question that cannot be answered before to-morrow night or perhaps the next day. The nature of the clue is such that should it prove valid the case of Ray Lamphere, accused of burning the Gunness house and suspected of possible complicity in the murder of Andrew K. Helgelein, will take an unexpected turn.

Prosecutor R. N. Smith asserts that his measure of State's evidence is overflowing in Lamphere's case. It was rumored to-day that certain witnesses against Lamphere had been taken before the Grand Jury, but the prosecutor refused to discuss the matter beyond declaring that "personal affairs" probably will prevent him from presenting the case to the Grand Jury to-morrow, as he had planned to do. He added that in his opinion the case will not come up until next week.

Lamphere's Hair Cut and Saved.

Lamphere's hair was cut to-day and all the hair was saved for use as evidence should it be deemed advisable to make such use of it. Hair was found in the hand of A. K. Helgelein, a victim, showing a death struggle.

Mayor Darrow of Laporte, who is interested in the defense of Lamphere, practically admitted to-night that the defense will not contest the assertion of the State that Lamphere was in Laporte on the night of Jan. 14, when Andrew K. Helgelein is believed to have been murdered at the Gunness farm.

A letter is to be introduced written by Mrs. Gunness in Norwegian and given to Lamphere to take with him to Michigan City to give to John O. Moo, who it now develops probably had been murdered in the Gunness house about Christmas time in 1906. The defense expects to prove that this letter was given to Lamphere for the purpose of making it appear that Moo was still alive and to get Lamphere out of the way, so that the murder of Helgelein could be carried out.

It is probable that the defense will say that Lamphere disobeyed the woman's orders in explanation of his note, waiting all night in Michigan City for Moo's "arrival," as he says he was told by Mrs. Gunness to do. Information respecting Moo and two other probable victims of Mrs. Gunness was obtained to-day and added to the growing list of crime evidence in the hands of the prosecutor.

Moo a Prize Victim.

Moo seems to have been one of the prize victims of the Gunness farm. His case is similar to that of Ole Budsberg and Andrew K. Helgelein. On Dec. 26, 1906, Moo drew $1,100 from the First National Bank in Laporte, while he was staying at the Gunness farm. His friends have not heard from him since. Henry Gerhart of Scandinavia, Wis., a small town near Iola, from which Ole Budsberg, another victim, came, has been listed as one of the unfortunates who met death at the Gunness farm.

The name of the third probable victim has not been recorded yet, but a description is contained in a deposition made before Coroner C. S. Mack to-night by Frank K. Coffeen, a bricklayer. Coffeen said that in May or June, 1907, he was working on the foundations of the Gunness barn. At the Gunness house at the time was a man with a gray beard trimmed to a point. He weighed from 150 to 160 pounds, and was 5 feet 8 inches or 5 feet 9 inches in height. He wore a soft hat and carried a brown leather satchel.

Coffeen heard him talking with Mrs. Gunness about money and investments, but did not get the details. Coffeen said he noted that Mrs. Gunness frequently went out to scratch in the earth in the chicken yard, where recently the graves of her visitors were discovered.

Three Rings Found on Body.

Evidence which has hitherto been suppressed was made public in the Gunness tragedy to-day. It is contained in the report of Dr. J. L. Gray, who performed the autopsy on the body which the authorities have steadfastly claimed is that of Mrs. Belle Gunness. Dr. Gray, in his report, tells of three rings which were found upon the body, and also reveals the fact that the right hand, hitherto declared missing, is still in existence.

The rings which might be expected to reveal the identity of the wearer only add to the mystery of the case. Two of them contain inscriptions, one being, "P. S. to J. S., Aug. 22, '04," and the other, "P. G. to J. S., 3-5, '95."

Mrs. Gunness's husband was Peter Gunness, but the identity of "J. S." and "P. S." is a puzzle which none of the local officials would attempt to explain. Jennie Olsen, it is suggested, may have been the owner of the rings, but the size of the circles, taken in connection with the date, and the fact that she was born in 1879, preclude this as a definite conclusion.

Dr. Gray in his official report also describes at length the remnant of clothing and night robes found with the four bodies. One of the night robes was that of an adult, the length of the inside seam of the sleeve being 17 inches. The gown was trimmed with lace and ribbon, and its total length according to the remnants at hand was 52 inches. Remnants of a child's night dress and several undergarments were also found.

Dr. Gray's report concludes as follows.

"From the examination of the adult female it is impossible to determine the exact cause of death."

Scissors and Knives in Ashes.

Additional evidence regarding the methods by which the persons whose bodies were found on the Gunness farm met death was unearthed this morning. Almost two dozen pairs of scissors, bent and curved in the fashion of surgical instruments, are said to have been found in the ashes in the cellar, and in addition three knives, two of a surgical character and another an unmistakable dirk, were picked up.

In the absence of evidence to the contrary it is believed that the dirk may have been the chief weapon employed in the series of murders which have brought notoriety to the farm.

The fact that there was no mark of penetrating wounds on Andrew Helgelein's body is a possible refutation of this theory. But it is pointed out that Helgelein, according to the findings of Dr. J. H. William Meyer, as made public yesterday, succumbed only after a fierce struggle, in which he tore a handful of hair from the person of his murderer. Chloroform or some other deadly drug is thought to have been used to subdue the death struggle of the South Dakota farmer, after which some deadly poison was used to encompass his death.

In all the other bodies on the farm there is no negative evidence to disprove the dirk theory, although the condition of the bodies precludes definite information on this point. The knives and scissors are thought to have been used in dismembering the bodies. Each corpse was mutilated in practically the same manner, the bodies of the latest victims showing particularly expert anatomical work.

Wore Belt Constructed for Knives.

An interesting side light on the character of Mrs. Gunness has been furnished by Mrs. C. O. Lapham of Laporte, who for six years was a neighbor of the woman. Mrs. Lapham says that on the only occasion on which she called upon her neighbor her hostess sat near an open window. A strong breeze through this opening blew aside the folds of a loose house dress which Mrs. Gunness was wearing and revealed about her body a wide belt containing pouches of various sizes and sheaths which seemed to have been constructed for knives.

The legal forces of the defense were strengthened yesterday by the addition of Ellsworth E. Weir, an attorney of some note in this section. His retention followed closely on the arrival of William Lamphere, father of the prisoner.

People now want clothes that are different.

That's a fact, because Brill-directed tailoring shops here in New York have been busy every day this season and are the only New York shops that have not been shut down for from three weeks to three months.

When other shops were dull these Brill shops were busy tailoring smart fabrics and smart models—the "different" clothes—that men are buying now.

And they're buying them in Brill stores because Brill stores alone in New York have at a range of prices a complete assortment of the models and fabrics to-day demanded.

Brill clothes $15 to $45.

PRIEST TRAILED HIM HERE FROM EUROPE

Viennese Lawyer Followed to Paris, London, and Then to New York.

ACCUSED OF $10,000 THEFT

Police Led to His Flat by the Clergyman — Prisoner May Be Extradited.

A chase of more than three months' duration, which extended from Vienna, through Paris and London to this country, ended yesterday afternoon, when the Rev. Father Raphael F. X. Gnielinski, until two years ago in charge of the Polish Catholic Church of St. Casimir, in St. Louis, and three detectives from Headquarters climbed the stairs of a flat in the tenement at 154 East Sixty-eighth Street and asked for Rolf Osten.

"I am he," replied a man who opened the door, and to a second question of the detectives he added: "Yes, I am also known as Karl Fochler."

Then Father Gnielinski stepped from a shadow which had concealed him in the back of the hall, exclaiming:

"Arrest that man. I charge him with stealing $10,000 from me."

At the sight of the priest and the sound of his voice the detectives say that Fochler collapsed and admitted the theft. He was taken to Headquarters and locked up. He will be arraigned to-day and probably held to await extradition to Vienna.

According to Father Gnielinski, the man is an ex-member of the Vienna Reichstag and a former well-known lawyer in that city. He has been here less than four months, yet in that time the detectives say he has attained a prominent place in the Polish colony, only recently having been elected leader of the Black Eagle Orchestra, a Polish social organization, as well as President of a local Polish society.

Father Gnielinski, who, almost unaided, traced the man from Vienna to the Eighty-sixth Street flat, told last night of his acquaintance and dealings with Fochler. He met the man in Austria two years ago. The priest had just given up his charge in St. Louis and had moved to Austria to live in retirement for the rest of his life. Shortly after his arrival in Vienna he became involved in legal trouble which compelled him to deposit a bond of $10,000.

According to the priest, he employed Fochler as his lawyer, and gave him $20,000 worth of securities, a large part of them American railroad stocks, on which to raise the $10,000. Fochler did his bidding, said the priest, and eventually, having won his suit and regained the $10,000, Father Gnielinski says he asked Fochler to get back the securities.

After repeated demands had been made upon him, Fochler told the priest he had sold the securities for their face value, and had kept $10,000 as his fee. Father Gnielinski sued him, and says the court ordered the attorney to return the money, giving him until February of this year to do so. At that time Father Gnielinski made formal demand for payment, but before the matter was settled Fochler disappeared.

The Vienna police traced the man to Paris, but lost track of him there. Meantime Father Gnielinski had sworn out a warrant for Fochler, and after getting this indorsed by Charles S. Francis, United States Ambassador at Vienna, the priest came to the United States, having learned that Fochler was here.

In this city he went to St. Joseph's Home, at 117 Broad Street, and interested Supt. Leon F. Wazater in his case. The two men tried to trace Fochler, but, failing, they finally appealed to the police, and Detectives McKenna, Young, and Cassassa were put on the case.

The detectives could not find Fochler and so on Sunday McKenna advertised in the newspapers for "a lawyer wanted by a downtown bank for Austrian and German business." Among the many replies was one signed "Rolf Osten."

"That's Fochler's writing," said the priest when he saw this letter. "I should know it anywhere."

So yesterday he accompanied the detectives to the Eighty-sixth Street flat. According to the detectives, Fochler said on the way downtown that he was sorry for the theft and would return the money were it not for the fact that he had lost every cent in speculation on the Paris Boursa.

LETTERS TO AND FROM KING.

More Given Out Showing That the N. Y. Life Helped the Merchants' Assn.

More copies of letters which passed between the New York Life Insurance Company and William F. King, Chairman of the Metropolitan stockholders' committee which instituted the charges looking to the removal of the District Attorney, were given out yesterday. They show that during the four years that Mr. King was President of the Merchants' Association the New York Life Insurance Company contributed to the association more than $15,000, chiefly through John A. McCall, then President. In some instances they were charged to rebates, to the sinking fund, or to advertising. Mr. King has already said that the New York Life did contribute largely to the work of the Merchants' Association in the way of rebates for rent and in return for advertising, the association carrying pictures of the New York Life Building on its envelopes and circulars.

The first letter was written in June, 1907, when the Merchants' Association was just started and had agreed to take offices in the New York Life Building. It tells of 375,000 circulars which the association was about to send out all over the country, each bearing a cut of the New York Life Building, and says:

I believe that this will result in an enormous advertisement for your company, and I think you should deal with us very liberally. I trust you will take under your serious consideration the advisability of contributing to our fund. I have been severely criticised for renting the quarters we have taken in your building, but believe that a broad gauge policy is essential to our success.

More letters show that on the receipt of this letter Mr. McCall arranged with the Treasurer of his company to contribute $2,500 to the association. Other letters are to the same effect. A bill submitted by Mr. King read:

For advertisement in connection with publication of 200,000 copies of "Summer Days and Nights in New York."

This was O. K.'d by Mr. McCall and a check in payment was sent.

Mr. King repeated last night that all the contributions in question were made in a perfectly proper way as a rebate for advertising on the high rental paid for the Merchants' Association offices in the New York Life Building; that the association's books were open, and that there was nothing to conceal about their receipts, or, for that matter, about their expenditures, which had helped materially the prosperity of New York City. He went on to add:

"All that this shows is that the New York Life Company is in sympathy with District Attorney Jerome; the letters are aimed at me, but I think they are throwing a boomerang. They're licked, but it's a wise man who knows he's licked."

SLAUGHTER AT RUSSIAN JAIL.

Prisoners Attempt a Wholesale Delivery and Many Are Killed.

YEKATERINOSLAV, Russia, May 12.—The prisoners in the Government jail here made an attempt to break out this afternoon. Their effort was vain, and was attended with a heavy loss of life. After making a breach in the wall of the guardroom with a bomb, the prisoners lined up and made a rush to get through the opening.

In the meanwhile the guard had been summoned, and ten of the prisoners who had succeeded in getting outside the walls were shot to death. Other mutineers were either killed or wounded in the interior of the prison, and the death list is a long one.

SIMFEROPOL, Russia, May 12.—A large number of prisoners confined in the jail here made their escape to-day after killing the Deputy Governor, the prison doctor, and two warders. The Governor of the jail was wounded.

USED GIRL'S PICTURE; VERDICT FOR $6,000

Damages Given Against Medicine Company for Printing Her Photograph Without Consent.

BROUGHT HER INTO RIDICULE

Frances Wynne Testifies She Was Forced to Give Up Her Place—Jury Believed Story of Deception.

Frances Wynne, a saleswoman in a Sixth Avenue department store, sued the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company before Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court yesterday to recover damages for using her photograph in their advertisements without her consent. After hearing the evidence the jury awarded $6,000 to Miss Wynne.

Miss Wynne was employed in 1905 as a saleswoman in the Simpson-Crawford department store. Another employe was Miss Margaret Tierney. According to the evidence brought out by Miss Wynne's counsel, Alfred Steckler, Miss Tierney one day approached Miss Wynne and told her that a Miss White, a customer, so admired her beauty that she wanted her to go to a certain photographer and have her picture taken.

"She told me they would cost nothing," testified Miss Wynne, "and that I would get eleven for myself, while the photographer would keep one for use in his show case."

Miss Wynne said she accordingly had her photograph taken and thought no more about it until May 22, 1907, when a New York newspaper published an advertisement of the Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound, which included a testimonial from a "Miss Elizabeth Wynn of 205 Eighth Avenue," saying that the medicine had cured her of certain ills. Above the testimonial appeared a copy of the photograph which Miss Wynne had had taken at the instigation of Miss Tierney and Miss White.

The publication of the advertisement caused her life to become unbearable, Miss Wynne said. Her fellow-workers made fun of her. This was not improved by the appearance of the same advertisement and picture in other New York newspapers, and finally, Miss Wynne said, she was obliged to give up her employment. She testified that she never wrote the testimonial or signed it, that she had never tasted the medicine, and had never lived at the address given.

Miss Ciara A. White, who said she was engaged in literary work for James T. Wetherall, an advertising agent of 221 Columbus Avenue, Boston, testified that she was employed by Wetherall to get testimonials from women for the Pinkam medicine, and that Miss Wynne got the eleven photographs of herself on the understanding that she would sign a testimonial and use the medicine. Later she received from Miss Tierney what purported to be Miss Wynne's testimonial.

Miss Tierney said that Miss Wynne promised to sign the testimonial under the arrangement described. On cross-examination by Mr. Steckler, she admitted that she wrote and signed it herself, but said she did so with Miss Wynne's approval, although she said the latter never saw the testimonial. Miss Tierney further admitted that she had been instrumental in getting other testimonials, although only out of friendship for Miss White.

Wetherall on the stand admitted that he was under contract to the Pinkham Medicine Company to handle their advertising and as to the employment of Miss White in obtaining testimonials for the medicine. He produced the original of Miss Wynne's testimonial.

The Cleveland visitors burned up a lot of incense yesterday at the shrine of their baseball Joss. That commendable young man had outpitched, outbatted, and outrun anything on two legs at the grounds of the American League, and as a result now is, among a worthy constituency, the most popular man in the States. And that goes if "Bill" Taft hears it.

Mr. Joss is a citizen to remark. He is firm at the base, and goes away up yonder in the air, a good deal like the Times Building. Unlike the Times Building, however, Mr. Joss wears a yellow undershirt, which he displays with engaging candor when about to give battle to the enemy. It might not be inappropriate to refer to the quaintly costumed Joss as the yellow peril.

Mr. Joss in his pitching capacity struck out no fewer than five Yankees, which is a good many Yankees for even Boss Joss to strike out. Mr. Joss in his batting moments slammed out an eighth inning offering that was hotter far than love. While the attention of Mr. Griffith's men was centred upon the ball, which was trying to force its way through the gin sign, the thoughtful Hinchman strolled home for the first run of the game, and the energetic Joss, aptly styled by an earlier poet the Human Slat, got as far as third before he tired.

Apropos of the gin sign selected as target by the Cleveland pitcher, a word of remonstrance must be addressed to the park management. The grounds abound in grateful and comforting references to refreshment. One pictorial display advises a little wine for the stomach's sake. Another speaks alluringly of the healthful highball, and the gin injunction has to do with rickeys. About the time the suggestion has sunk in the visitor, fagged out with the exertions of score keeping and pencil sharpening, saunters to the rear of the grand stand and demands a drink. "Certainly," says the polite clerk; "will you have ginger ale or sarsaparilla?"

The only sign of gin at American League Park is on the boards.

But, of course, Mr. Joss is not accountable for this regrettable condition. He led a blameless life for nine innings, and the crowd was with him. That is to say, the crowd didn't want to see the home fellows beaten, but they had to give it to the visiting pitcher for his steadiness and several-sidedness.

Very fast ball was played throughout the afternoon. The score shows that. For the most part it was three men up—and three men out. That's playing some, and getting home before sundown—for those who live in the neighborhood. Up to the eighth inning not a man had got further than third. With the run for Hinchman that Joss was responsible for the Clevelands stood one to the good, and the crowd rooted hopefully as the town boys went to bat. Ball and Kleinow went out at first, but Doyle hit to left, and the fans perked up a bit. Niles popped up a foul that even a police Captain, like Madigan of the game of the day before, could have caught. But Bemis, the Cleveland catcher, made a muff. His friends explained that the sun was in his eyes, or the wind in his ears, or something, and he couldn't hear the ball coming. That encouraged the gallery, and when Niles, a few seconds later, slid a short one down toward first and set out to beat it, the loyalty was loud. Stovall ran for it, and then ran back to the base. He must have reached the bag before Niles, because Umpire Evans said he did, and called Niles out. Clark Griffith stamped his foot quite angrily when the decision was given, and spoke sharply to the umpire. Mr. Evans seemed bored.

After having found Pitcher Doyle in the eighth, the Cleveland cultivated the acquaintance in the ninth. Stovall cuffed the ball away out to centre, and made two bases. Lajoie failed to reach first, but Bemis made a nice clean hit to left, scoring Stovall, and that made two runs, the total for the game, for New York went out in one-two-three order in their half.

PITTSBURG, May 12.—The Giants got a running start in the early part of to-day's game and turned the tables on the Pirates to the tune of 8-2. The exhibition on the part of the visitors was a complete somersault over that of yesterday. There were many sparkling bits of fielding during the afternoon's entertainment, but Tenney carried off the stellar honors. The Giants' first baseman accepted thirteen chances, and many of them difficult, without an error. Nothing was too difficult for Tenney to gobble up. Besides his fielding, he slammed out a two-bagger and a single with his bat, but in the latter respect he ran second to Donlin, who was responsible for a homer, which scored two runs, and a single.

Wiltse was opposed by Maddox for four innings, and afterward contended against Young, who relieved Maddox. In each instance he was the master, and showed much versatility in his delivery. The Giants made eight hits, but they came at a time when every one counted, while the best Pittsburg could do was to garner five safe smashes. Each team was guilty of numerous mislays. At no time did the locals threaten to do any swatting, as the visiting southpaw had them guessing from the start. Pittsburg was without the services of Wagner, who was injured in yesterday's game.

The Giants went into action in the second inning, scoring a run on Devlin's hunt, Maddox's wild throw, and a sacrifice. Swacina's double and Gibson's single brought the Pirates up on even terms. In the third, after Tenney doubled, Donlin smashed to centre for four bases, scoring Tenney. Maddox went to pieces in the third, passing Bresnahan, Doyle, Bridwell, and Shannon, the latter forcing Bresnahan across in Jannin's place. Tenney's long single brought in Doyle and Bridwell, three runs on one hit. A brace of runs were added by the Giants in the seventh on a base on balls, a double steal, and safe hits by Donlin and Seymour. Devlin's error was responsible for the tally made by Pittsburg in the second half of the seventh. The score:

Cornell and Princeton Make Up.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., May 12.—Cornell and Princeton have patched up their quarrel which arose over the refusal of the Tigers to play the ball game scheduled for Percy Field Saturday, May 2. Princeton left the field because of wet grounds. A statement was issued to-day by Judge Irvine, President of the Cornell Athletic Council, which exonerates Princeton from blame, and says that both managements misunderstood each other.

TURF STARS TO RUN IN BIG HANDICAP

Fifteen Horses Named to Start for the $12,720 Metropolitan To-day.

McCARTER THE FAVORITE

Great Race Will Be the Feature of the Opening of the Fashionable Belmont Park Meeting.

With fifteen horses, the best that have figured in racing this Spring, named to start, the Metropolitan Handicap will be run this afternoon, as the feature of the opening of the Westchester Racing Association's Spring meeting on the Belmont Park race course. The great race is the most valuable of the season in the East to date, and, ranking as one of the classics of the turf, the Metropolitan Handicap has attracted a vast amount of attention from racegoers and the general public, entirely aside from the importance that the fashionable world attaches to the opening of the Belmont Park season of racing.

Two stakes are set for decision on the opening day, but for the public that will make up the patronage this afternoon there is practically only one race on the card, and that is the fourth running of the Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park and the eighteenth running of the stake since it was inaugurated at Morris Park. The race, one mile for three-year-olds, with $10,000 added money, will have a gross value of $12,720, with the full list of horses named actually starting, and the fifteen horses that are named to run include the entries of most of the prominent stables of the East, with the winners of a number of the great events of the turf among the prospective runners.

All but two of the field named to start have raced at the earlier meetings of the Spring, and though several of the notables, chief among them James R. Keene's Brooklyn Handicap winner Superman and F. R. Hitchcock's Saratoga Handicap winner Dandelion, were beaten in their only races of the Spring, public form is fairly well established through the full list.

In anticipation of the opening betting on the race to-day the speculative element among the patrons of the turf fixed upon the Newcastle Stable's four-year-old McCarter, winner of the Excelsior Handicap, as the favorite, with B. Schriber's four-year-old Jack Atkin, winner of the Carter and Queens County Handicaps and the Montague Stakes as the next choice, while the other horses rated closest in the betting were Superman, Dandelion, and Brookdale Nymph. The entries for the race, with the weights, the jockeys engaged to ride, and the probable opening betting, follow:

The Metropolitan Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward, with $10,000 added; one mile. To be run as the third race.

GIRLS COMPETE IN "GYM."

Public Schools 13, 15, and 104 in Close Contest at Stuyvesant Building.

The normal development of about seventy-five members of the Girls' Branch of the Public Schools Athletic League was demonstrated yesterday by an athletic competition between three classes of elementary schools in the gymnasium of the Stuyvesant High School. Under the command of Miss Elizabeth Burchenel, the children from the three different schools were mixed, except in the dances, and divided into three arbitrary groups, to represent three classes in one school, to eliminate individual or school rivalry.

The entertainment consisted of nine events—three dancing, five athletic, and one gymnastic—and the competition was keen, each event being closely contested. Several new gymnastic features were introduced and enjoyed by a big crowd, which included Gen. George W. Wingate, Dr. and Mrs. Luther Halsey Gulick, Mrs. James Speyer, Mrs. Egerton L. Winthrop, Jr., Miss Jessie H. Bancroft, Miss Catherine S. Leverich, Miss Mary A. Wallaston, Mrs. J. J. Storrow of Boston, and many others interested in the Public Schools Athletic League.

Each class comprised fifteen young girls between the ages of 9 and 14 and from grades 6 A to 8 B. The classes were designated by colors. In the ball throw the girls lined up and threw a large inflated, leather-incased ball, similar to an association football. Lines were drawn across the gymnasium, and points credited to the competitors according to the distance the ball was thrown.

The dancing was well executed, and showed the degree of perfection to which the young girls had been brought in calisthenics. Public School 13, Manhattan, selected a Hungarian dance, and performed in a very creditable manner. The Highland fling of Public School 15, Manhattan, brought out many of the best figures of the Scotch dance, while the Russian dance of the pupils of Public School 104, Manhattan, showed the result of long practice. The judges, in rendering their decision, considered memory, form, and spirit. The first award went to Public School 13, with Public School 15 second.

In the competitive events the Whites scored 20 points, Blue 18, and Red 16.

SULLIVAN REINSTATED.

Registration Committee Accepts Explanation from Athlete.

James P. Sullivan of the Irish-American Athletic Club, and the present American champion mile runner, who recently suspended himself by running an exhibition race against a horse in aid of a charitable institution, was restored to good standing by the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association at its meeting in the St. Bartholomew Athletic Club last night. The committee took into view Sullivan's explanation of the race, and reinstated him without much discussion.

The West Side Branch, Young Men's Christian Association, will be awarded gold medals for their dual meet with the Bath Beach Swimming Club in the recent Sportsman's Show in Madison Square Garden. The original written agreement for the meet provided for gold medals for all prizes, whereas when they were delivered to the winners they proved to be of silver.

G. Bartholomew, who at the athletic meet of the Irish-American Athletic Club in February won the mile walk and was protested as a professional, was officially declared a "pro." by the committee last night.

CANTER FOR TRANCE.

Filly Captures the Feature Event of the Jamaica Races.

The one real spectacle of the closing of the Jamaica meeting yesterday was the race for the Suffolk Stakes, and the style in which Trance, the best filly of the Spring, won. It was not really a race, so impressively did Trance win. The spectators had a genuine thrill when she burst away from the post and, slipping her field in the first twenty yards, cantered away from the others so quickly that the contest was over before the horses reached the far turn. Trance is the Ben Brush-Fair Vision filly which, sold by James R. Keene last Fall when he reduced the number of yearlings that he intended to train, showed herself to be about the best of her age at the California Winter meetings, and earned about $5,000 in stakes for H. T. Griffin, in return for the $500 he paid for her, before he sold her to Jamaica to G. M. Odom. Her effort yesterday in the Suffolk Stakes, five furlongs for two-year-olds, was her second race for her new owner, she having run a dead heat with Fitz Herbert in the Elmhurst stakes in her first race for Odom.

Even cantering as she did, she finished the five furlongs in 1:00 1-5, or within a second and a fifth of the track record, and there seems not the least doubt that had Musgrave, who rode her, let her gallop out, she would have set a new track mark. The summaries;

Time—1:01. Won, ridden out, by a neck; two lengths between second and third. Winner ch. g., by Clifford-Fiesole. Owned by H. P. Whitney and trained by A. J. Joyner.

Speedway Matinees To-day.

The regular Spring series of matinees by the Road Drivers' Association will begin this afternoon on the Speedway Drive. A number of silver cups have been donated, and the horses are in good condition for the events. The racing will be divided between trotting and pacing, and eleven events are on the programme. As the horses win they will be moved up into faster classes by the Brush Committee. About fifty horses are entered in the races, many of which have been seen in Sunday brushes on the Speedway. The events will be half-mile dashes, two in three.

Kohn to Lead C. C. N. Y. Swimmers.

Ralph A. Kohn, 1911, was yesterday afternoon elected captain of the College of the City of New York swimming team for next season. During the past season he played goal on the university water polo team.

GLIDDEN ROUTE OMITS NEW YORK

Official Announcement Made of Purpose to Evade New Jersey on Tour.

AMERICAN MOTOR SHOW

Preparing for the Big Contests Coming In the Next Fortnight—A. C. A. Announces Plans.

Official announcement was made last night by those who are planning the details of the Glidden tour route that the tourists would not touch New York. In order to avoid New Jersey, the cars will go directly north from Philadelphia until they reach Albany, making the one-night stop necessary in the distance at Milford. From Albany the cars will go east through New England as far as Maine, returning over the White Mountains and finishing the tour eventually at Saratoga Springs.

The route as outlined takes in Buffalo, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, Albany, and Boston, making various stops en route so as to occupy about ten days in reaching the Hub before turning back to finish the tour at Saratoga. Secretary Dal Lewis, in the six-cylinder Premier Pathfinder, in charge of Ray McNamara, has gone to Albany and will lay out the New England route finally this week. Full announcement of the itinerary will be made immediately afterward.

The American Motor Car Manufacturers' Association completed at its meeting yesterday further details of its show plans. The meeting was attended by Benjamin Briscoe of the Maxwell Briscoe Company, R. E. Olds of the Reo, James Couzens of the Ford, H. O. Smith of the Premier, G. V. Rogers of the Mitchell, S. H. Mora of the Mora, W. H. Vandervoort of the Moline, C. G. Stoddard of the Stoddard-Dayton, Charles E. Lewis of the Jackson, and Alfred Reeves. The Show Committee reported that the arrangements for the Grand Central Palace exhibition, Dec. 31 to Jan. 7, had been completed, and the Importers' Automobile Salon and the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers would co-operate with the association, E. R. Hollander representing the importers and D. J. Post the Motor and Accessory Manufacturers on the Show Committee. It is planned also to hold a show in Chicago in conjunction with the Chicago Automobile Club and the Chicago Motor Club. An appropriation of $500 was voted for the American Automobile Association's Good Roads Convention, to be held in Buffalo July 7 and 8.

Preparations are going on for the three big contests that are being arranged for the near future. The time trials on Hillside Avenue, Jamaica, on June 5 will attract a big entry. Already assurances of twenty cars have been received by Fred Wagner, although the entry blanks have just been sent out. The events call for a two-mile, and two-mile, and 5-kilometer trials, and at each distance there are seven classes. These are as follows:

Gasoline Cars—Under $1,250, from $1,251 to $2,000, from $2,001 to $3,000, from $3,001 to $4,000, four cylinder cars over $4,000, six cylinder cars over $2,500.
Steam Cars—All classes.
Free for All—Any motive power or types.
Stock Chassis—Cars of 301 to 550 cubic inches piston displacement.

The Wilkesbarre hill-climb for Decoration Day is also assured a big entry. Practically the same classification is arranged as opened for the Jamaica time trials. In the expectation that a large number of cars will tour to Wilkesbarre the club is arranging to place sign posts on all the roads leading from principal cities. The tour from New York is 137 miles, and would take about eight hours of comfortable running. The route is by way of Newark, Madison, Morristown, and Hackettstown, where the Delaware is crossed and followed to the Water Gap, then through Stroudsburg and Stauffers to Wilkesbarre.

Fred Wagner is boosting the Pimlico race meeting at Baltimore, scheduled for the same day, and declares that there will be the greatest array of racing cars in the contests there that will be gathered together at any meeting this year. Cedrino in his Fiat racer is one of those entered for the big meet.

The Automobile Club of America announces the arrangement for an exchange of courtesies with the Chicago Automobile Club whereby the privileges of each clubhouse are offered to members of the other club when visiting their respective cities. Announcement is also made of the arrangement by the Bureau of Tours of the club to issue triptypes for touring in Germany, Switzerland, and Holland, and, with a fortnight's notice of triptypes for France, Italy, Belgium, and Austria, provided specifications of the car are furnished.

The A. C. A. issues a warning that speed limitations are being rigidly enforced between Metuchen and New Brunswick, N. J., (twenty miles;) on Mountain Avenue in Westfield, N. J., (twelve miles;) on South Orange Avenue, in South Orange, N. J., as well as at Hartsd

THE PERFECTED CURRENCY BILL.

Mr. VREELAND'S perfected currency bill provides for a currency which will "cost the bank 5 per cent.," in the words of the official description. This leaves to conjecture how much more it will cost the borrower, and establishes the fact that the perfect currency will not be cheap. It cannot be so, for "the United States will require actual cash assets amounting to six or seven times the amount of the notes outstanding." It would scarcely seem that the proposers of this currency can have much confidence in it themselves, when they require such heaping up of security, which would be superfluous if it were at all fit for the purpose. Assuredly this is not the last word of banking science. An engineer who utilized the resources at his command in this lavish manner would betray either his own incompetence for his task or his distrust of his materials. It is absurd to speak of distrust of American commercial paper when the New York Clearing House carried the Nation through the worst panic it ever experienced, and not one dollar went to default. Assuredly there are living men, even living Americans, who with such materials could produce a currency equally safe, and more within the means of borrowers.

The conference approved this bill 128 to 16. It is an impressive vote, and proves the minority wrong—in the opinion of the majority. The vote may carry the bill through the House, but it would seem that it can scarcely go further. If it could be tacked to the enacting clause of the Aldrich bill it might be sent direct to conference, and something might emerge from the shuffle. But the Aldrich bill is out of reach in Mr. FOWLER'S committee, which is perfectly capable of sitting on the perfected bill, if it could get hold of it. Accordingly the perfected bill is to be moved from the floor of the House, and will then go to Senator ALDRICH'S committee. What Senator ALDRICH would do to this perversion of his ideas if he felt at liberty there can be no doubt. He would keep it as carefully as Mr. FOWLER keeps the Aldrich bill. Still, the political necessity is now stronger than the financial necessity, and something may be put through.

The perfected bill is at least much nearer perfection than anything which preceded, and its capacity for harm is as limited as for good. It would be easy to make merry at the artless manner in which the rivalry between a bond-secured currency and a commercial paper currency is settled by authorizing both. And it is necessary to marvel at the free and easy manner in which it is proposed to authorize the issue of banknote currency by a species of banking club, purely voluntary, unincorporated associations, with less legal coherence than private partnerships. But the final form of the bill seems so far from fixed, and the prospect of issue of any of this currency, if authorized, is so remote, being postponed to the next panic, that detailed criticism is hardly warranted.

TAMMANY'S REMOVAL.

Tammany has stoutly resisted the uptown movement on Manhattan Island may years. From almost the beginning of its existence, back in the eighteenth century, it clung to the neighborhood of the City Hall Park. Its splendid new building, erected on the corner of Park Row and Frankfort Street in 1811, was one of the sights of the town, like Dr. SPRING'S church, Mechanics' Hall, and the old Park Theatre. These, indeed, were something nobler than mere buildings; they were edifices. Tammany stayed in this house on Park Row until 1867, a full half century and more of political activity. There the Madisonians defied the Martling men or Clintonians in 1812; there, in private councils, the name Democrat was first applied to the old Republican, anti-Whig, anti-Federalist Party. The new official name, Republican-Democratic, was used in the charter elections of 1816. There DANIEL SICKLES and others pledged the loyal support of the Columbian Order at the outbreak of the civil war. There the Tweed plots were hatched.

The new Tammany Hall, on the site of the University Medical College, which had been burned with the Academy of Music in 1866, was built in 1867. It has not been a hotel and drinking place like the Park Row building, but its vast hall, used for the Democratic Convention of 1868, when SEYMOUR was nominated for the Presidency, has always been a dancing school and popular public ballroom, and for a time in 1868-9 was used for variety theatricals on a monster scale. There was always a small theatre in the structure, and this was long used for German plays. To say that it has always been Tony Pastor's belittles Mr. PASTOR, who was one of the notable personages of this metropolis long before Tammany went northward to Fourteenth Street.

At Union Square Tammany has thrived, in spite of deadly influences within and fierce opposition without, as it thrived at City Hall Park, and WILSON MACDONALD'S noble Indian chief from his outlook on the façade has generally stood as a symbol of calm defiance. Tammany has been rebuked and beaten, but never crushed. Only the other day a distinguished French journalist was frantically calling it an ulcer. It has been called many things, and is always hard to classify. It is a club, an order, a clique, a party, yet none of these and all of them together. It is Tammany. Wherever it goes it will carry the greatest political power ever concentrated and harmonized in New York City.

IN SIGHT OF THE BIRD.

At the end of a sharp and rather acrid debate between Mr. SERENO PAYNE and Mr. WILLIAMS, the Democratic leader, on the respective iniquities of their parties, Mr. WILLIAMS challenged his opponent "to publish to the world the campaign funds to be collected this year."

There is a bill pending in the House which would have this effect. It has been recommended in principle by the President. It has the formal approval of many Republicans in public life. It is indorsed by a large number of business organizations. It is recognized as a real remedy for much of the corruption that prevails in our elections. It would be a more effective check to the influence of private and corporate wealth on legislation, which Mr. ROOSEVELT especially denounces, than any other measure that he has proposed. To Mr. WILLIAMS'S challenge there is absolutely no decent answer, and none will be attempted. But we venture the prediction that the bill will not become a law for the very simple reason that it will accomplish, if not amended, and if firmly enforced, precisely what Mr. WILLIAMS indicated.

TAFT TACTICS.

The "Roosevelt stampede" scare is being used to drive the dark horse delegates into the Taft camp. It is given out that if the Convention once begins to vote for ROOSEVELT, the uninstructed and anti-Taft delegates will flock to that banner, to the great peril of the integrity even of the Taft column itself. So it must be TAFT on the first ballot, or it may not be TAFT at all.

This argument may be effective with delegates instructed for Mr. FAIRBANKS or Mr. KNOX, but there is a better way. It is suggested by the terse letter which Gov. HUGHES has written to Gen. WOODFORD renouncing in the most unmistakable terms the proffered honor of the Vice Presidency. "Though I would be deeply sensible of the honor thereby conferred," says the Governor, "I should not be able to accept, and would not in any contingency accept a nomination for the Vice Presidency. And even were I elected, I could not serve."

That is a model letter. "I would not accept if nominated, and I would not serve if elected," said Gen. SHERMAN. When men defy the Presidential lightning in such words other men cease to talk about them as possible candidates. We suggest that Mr. HITCHCOCK appoint himself to be the bearer to the President of a copy of Gov. HUGHES'S letter to Gen. WOODFORD—the letter as printed in the newspapers is probably accurate, and would serve the purpose—and ask him as the sponsor and chief promoter of the Taft candidacy if he will not say something of that kind, equally positive, just as emphatic, to remove the doubts as to his intentions that prevail in certain parts of this Union—unwarrantably as it seems to us. Mr. ROOSEVELT has spoken twice, and no one has the right to question either his meaning or his sincerity. The trouble is that it is questioned. Otherwise there would be no talk about a third term.

Loyalty to Secretary TAFT might very likely incline the President to grant Mr. HITCHCOCK'S request. That would put an end to the talk of a Roosevelt stampede.

PROF. BAWDEN'S THEORIES.

The truth about Prof. H. H. BAWDEN of Cincinnati University, who wishes to deform the whole social order because of his own domestic troubles, is that he has been acting like a cad. We exonerate him from any comprehension of his own caddishness. With egoism worthy of Sir Willoughby Patterne or Malvolio, he demands the abolition of marriage ties because he has had trouble with his wife. Because he discerns, painfully, a spot of mud on the social garment, he would dye all the rest of the garment mud color. Cads have figured as reformers before now, and accomplished reforms, as witness HENRY VIII., but Prof. BAWDEN is not of King HENRY'S stature, and some kind friend ought to sit down and counsel with him frankly.

Because his mind is diseased he would have all mankind inoculated with the same malady. He is entitled to pity, for his domestic troubles, and the charitable will withhold judgment of any defiance on the conventions on his part. But the laws of morality are greater than BAWDEN. They are not arbitrarily made, and they will endure the onslaughts of many generations of misled professors.

SUBWAYS RUN AT A LOSS.

In a letter to Controller METZ Mr. JOHN B. MCDONALD throws the strong light of common sense and business judgment upon the subject of new subways, much obscured of late by darkening and selfish counsel. Mr. MCDONALD, whose experience as the contractor who built the original Subway qualifies him to express an opinion, says flatly that the Fourth Avenue route in Brooklyn, for which bids were opened the other day, and the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route, as laid out by the Public Service Commission, will not pay. The Broadway-Lexington Avenue line will cost for construction, equipment, and easements, he says, over $127,000,000, and the Fourth Avenue line in Brooklyn will cost $44,000,000 more. If the method of construction by sections is adopted, these figures will be "greatly increased." "At this enormous cost," says Mr. MCDONALD, "the lines would not be able to carry enough passengers under any conditions to meet fixed charges, and would become a heavy burden on the city."

There is no warrant or justification for building a subway route at public cost that will not pay expenses. It is the vice of the law dividing construction and operation in letting the contracts that no adequate and responsible inquiry into the possibility of profit is guaranteed. Any contractor with capital and equipment will make a contract with the city to build a subway. He is sure of his pay. But if in addition he is required to put in a bid for operating a line, it is absolutely certain that he will make the most diligent investigation of the opportunity for profit and decline to bid for constructing a line unless it offers a reasonable promise of gain in the operation. There were plenty of bidders for the construction of the Fourth Avenue line, which Mr. MCDONALD says will not pay.

We have criticised the Broadway-Lexington Avenue route as laid out by the Public Service Commission, on the ground that, since it is for a great part of the way immediately parallel with the existing subway, it does not offer the largest public accommodations. Upon this point Mr. MCDONALD says:

> In order to complete east and west side lines, extensions to the present Subway should be made. For the east side, extension should be made from Forty-second Street, via Lexington Avenue, Southern Boulevard, Westchester Avenue to Pelham Bay Park. This will give a through line from Pelham Bay Park to the Battery, with increased facilities at the Grand Central station.
>
> For the west side, extension should be made from Broadway and Forty-sixth Street, south through Seventh Avenue, Greenwich Street, West Broadway, to a terminal under Battery Park. This would complete a west side line from the Bronx to Battery Park. This extension is of the greatest importance to the business interests of the city, especially in connection with the Pennsylvania terminal, which is approaching completion, is unequaled by anything of its kind in the world, and will handle more than 200,000 people a day for whom transportation facilities must be provided in the very near future.

The proposed Constitutional amendment will not open a way to the use of public funds for unprofitable undertakings. The Public Service Commission should re-examine its plans and equip itself more fully with needed information before further bids are invited. That will, of course, involve delay, but delay is not so costly as blundering.

A RACE AND MORE.

While entirely different from the New York to Paris race and lacking the picturesque feature of traversing the trackless wilds of Darkest Asia, the competitive automobile journey from New York to San Francisco and back again which THE TIMES is now organizing will be little less interesting to the general public, and it will be held of at least as much importance by all who are interested in the automobile—which means all who make and sell it and all who use or hope to use it.

While this contest, too, will be a race, in that speed will count and first arrival will number among the elements of victory, it will not be merely a race, since the contestants will not be permitted to attain speed at any price or sacrifice. The winner will be, not the car that brings back to the starting point little more than its name, owing to repairing and substitution of parts on the way, but the car that can most quickly twice cross the continent because of the excellence of its original construction.

Of course, as always, much will depend on the skill of the drivers, which is not a factory product. But it will have to be skill of the careful sort valued in ordinary touring, and therefore the result will be in the highest degree informative to the man whose desire is to get the automobile that will carry him far and safely over roads of every sort, and with the least expense for maintenance.

The number and promptness of the entries shows the present appreciation by the automobile manufacturers of what the public is more and more coming to want—which is not the racing machine capable of enormous speed when handled by a man willing to take desperate risks, but a trustworthy machine for the uses of business and pleasure. In the line, too, of practicality is the establishment of the condition that the whole journey must be made without shifts of crews. That is another method of making the victory depend on something else than lavish expenditure and also of rendering it directly significant to every owner of an automobile.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Threatened with Extermination.

Already sufficiently alarmed, first by an even balancing of its birth and death rates, and then by a slight excess of the latter over the former, France now finds itself confronted by figures that threaten, not, of course, the depopulation of the country, since fertile land in crowded Europe will never remain long unoccupied, but the disappearance of its present inhabitants and their replacement by some other race. This alarming prospect will be energetically discussed in France from all points of view, and suggestions innumerable will be made for meeting what is undoubtedly the most serious situation in which a proud, intelligent, and particularly self-conscious nation can find itself.

That anything effective will, or even can, be done about the matter, however, is more than dubious. Our good President would not hesitate an instant if asked either to explain the decreased birth rate or to tell how to increase it. He holds that good citizens have large families and bad citizens small ones, and that therefore an increase of civic virtue would remedy the evil. This simple theory ignores the fact that what is happening in France is what invariably happens when a people grows old in civilization and a highly developed individualism leads to the conduct of life by reasoning of the same sort used in the conduct of a business.

It is not too little, but too much, regard for family interests on the part of the French that has turned the vital tide from flow to ebb in that pleasant land, and if they were as willing as they used to be, and as their neighbors still are, to let their children take the common chance in life their problem would be what it is in so many parts of the world—the disposition to make of a surplus population. The division of a small fortune among many heirs seems to them a calamity not to be contemplated with composure and to be avoided if possible.

A considerable portion of our own population has something of the same idea, with much the same results, but we are saved from anxiety over our birth rate by the stream of immigrants which is constantly pouring into the country. For most of these, children are viewed as a resource, not as a drain upon resources, and those parents feel safest who have the most of them. The voluntary and intentional elements in these phenomena, however, can easily be exaggerated, and usually are. Every country has as many inhabitants as it can support in what those inhabitants consider an approach to comfort, and the "point of saturation" is determined much more by the quality of the people and their standards of life than by natural conditions. Where a hundred savages would starve a thousand civilized men can get rich, but, on the other hand, after the thousand get rich they recoil from condemning their children to the struggles and hardships of a narrow life, and so the scale turns again.

Belief Under Difficulty.

Were it not for that deplorable tendency toward doubt and disbelief which so many of us feel when asked to accept the picturesque and the melodramatic as possibilities of real life, the story of Sir GENILLE CAVE-BROWNE-CAVE and his progress from a hireling on a ranch in Colorado to the ownership of a 6,000-acre estate in England would be accepted as all true, simply on its intrinsic merits as a story. The ingenious Mr. HORNUNG has won acceptance for several similar tales about returning colonials, and he did not invent that department of fiction by any means.

Fiction is one thing, however, and actuality is another, and most of us lead such prosaic lives that the unusual, anywhere else than in a book, tries our credulity hard. Yet there seems to be good evidence that this younger son of a rich baronet did strike out into the cattle country for himself; that he held his own among the cowboys for years, and that now two regretted but rather convenient deaths have called him home to wealth and station.

He says that he is coming back again after he has put his property in order, and that he will buy a big ranch of his own with the income of his acres in Leicester. Here will, indeed, be a reversal of the usual course of money! But the wandering heir should not be too sure of what he is going to do. Cattle raising may be an agreeable alternative to life in London on the slender resources of a younger son, especially if he have a taste for adventure, but, with all its excitements, it is a good deal like hard work, and, worst of all, it is rapidly losing its excitements without gaining anything of ease. Neckties will not long irritate the new head of the Cave-Browne-Cave family, and the delights of station will probably grow on him with custom.

Waiting for the Wrights.

Reports of almost daily flights by the WRIGHT brothers are coming from North Carolina, and, accepting as true only those that claim the least in the way of present achievement, the indications are that the Ohio inventors have devised a real flying machine and have learned how to manage it over short distances.

They still must start from a stretch of railway track, but there are many birds, and some of the ablest among them, that cannot rise from the ground at all, and must have a water surface on which to acquire sufficient impetus to make their wings effective. The WRIGHTS, it is said, hope soon to overcome the present limitations of their machine in this respect, but that is a small matter and might well be left for later consideration.

No end of glory is theirs if they will only do in public what they are said to do when far from expert observation. We are all eager to acclaim them as the conquerors of the air, but their obstinate secrecy makes everybody suspicious and irritable.

Old Ladies' Homes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few weeks ago I tried to help a poor woman by inquiries about a home for old ladies. The result proved that there is a lamentable lack of such homes. One home had twenty applicants on the waiting list, another had a list which would last three years, another a waiting list which would last four years. Each home visited had a long waiting list.

Girls of sixty years ago were not taught business ways or methods, and when their fathers, brothers, and husbands lost their lives in war or by sickness property soon vanished. P.

Referring to to-day's editorial on the House of Lords, allow me to say that there has never been a time during the past forty years when this body was inferior to the House of Commons, either in debating power or in business capacity. P.

SUGGESTS STATE CURRENCY.

Reader Thinks Issues Could Be Made to the Nation's Advantage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When a comparatively new country is being developed at a rate which is beyond any historical record, and it is forced to furnish annually the new capital required to employ immigrants who come by the million and are without means of support, criticism of its financial methods should not be made by comparison with those of countries with fixed populations and stable business.

Thrift is the outcome of necessity, and will come to the United States in due time, when through wanton waste the country has, like older ones, been brought to a condition requiring conservative treatment; but long before it does come the present debt of the country will be satisfied and there will be no security of the present kind for the National bank currency.

In the meantime ample provision should be made for a currency which would be in volume sufficient for the needs of the country and so fully secured that its negotiability will be beyond question. It is possible to provide it in amount sufficient to insure to the whole population the capital required for legitimate business upon terms which will guarantee continuity of work. The States should secure an issue of currency through the machinery of the Federal Government, based upon State bonds issued for the purpose and bearing a rate of interest which would warrant their sale in event of necessity.

The issue would be limited to a certain sum per capita, based upon the population shown by the last census, and the currency could be loaned by the State to its banking institutions, National or State, against approved collateral, and probably with priority of lien, at not less than the legal rate, and only when the rate for a certain period had exceeded a percentage to be agreed upon. The advantages of the method are:

The absolute security, which is based upon the whole property of the people, represented by the direct taxing power of the State.

The limitation of the issue, first by population and then through its preparation, distribution, and redemption by the Federal Government. This also insures the uniformity which would make the currency negotiable through the United States and its possessions. The only difference between the notes would be the impressions of the seals of the various States.

A reduction of the volume through redemption, when the use of the money at a high rate is unprofitable, and the ability of the various States to provide independently for the requirements of their own people in crop seasons and in periods of stress, by the issue of a currency good in any State.

The obligations implied and imposed upon each and every State to scrutinize and systematize the methods of the banking institutions doing business within its borders.

The elimination of the Clearing House certificate, which has but a limited local use and enables banks to suspend without closing their doors.

The detailed methods for the regulation of the issue through Clearing House request and Government check would lead to uniform banking laws, which would greatly facilitate collections and the general business of the banks.

It is possible that a reserve bank, limited to holding a reserve in each State, and managed by the senior officers of all the associated banks as a board of governors, might be the medium through which the distribution of the currency could be effected.

The establishment of a statistical and reference department in the principal commercial cities of each State, under the management of all the banks, with an agreement for interchange of information between States, would insure the development of proper enterprises and the elimination of fraudulent ones.

The redemption of the State currency by the deposit of any bills, State or National, would be possible. A. M.

THE IRISH ORANGEMEN.

Says Opposers of Home Rule Form a Large Minority in Ireland.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The people of this country are led to believe that there is no opposition to home rule on the part of any class of Irishmen at the present day. This conclusion is altogether wrong. Never, even in the days of Gladstone's famous Home Rule bill, was the opposition to an Irish Parliament as strong in Ulster as it is at the present day. One of the chief causes of this is the treatment meted out by that lawless organization known as the United Irish League to belated Protestants in the South and West of Ireland at the present time. Irish Orangemen and Unionists know well that if home rule were granted to Ireland they would have absolutely nothing to say in the enactment of legislation. This conclusion is not hard to reach by even the most casual onlooker. Ireland at the present time has 103 Members of Parliament, 82 of whom are Nationalists and the remaining 21 are Unionists. Now, in the face of this, is it any wonder that Irish Orangemen are opposed to home rule?

Some people look upon the Unionists of Ireland as an insignificant minority. A minority, truly, but not an insignificant one. At present Ireland has a population of about four and a half millions. Almost two millions of these are Protestants, and therefore opposed to home rule. The minority possess the brain and the sinew of the country. They are contented and prosperous under the Union Jack of Old England, in whose defense they have lost not a few of their best sons.

In conclusion, let me say that if any person imagines that the opposition to home rule is dead or dying in Ireland, let him pay a visit to Belfast or any of the provincial towns on the 12th day of July and he will there see hundreds of thousands of Orangemen, members of a society whose chief object is to oppose home rule to the last ditch. In the face of these facts, I do not think that any English Government will ever be so foolish as to pass a Home Rule bill, although the present makeshift of a Government is willing to do anything that it thinks will please the 101 different parties of which it is composed.

Hoping that I have not taken up too much of your valuable space, I am,

JOHN BROWN,
An Irish Orangeman.

CLASSIFYING CONSUMPTIVES.

Would Isolate Those Found to be in the Later Stages.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I do not understand why smallpox, scarlet fever, and diphtheria are vigorously controlled by isolation, while the more deadly pulmonary tuberculosis is allowed full sway in this congested community.

Though the ravages of the so-called "white plague" have been lessened to some small extent since the discovery of the Koch bacillus, it is at present by no means under control.

If the patient's ailment continues he becomes anxious, and dreads to undergo a physical examination because he fears that the "weak-lung" verdict will be given, or that his lung is "affected."

In this condition he will shun the doctor just as long as is possible, and continues a source of contamination among his own family and among his associates.

When a patient is reported as afflicted with pulmonary tuberculosis his case can be classified by the Health Department, and if in one of the milder conditions he could be allowed to perform his duties unmolested, while in the severer classes isolation should be resorted to. On monthly examination the patient could be reclassified, according to his condition, and such examination should be compulsory.

It is about time to resort to the more vigorous forms of treatment now that all our milder forms have proved so futile. COSTIGAN.

JAPAN IN KOREA.

Prof. Ladd Presents His View of the Tokio Policy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I quote from Mr. Millard's letter in your issue of last Sunday the following sentences:

> It is believed here that the real mission of the late D. W. Stevens to the United States, besides taking a final whack at Colbron & Bostwick, was to try to gain the consent of America to the abolition of extra-territoriality and the inclusion of Japan's fiscal entity. This accomplished and acceded to by the other treaty powers, complete annexation of Korea to Japan will be accomplished. It may seem rather unkind to so write when Mr. Stevens has just been struck down by the hand of a deluded Korean patriot, but I think that his real position and work should be explained to Americans.

This is indeed not only "rather unkind," but cruelly unkind, because it is directed against the reputation of a conspicuously fair and kindly fellow-American, who, being dead, cannot answer to deny or to explain. But it is more than unkind, for it is false. The Resident General of Korea, backed up by the Emperor and the Tokio Government, has proclaimed Japan's intention not to annex Korea if for no other reason because it would be bad policy for Japan to attempt this. As to the opportunities for the legitimate use of American and other foreign capital in business enterprises in Korea, they have given the fullest assurances of the policy of the "open door." And, as I have showed elsewhere, these assurances are being made good, in the opinion of business men engaged in Korea, in such legitimate enterprises.

As to the particular case of the firm, at which Mr. Stevens is so elegantly described as intending to take "a final whack," those desirous of ascertaining the truth can find a narrative of the main facts (names being for the most part omitted) in my recent book on Korea, Pp. 360ff. At present I desire simply to call attention to these two particulars. First, the property acquired by this foreign company, whether honorably or not, belonged to the Korean Crown, which has lost vast sums through the exploiting achievements of this same company, one of its franchises alone resulting in a loss to the privy purse of not less than 600,000 yen up to 1902; second, Mr. J. McLeavy Brown, at the time Commissioner General of Customs, (of whom—again falsely—Mr. Millard charges the Japanese Government with trying to get rid,) when he was appointed to audit the accounts of this company, recommended that items aggregating 1,100,000 yen should be disallowed, and gave his judgment that foreclosure would be a grave injustice to his Majesty, (i. e., the now Korean ex-Emperor.) Nevertheless, foreclosure followed, to the great benefit of the company, and to the further injury of the Korean imperial resources and the Emperor's privy purse.

But, do my countrymen wish to know the truth about Far Eastern matters, even when it is not favorable to their own self-esteem and commercial aggrandizement? The answer to this question remains to be given before the eyes of the civilized world.

The Wren on the Statue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

About 7 o'clock each morning a wren perches on the head of Chief Justice Marshall's statue, just below the Capitol, and sings very sweetly. Perhaps this little warbler wishes to remind Congress of the Constitution which the greatest of all Justices loved with heart and mind.

DAVID S. COPELAND.

NO SECOND PLACE FOR HUGHES

Governor Writes Gen. Woodford That He Won't Take It.

A great deal of discussion was aroused yesterday by the publication of a letter from Gov. Hughes to Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, one of the New York delegates at large to the National Convention and the head of the National Hughes League, in which he says that under no circumstances will he accept the second place on the Republican ticket. Gen. Woodford would not discuss the matter, refusing even to say whether he had written the Governor requesting a statement of his position in the matter.

This is the Governor's letter:

STATE OF NEW YORK, EXECUTIVE CHAMBER.
Albany, May 11, 1908.

My Dear Gen. Woodford: I find your letter of the 7th instant awaiting me on my return to Albany. I have not said anything publicly regarding the Vice Presidency, as the matter has not been broached to me in a way which seemed to require any action on my part. But I do not desire to have my silence misinterpreted, and you as a delegate to the convention are entitled to an unequivocal statement. You are entirely right in your assumption as to my attitude.

I should not care to be thought lacking in appreciation of the distinction of the office. But for reasons which are controlling and leave no room for discussion, and though I would be deeply sensible of the honor thereby conferred, I should not be able to accept, and would not in any contingency accept a nomination for the Vice Presidency. And even were I elected, I could not serve.

With high regards, I am, faithfully yours,
CHARLES E. HUGHES.

H. B. Mingle, who is prominent in the Hughes Information Bureau, gave out this statement last night: "The Niagara victory will strengthen the support of Gov. Hughes all over the country. The news of the triumph of the Hughes idea will serve to show the people of other States what sort of Presidential timber we have in Hughes. This is all that my organization is attempting to do without prejudice or comparison. When all the people know the Governor as we do, I believe the country will have a candidate who works while others run."

KNICKERBOCKER PAYS AHEAD.

Increased Business Permits Company to Anticipate Deferred Payments.

Less than two months after resuming business on a deferred payment plan the Knickerbocker Trust Company has arranged to anticipate payment on the two installments of 5 per cent. each, which were to have fallen due on June 26 and Sept. 26, respectively, by releasing this 10 per cent. on June 1. Of the 70 per cent. of deposits coming into the deferred payment plan 10 per cent. was paid on the day of opening, March 26. The decision of the Knickerbocker Directors was reached by the adoption at yesterday's meeting of the following resolution:

Whereas, In the judgment of this board the condition of the company permits anticipation of the time of withdrawals upon time certificates as hereinafter set forth.

Resolved, That the time for making the second and third payments of 5 per cent. each falling due June 26, 1908, and Sept. 26, 1908, upon the deposit certificates issued under the terms of the plan of resumption, be and it hereby is anticipated and fixed as June 1, 1908.

The anticipations were made possible, an officer of the company explained yesterday, chiefly by the increased business done since the resumption, which had gone beyond expectations. He said that a further strengthening of the company's position had been brought about by collections on old debts, which had been larger than had been taken into account in the conservative figuring under which the plan of reopening had been drawn. Another possible factor was the fact that a considerable proportion of the funds already released had been allowed to remain on deposit. The company's deposits are now larger than on the day of reopening, this officer said, and at the next bank call he expected the company would make a very satisfactory showing.

CRITICISES FIRE ENGINEERS.

Expert Says They Are Deficient in Technical Knowledge of Engines.

Capt. G. S. Curtis, the expert employed by the Merchants' Association to investigate the Fire Department, yesterday at the inquiry into the department by the Commissioners of Accounts attacked the skill of the engineers. He said he did not believe there was sufficient technical knowledge among the firemen to get the best results from the engines. He also criticised the arrangement of the engines at a fire.

DR. BROWN TO HEAD UNION SEMINARY

Noted Hebrew Scholar Elected to Succeed the Late Dr. C. C. Hall.

HE'S NOW IN JERUSALEM

New President Is an Alumnus of the Seminary and Has Been on Its Teaching Staff Since 1879.

Dr. Francis Brown, one of the most distinguished Hebrew scholars in America, was elected President of the Union Theological Seminary yesterday afternoon, to succeed the late Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall. The announcement was made last night at the commencement of the institution, when the degree of Bachelor of Divinity was conferred on nearly forty graduates of the seminary.

There was much applause when John Crosby Brown, President of the Board of Directors, said that Dr. Brown, who is an alumnus of the seminary and has been on its teaching staff since 1879, was the choice of the board.

Dr. Brown is now in Jerusalem. He is the Director of the American School for Oriental Study and Research in Palestine, with headquarters in Jerusalem, and it is in connection with that work that he went abroad last Summer on a year's leave of absence. He will return in September to take up his new work.

Prof. Brown was born at Hanover, N. H., Dec. 26, 1849, and received his first diploma of graduation from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1866. He won the degree of A. B. at Dartmouth College in 1870, and three years later the degree of Master of Arts was conferred on him. From Dartmouth he came to the Union Theological Seminary here, and was graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Divinity in 1877. For the next few years he lived abroad, studying in the University of Berlin.

In 1844 Hamilton College conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity, and Dartmouth also gave him the same honor that year. Yale waited ten years longer when his fame as a student of Hebrew and as a theologian had begun to grow, and also honored him with the Doctor of Divinity degree. Seven years ago the University of Glasgow conferred the degree of Doctor of Letters, and the University of Oxford the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Prof. Brown married Miss Louise Reiss in Germany in 1870. His son, Julius Arthur, who is also a graduate of Dartmouth, not long ago won the Rhodes scholarship at Oxford from New Hampshire. Since 1890 Dr. Brown has been Professor of Hebrew and Cognate Languages in the seminary. Among the books which he has written, "Assyriology—Its Uses and Abuse," "The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles," "A Hebrew and English Lexicon of the Old Testament," and "The Christian Point of View," in which he collaborated with Dr. George William Knox, the Acting President, and A. C. McGiffert.

McCARREN AIDS HOME RULERS

Introduces a Bill for the Election of a New State Committee This Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 12.—With the aid of the Governor and the Legislature enlisted in the contest, the temporary Executive Committee of the Home Rule Democracy which was organized at the Utica conference on April 25 to conduct a fight against State Chairman William J. Conners and Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy, met here to-day to map out a programme and plan a permanent organization.

Incidentally it became known that ex-United States Senator David B. Hill is in sympathy with the movement and that he is assisting in an advisory capacity at least. Before to-day's meeting ex-Judge Samuel A. Beardsley of Utica, Senator Patrick H. McCarren of Brooklyn, and Charles F. Ratigan of Auburn called on Mr. Hill.

The initiative in that part of the fight which will be conducted through the Legislature was taken by Gov. Hughes in his message to the extraordinary session when he recommended the enactment of laws "to make more adequate provision for the government of political parties." The Governor's recommendations were followed up to-day by bills introduced in the Senate and Assembly by Senator McCarren of Kings and Assemblyman D. C. Robinson of Chemung.

In the meantime a plan was decided upon in pursuance of which a fight will be started against the Conners-Murphy adherents in every Assembly District of the State. The Home Rulers decided to submit to the General Committee when organized a plan for a State Committee of 150 members, with the Assembly district the basis of representation.

To overcome an objection that the State Committee would be too large, it was decided to have an Executive Committee elected from each Senatorial district, which would have similar duties to the State Committee of the regular organization.

BITTERNESS SHOWN AT ALBANY

Little Hope for the Governor's Measures at the Special Session.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, May 12.—In both branches of the Legislature were introduced to-day bills embodying a majority of the recommendations contained in the Governor's message. Unless there should be a material change in the situation, however, there is no ground to believe that any except the most unimportant of the reforms he urged will be enacted at the special session.

The legislators are fighting mad at being called back. Angry comments fell from their lips wherever two or three of them chanced to meet to-day. The Governor's recent appeals to the people are being denounced as the rankest form of coercion. His arraignment of political bossism is characterized as "vituperation."

STANDARD OIL REBATE TRIAL.

Case Involving Fifty-three Counts Begins at Rochester, N. Y.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 12.—The case of the Government against the Standard Oil Company, in which the oil company is charged with receiving rebates from railroads, was put on trial this morning at the opening of the Spring term of the Federal court, Judge John R. Hazel of Buffalo presiding and S. Wallace Dempsey, Special Assistant to the United States Attorney General, conducting the case for the Government.

Attorney James McMitchell of Buffalo, John G. Milburn of New York, and the firm of Harris, Havens, Beach & Harris of this city are looking after the interests of the oil company.

The case is being tried on indictments found at Jamestown and arises over shipments of oil made from Olean to Rutland and Bellows Falls, Vt. The company is indicted on fifty-three counts.

CAN'T BUILD TROLLEY LINES.

Bassett Reports City Has No Power to Extend Present Roads.

Commenting upon the presentment of the Queens County Grand Jury of May 2, in which the need of extensions of street railroad lines was mentioned, Commissioner Bassett has reported to the Public Service Board that there is no provision of law for the city to build such lines. It is within the province of the Board of Estimate, he says, to ask for bids for franchises to build and operate additional street railway lines, but experience has shown that generally there are applications for such franchises before the population has become sufficiently dense for them to be operated profitably.

MISS JULIET ADEE TO WED ON JUNE 3

Marriage to Dr. Townshend Will Take Place in St. Peter's Church, Westchester.

THORNDIKE-MACY NUPTIALS

Marriage of Miss Florence Macy Yesterday at St. Thomas's Church —Miss Douglas Weds.

The wedding of Miss Juliet S. Adee, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Adee of Westchester, and Dr. Raynham Townshend, formerly of the Roosevelt Hospital, will take place at 3:30 o'clock on June 3 in St. Peter's Church, Westchester. The Rev. Dr. Frank M. Clendenin will perform the ceremony.

Miss Adee's four attendants will be the Misses Ellen Louise Adee, a sister of the bride-elect; Carolyn W. Fellowes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Fellowes; Miss Gussie Letchford of Morristown, N. J., and Mrs. David T. Dana, (Miss Georgette Collier.)

Henry Townshend will be his brother's best man, and the ushers chosen are George T. Adee, a brother of the bride; Dr. Hugh Auchincloss, Dr. George Smith, Dr. Albert Lamb, Paul B. Ely, Stewart Hotchkiss, David T. Dana, and Augustus Blagden. The reception will be held at the residence of the bride's parents in Westchester. Dr. Townshend and his bride will live in New Haven, where he will practice medicine.

The engagement was announced about eighteen months ago.

THORNDIKE—MACY.

The marriage of Richard King Thorndike of Boston and Miss Florence Adele Macy, daughter of Mrs. William H. Macy, 2d., of this city, took place at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Church. The Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Alfred Macy, wore a white satin gown trimmed with point lace, and her point lace veil was held with orange blossoms. She carried gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Elizabeth Wyatt Wise, who was the maid of honor, and the bride's only attendant, wore a gown of white chiffon trimmed with ecru lace, and carried lilacs and pink roses.

Harry H. Macy was best man, and the ushers were George B. Dabney, Sidney L. Beals, Robert M. Derby, Dr. William J. Mixter, H. Bradlee Fenno, and John R. Thorndike, a cousin of the bridegroom, all of Boston, and Howard G. Dickinson, and Josiah Macy, the latter a brother of the bride. A reception was held at 281 Lexington Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorndike will sail for Europe on their honeymoon, and plan to spend the Summer. Upon their return they will live in Boston.

MEREDITH—DOUGLAS.

The wedding of Joseph D. Meredith, son of Mrs. William T. Meredith, and Miss Maria Sheafe Douglas, the daughter of Mrs. M. Sheafe Douglas, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the chantry of Grace Church. The Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, John Douglas, wore a princess gown of white satin, and her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms. Her necklace was a string of pearls, and she carried lilies of the valley. There were no bridesmaids.

William F. Meredith was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Frederick Douglas, Dr. Bertrand S. Drake, Whitman Haff, Henry Montgomery, Payson Thompson, and Charles Post. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Meredith will make their home in New York.

ROOSEVELT-WILLIS WEDDING.

Ceremony Takes Place To-day at the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

The wedding of James Alfred Roosevelt and Miss Mary C. Willis, whose engagement has just been made public, will take place to-day in the Church of the Heavenly Rest.

Mr. Roosevelt is a son of Mrs. T. James Bowlker of Boston, and her first husband, the late James A. Roosevelt, a cousin of the President. He is a young electrical engineer, and although his home is given in the marriage license, which he obtained yesterday, as 282 Beacon Street, Boston, he spent last Winter here with his grandmother, Mrs. James A. Roosevelt.

Miss Willis is the daughter of Mrs. Charles E. Willis, who was formerly Miss Sarah Minor. Mrs. Willis is from Long Island, but she and her daughter have been at the Woman's Club, in East Forty-sixth Street, for some months. The invitations to the wedding are limited to the families.

Miss Dominick to Wed W. C. Flanders

The wedding of Miss Sarah Taber Dominick, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Blanchard Dominick, and Walter Chapin Flanders will take place at 4 o'clock on June 4 in Grace Church. Following the ceremony, a reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, 14 West Forty-ninth Street.

LUNCHEON TO EDWIN ABBEY.

Pilgrims Society in London Bids Farewell to American Artist.

LONDON, May 12.—Many distinguished persons were present at the luncheon given at the Savoy Hotel by the Pilgrims Society to-day in honor of Edwin Abbey, the American artist, who is soon to leave here for America. Mr. Abbey has been working for the last four years on paintings for the Pennsylvania State Capitol at Harrisburg.

Whitelaw Reid, the American Ambassador, presided at the luncheon. Sir Lawrence Alma Tadema, the English artist, spoke of Mr. Abbey as a man who had been one of the foremost illustrators of his time, who had founded a school, and who had continued in the same way as a painter. Mr. Abbey delivered a numorous address describing some of his earliest experiences when he came to England thirty years ago.

F. T. Martin Entertains at Tea.

Frederick Townsend Martin entertained at tea yesterday afternoon in the Plaza. One corner of the tea room was divided off with flower boxes to accommodate Mr. Martin's guests. John Bigelow, who is 94 years old, was one of the guests. Others present were Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, Mrs. James P. Kernochan, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Beckwith, Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman, Mrs. Emerson Buell, Miss Adele Colgate, Miss Clementina Furniss, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Keeling, Miss Maria de Baril, Mrs. Edward N. Breitung of Chicago, Brayton Ives, Harold Brown, Miss Lucile Thornton, Mr. Kidder of Boston, Paul Morton, and Gen. Porter.

PRINCES ARRIVE HERE.

Distinguished Italians Come Over on a Pleasure Trip.

The North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm arrived last night from Bremen, Southampton, and Cherbourg with 275 cabin passengers. Her time was 6 days 2 hours and 19 minutes, the average speed being 21.48 knots. Leaving Cherbourg on May 6, the liner had rough weather until Monday, when it cleared.

PHOTOGRAPHY AND DRAMATIST

Camera Club Entertainment That Proves Both Have Made Advances.

THE MONEY SPINNER, an original comedy in two acts by Arthur W. Pinero. Carnegie Lyceum.

Lord Kengussie	Sidney Herbert
Baron Croodle	Dean Pratt
Harold Boycott	Edward Longman
Jules Faubert	John S. Robertson
Porter	Henry Bowen
Millicent Boycott	Alida Cortelyou
Dorinda Croodle	Myrtle Tannehill
Margot	Maud Giroux

That playwright as well as photographer has made some advances in the last twenty-five years or so was demonstrated in the little entertainment planned by the Camera Club for its friends in Carnegie Lyceum last night. The photographic part of the programme included an exhibit of works by prominent and successful members of the club, shown in a series of lantern slides illustrating the "yesterday, to-day, and to-morrow" of the art. The Lumiere discoveries in color photography were illustrated and explained by William D. Murphy and J. E. Brulateur, the latter making the announcement that the Lumieres have practically perfected a process by which ortho-chromatic photography will be possible with films, thus making it convenient for the kodaker and amateur.

The dramatic part of the programme was Mr. Arthur Wing Pinero's "The Money Spinner," one of the last plays written by the distinguished English dramatist prior to his abandonment of acting, and one of the first to bring him success as a dramatist. It was first produced at the St. James's Theatre in London in 1880 with the Kendals and John Hare in the principal rôles. It was seen in this city at Wallack's some years ago, and has also been acted by dramatic students.

"The Money Spinners" is a long way from the Mr. Pinero of these later days, but in spite of its obviousness and the more or less clumsy method of its development it contains a dramatic germ, and is fairly interesting in action. The play was staged by Sidney Herbert, who appeared as Lord Kengussie, playing with his familiar methods. Alida Cortelyou was the wife. Myrtle Tannehill played the part of the younger sister prettily, but the young man who appeared as the embezzling husband should not be encouraged.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

E. H. Sothern will play an engagement at the Academy of Music, beginning next Monday night. The offering for the first week will be "Lord Dundreary."

Elmer B. Harris has gone to Prince Edward Island, where he is to complete a new play to be produced by Henry B. Harris in the Autumn.

Charles Frohman cabled his New York office yesterday announcing William H. Crane in "Father and the Boys" as the opening attraction at the Empire Theatre next season, beginning in the latter part of August.

Louis Nethersole will start to-morrow for Vancouver, on his way to Australia, where he is to act as business representative for Margaret Anglin on her tour.

Saturday night's performance will close the run of "The Warrens of Virginia" at the Stuyvesant Theatre. The piece will be resumed at the same theatre late in August, with Frank Keenan and Charlotte Walker still in the leading roles.

John Cort announces that he will bring "The Alaskan," which has been largely reconstructed, back to New York next season.

A theatre party of members of the Vaudeville Comedy Club will attend the Circle Theatre to-night, prior to a celebration at the clubhouse.

PROF. BAWDEN TELLS OF MARRIAGE VIEWS

Accused Professor Believes That Comradeship Should Be Basis of Union.

FAVORS EASIER DIVORCE

Thinks That Individual, Not the Family, Should Be the Unit of Society—Students Support Him in Classes.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, May 12.—Prof. H. Heath Bawden, whose resignation as Professor of Philosophy at the University of Cincinnati has been demanded by President Dabney because of Prof. Bawden's private views on marriage and sociology, was at his post as usual to-day, his classes being well attended. He will not be suspended at present.

This is partly due to the fact that the Chairman of the Board of Trustees is absent from the city on an indefinite absence and partly because President Dabney thinks it would do no particular harm for Prof. Bawden to continue with his classes temporarily. As Prof. Bawden has made a protest against handing in his resignation, President Dabney says he is disposed to give a fair hearing to the Professor.

Prof. Bawden issued the following statement to-day regarding his views on marriage and divorce:

"I believe in freedom of association of the sexes and in marriage based on comradeship. The only limit I would impose on sexual promiscuity would be the aesthetic ideal of comradeship on the moral side and the necessary restrictions of stirpiculture on the physical side. I advocate, as a stepping stone to better things, that divorce be made easier, while the responsibility for offspring be more carefully guarded.

"I have no Socialistic programme. I belong to no school of social economists. I do not expect the new era to come in a day nor by any but slow processes of social evolution, but I do intend to make my contribution to that evolution by thus publicly setting forth the sincere views of a member of that very society which evolves.

"I emphatically do believe in marriage, but not in the mere conventional shell after the real thing has gone. In my statement of the ideal state I do not insist that there must be what is commonly called love, but I do insist that comradeship is essential. This provides for the marriage de convenance, which, while not ideal, is far better than domestic tragedy.

"For this reason I derogate the finality of marriage and the social stigma which attaches to divorce. Marriage in its present form narrows and restricts human experience. It does not tend to enrich life, except where of externally limitative character disappears. Self-limitation of itself may or may not be limiting, but a home without harmony between husband and wife is not a home to bring up children in.

"Fellowship, comradeship, is the only basis of a true marriage, and when, for any reason, this has vanished, the real immorality is to seek to keep up the outward form when the inward essence has fled. Yet this is just what existing social institutions, the laws of many States, and religious bodies sanction and unwritten conventions impose, and what few self-respecting men and women, who have children for whom they are responsible, have the courage to resist.

"I believe with Plato that the State should subsidize maternity. I believe that the individual, not the family, is the proper unit of political and social organization. Maternity is the holiest event that happens in our social life. To cast social stigma on a woman who has become a mother outside of wedlock and on the innocent issue of such a union, is an inhuman brutality only matched by man's stupid so-called chivalry to woman."

Prof. Bawden delivered two lectures before large classes to-day.

At the conclusion of Prof. Bawden's first lecture he retired to his office and for the next ten minutes students followed one another into the office, each stretching out his hand and extending his sympathy, trust, and good wishes to the instructor.

Five graduate students in Prof. Bawden's classes waited on him and tendered their support, sympathy, and assistance. Miss Ella Davis, an undergraduate student, stated that in all her experience in Prof. Bawden's classes she had never heard him say anything touching on his peculiar views on marriage.

Jacob Singer, a member of one of Prof. Bawden's classes, said:

"I was shocked and astonished when I heard his views on marriage. He certainly never let them in the classroom."

Mayor Markbreit was asked to-day on behalf of the student body to take action preventing the release of Prof. Bawden.

Isaac Wise, Jr., a student, intimating that he voiced the sentiment of the majority of the student body, importuned the Mayor to interfere in the Bawden case.

Dr. Dabney said to-day: The incident is closed. Prof. Bawden will leave after June 1."

POUGHKEEPSIE, May 12.—That Prof. H. Heath Bawden was forced to leave Vassar College because of his views on marriage and sociology was known to scarcely any one at Vassar with the exception of President Taylor. The dispatch from Cincinnati telling of the effort to force him out of the University of Cincinnati caused astonishment at Vassar. President Taylor declined to discuss it to-day.

Prof Bawden left Vassar last June. It was publicly understood that he had gone to a better position, and his departure was generally regretted, especially among the students, with whom he was very popular. No word of criticism was publicly uttered here. The Vassar class of 1908 dedicated their official book, "The Vassarion," to Prof. Bawden "as an expression of the friendship of the class."

Prof. Bawden was graduated from Denison University, 1893, and was an instructor there 1896-97; instructor in philosophy in Iowa State University, 1900-01, and Chicago University, 1900; Professor of Philosophy at Vassar, 1901-07.

Mme. Sidky to Sing at a Concert.

The wife of Sidky Bey of the Turkish Embassy will make her first public appearance next Friday night at the testimonial concert to be given in the Ridge Club, Seventy-second Street and Second Avenue, Bay Ridge, to Mme. Violette Colville Kendall by her pupils. Mme. Sidky Bey will sing the grand aria from "Il Trovatore."

Grand Opera for the Majestic.

The Shuberts announced yesterday a change in their plans for the Lyric Theatre by which Eugene Walter's play, "The Wolf," will remain at the Lyric, and the Knickerbocker Grand Opera Company, instead of coming to Forty-second Street, will open at the Majestic next Monday evening. The most prominent singer in the opera cast is Mme. Adelina Padivana, a colorature soprano, who recently sang in South America.

LONDON FRIAR COMES OVER.

Brings $200 for a Box at the Benefit on a Flying Trip.

Harry Garrick, one of the London Friars, arrived on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie yesterday with $200 for a box for the Friars' benefit at the New York Theatre to-morrow afternoon, which had been subscribed at a meeting at the Savoy Hotel on Saturday, May 2, by Marcus Mayer, Fred C. Payne, George Miner, William D. Coxey, and Ernest Luck.

The quintet of Friars across the seas commissioned Garrick, who is one of London's press agents, to bring the money across, as he wanted to make a flying trip to New York. After handing the money over to the Treasurer of the Friars, Garrick took supper and slept at the new clubhouse. He will sail for England to-day by the Cunard liner Mauretania. He will not see the show, but will get a dispatch by wireless to-morrow night.

EXPLAIN SAVAGE OUSTER SUIT

Managers Say He Did Not Supply Enough Attractions for Garden Theatre

Nathan Goldberger, counsel for the Madison Square Garden Corporation, which owns the Garden Theatre, explained yesterday the causes which led his client to bring an action against Henry W. Savage to dispossess him from the theatre. The case is to come up in the Ninth District Municipal Court on Thursday.

"The trouble is that Mr. Savage has not furnished the theatre with the number of weeks time he agreed to in the contract," said Mr. Goldberger. "He was to have furnished attractions for thirty weeks, and the theatre has been open to the public only fourteen weeks this season. The understanding was that he was to make his own productions at the Garden Theatre. Instead he sent 'The Merry Widow' to the New Amsterdam and 'Tom Jones' to the Astor Theatre. We believe that we shall find it more profitable to lease the theatre to some other manager, though I do not know that there is any one yet in view."

ACTORS' FUND REPORT.

Deficit is $26,234—Most of the Officers Re-elected.

The Actors' Fund of America held its annual meeting yesterday afternoon at the Hudson Theatre, with the President, Daniel Frohman, presiding. The Treasurer's report showed that the total receipts for the year have been $96,669, and the expenditures, $122,904, leaving a deficit of $26,234. Investments made for the society amounted to $155,966, the interest on this amount not being sufficient to cover the deficit.

The officers elected for the year were: President—Daniel Frohman; Vice Presidents—Joseph R. Grismer and Antonio Pastor; Treasurer—Henry B. Harris; Secretary—Frank McKee; Trustees—Al. Hayman, F. F. Mackay, William H. Crane, Heinrich Conried, Joseph Brooks, Thomas McGrath, and Frank Burbeck.

Though all the officers were present at the meeting the general attendance was small.

Brother's Death Brings Klaw Home.

Marc Klaw of Klaw & Erlanger, who has been abroad for some weeks, spending his time in England and France, returned yesterday on the Kronprinz Wilhelm. Mr. Klaw asked to be excused from an interview as he had nothing new to announce, and his hurried return was due to the recent death of his brother Louis.

WOMEN WAR ON CHILD LABOR.

Association Formed Here to Aid in Enforcement of the Law.

The Child Labor Association of Club Women completed its organization at a meeting at the house of Mrs. Esther Herrman, 59 West Fifty-sixth Street, yesterday afternoon. The association is the reorganized body of club women which was originally an auxiliary to the National Child Labor Association. A Child Labor Bureau in Washington will be one object for which the organization will work.

"We intend to be fair in our demands," Mrs. Ralph Trautman, the President, said yesterday. "We do not intend to meddle unnecessarily in business affairs, but we wish the laws to be obeyed and children to have the privileges of childhood and allowed to obtain an education."

THROWS OUT A S.P.C.C. AGENT

"Father Bill" Daly Rough with a Cruelty Man Who Comes Inquiring.

Frederick Herkstroter, an agent of the Children's Society, called yesterday on "Father Bill" Daly, the turfman, at his home in Sheepshead Bay. A letter from Mrs. Daly was received at the society rooms recently in which it was stated that Mr. Daly had been maltreating his children.

"Father Bill" admitted Herkstroter, and, according to Mr. Daly, he began to instruct the horseman in the way children should be brought up.

"The man didn't tell me who he was," said "Father Bill" later. "If he had displayed his badge of authority, perhaps all this trouble would have been avoided. I was dumfounded when he commenced to give me my instructions, and I told the man I'd throw him out of the house if he didn't leave immediately.

"Herkstroter then grappled with me. I was being assaulted in my own home by a man I did not know. I threw him out of the house."

Then "Father Bill" was arrested and taken before Magistrate Voorhees. Herkstroter said that on entering the Daly home he announced his identity, whereat Mr. Daly became pugnacious.

Magistrate Voorhees paroled Mr. Daly until next Monday.

MAY TESTIFY FOR THAW.

Dr. John Wilson Examines Him in Dutchess County Jail.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 12.—Harry Thaw was visited in the Dutchess County Jail this morning by Dr. John P. Wilson, a medical examiner of this city. The doctor was called by Thaw's counsel, and if the examination satisfies the counsel that the prisoner is sane, Dr. Wilson will be one of the five experts whom Thaw will put on the stand when the habeas corpus proceedings are begun before Justice Morschauser in this city on Thursday.

It is the belief of District Attorney Mack that the proceedings can be disposed of in three days and the trial finished by Saturday night.

ROBBED ON PANAMA BOAT.

Passenger Loses Cash and Watch—Objects of the "Kangaroos."

Among the passengers who arrived on the Panama Line steamer Allianca from Colon yesterday was W. C. O'Connor, who said that his cabin had been robbed of $180 and a gold watch three days after the steamer left Colon. The line is owned by the Government, so Mr. O'Connor asserts that he must have been robbed by a Government employe.

The passengers said that a new society called the "Kangaroos" had been formed on the Isthmus. The principal feature of the organization, which has spread all over the Canal Zone, is to champion the cause of the humbler class of employes who have hitherto had their complaints pigeonholed by the men higher up.

SHAW'S PLAY BORES CRITICS, AS HE SAID

"Getting Married," Produced in London, Is a Long Discussion of the Question.

NO ACTS, JUST TWO RESTS

Audience Gives Mild Applause and the Writers Say the Work Is Prolix and Wearisome.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, May 13.—Bernard Shaw's "Getting Married" was produced last night at the Haymarket Theatre. It is frankly not a play at all. It is merely conversation in the Shawian manner. The abolition of marriage is the subject under discussion, and upon it Shaw has lavished treasures of wit and argumentative brilliance. But all he got for his pains was mild applause from the audience in general, with hisses from some ladies sitting near a clergyman in the pit.

There is no action in the piece. It is not divided into acts, but the curtain is let down twice in order to give the audience time to rest in the three hours taken to develop the theme.

The play deals with two young people who are going to get married and the wedding company, which is assembled. The prospective bride and bridegroom appear, but refuse to go on with the ceremony. They have been reading modern pamphlets, and have become convinced that marriage is all wrong. The bride has discovered that it would be an indiginity to keep her husband's house without a housekeeper's salary, and the bridegroom thinks that it would be unfair that he should be held responsible for his wife's actions. Thereupon all the characters try to draw up a form of contract that shall be an improvement upon the ordinary form of marriage.

Just when everybody realizes in desperation that this is impossible, the young people, who were to have got married and did not at the opening of the piece, turn up again, announcing that after all they have been married at a church in the good old-fashioned way.

Shaw announced beforehand that the critics would be irritated and bored by "Getting Married." He was correct. It is pronounced prolix and wearisome by the majority of the critics, who say that the author has "out-Shawed himself," producing not a play but a Socratic dissertation, whose overlong message appears to be an eloquent appeal to man to realize that woman has a soul as well as a body.

$250,000 FOR MRS. DELMOUR.

Will of the Tammany Man Admitted to Probate Without Contest.

Surrogate Beckett admitted to probate yesterday the will of Lawrence Delmour, proved the validity of the will, and it was admitted to probate. The bulk of the estate, which was valued at about $250,000, was left to his young wife, whom he married in July, 1905. There was no contest from Delmour's relatives.

W. G. BERG DIES SUDDENLY.

Civil Engineer Was About to Leave for the President's Conference.

Walter Gilman Berg, 50 years old, Chief Engineer of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, died suddenly of acute indigestion yesterday morning at his home, 261 West Fifty-second Street. He had got ready to go to Washington to attend the conference of Governors, which begins to-day, as the representative of the American Railway Engineering and Maintenance of Way Association, of which he was President. The attack came just before the carriage arrived to take him to the railway station. He died a short while afterward.

Mr. Berg leaves a mother, a sister, and two brothers, and two sons—Walter G., Jr., 10, and Maurice B., 3 years old. Mr. Berg was an Episcopalian. The funeral services will be held on Thursday at his late home, and the body will be buried at Burkeville, Va., beside his wife.

Mr. Berg was born in New York City in January, 1858, and was educated here and in France and Germany. He was graduated from the Royal Polytechnic Institute, Stuttgart, Germany, winning a gold medal there for a treatise on "Spherical Conic Sections." This was the only time an American has won that medal. He had been Chief Engineer for the Lehigh Valley since 1900.

Mr. Berg was the author of many works on railway and bridge building, including "Buildings and Structures of American Railroads," "American Railway Bridges and Buildings," "Strength of Timber," and "American Railway Shop Systems." He was a member of many professional societies.

Dr. Benjamin James Fernie.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 12.—Dr. Benjamin James Fernie, for many years associate editor of The Christian Herald, died here to-day after a prolonged illness. He had suffered for several years from heart disease, which culminated in a complication of diseases. Dr. Fernie leaves a widow and four children, three daughters and a son, all, with the exception of one daughter, being married. The funeral services will take place at his residence, 1,175 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, to-morrow afternoon.

Obituary Notes.

The Rev. PELHAM WILLIAMS, an Episcopal Minister of Greenbush, Mass., died at his home yesterday, aged 74. His wife Helen M. Williams; a daughter, Miss Grace P. Williams of New York City, and a son, Herbert Pelham Williams, a newspaper writer, survive.

HERBERT C. KAHN, a lawyer, with offices at 49 Broadway, died early yesterday morning, after an illness of two months. He was 31 years old and unmarried. His family live in Louisville, Ky., where the funeral services will be held. He was associated with social work, taking up his residence first at the University Settlement and later at the Educational Alliance on East Broadway. He was one of the chief organizers of the American Boys' Brigade.

JAMES LYNCH, father of James M. Lynch, President of the International Typographical Union, died in Syracuse yesterday, aged 73 years.

ORVILLE G. BENNET, 74 years old, an Appraiser, living at 601 West 187th Street, died yesterday in the Presbyterian Hospital. The funeral will take place to-morrow from the home of his brother-in-law, Charles Milton Mather, 16 West 122d Street.

ADDISON M. NATHANS, 72 years old, a diamond merchant of 82 Nassau Street, died Monday at his home, 87 St. Nicholas Place, after a lingering illness.

Col. JOHN HOOD, 78 years old, died yesterday at his home in Camden, N. J. He was at one time a member of the New Jersey Assembly, and was formerly a clerk of the New Jersey Supreme Court.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Show Irregularity—Call Money Rates, 1½@2 Per Cent.

LOWER PRICES AT CLOSE

Sagging Movement, with Only Moderate Dealings—Foreign Exchange Market Again Strong.

In the early part of yesterday's stock market session the execution of heavy selling orders, estimated at not less than 30,000 shares, for London account, together with profit-taking and tentative bearish offerings brought about sharp declines among the leading shares and gave to the market, as a whole, a weaker appearance than it has presented in a number of days. Around the noon hour, however, prices steadied and recovered some of the lost ground. Thereafter trading was desultory and professional, and the close of business found a substantially lower range of prices in force than that obtaining at the end of Monday's session. In the forenoon it was evident that speculators with bearish proclivities were anxious to test the strength of the market. Their sales were light, however, and their convictions so little settled that the reappearance of firmness among the so-called market leaders drove them rapidly to cover. The tactics of those in charge of the market movement were the familiar ones of releasing stocks here and there through the list where this could be done without much loss and of offsetting such sales by the bidding up of inactive and easily manipulated shares like Southern Railway preferred. In the making of sentiment during the course of the day the most powerful factors were easily the report of the American Railway Association on the amount of idle equipment and the very bearish interview with one of the chiefs of the Pennsylvania Railroad published in the morning newspapers. At bottom, however, there was nothing in either of these matters of a novel character, for Wall Street has had before it at all times the actual figures on the increase in idle cars, and knew well the fact that the greater part of the recent advance in prices reflected cheerful views on the future rather than good current conditions. In the day's budget of news were found such items as the reduction of the Quincy Mining Company's quarterly dividend from $1.50 to $1 a share, a similar decrease by a large silver manufacturing concern, the authorization of $20,000,000 of bonds by Delaware & Hudson stockholders, and the sale of $5,000,000 of notes by the Denver & Rio Grande, which is financing the Western Pacific, the coast extension of the Gould system.

In the foreign exchange market the movements were such as to foreshadow further exports of gold before the close of the present week. Such shipments might readily have been arranged yesterday, so far as exchange was concerned, but favorable steamship accommodations for Paris are not available until to-morrow. This prospect was without influence upon the money market, where both call and time rates were a trifle easier, and where the supply continues much in excess of the demand. The banks are rapidly regaining from the Government the money turned into the Treasury on the recall of deposits. They have reduced the heavy loss entailed by the payments on Saturday to a little over $5,000,000, and as the inflow of funds from the interior continues uncheked the outlook is for another cash gain at the end of the present week. The April returns on our merchandise exports are interesting in connection with the strength of the exchange market. The month's sales were $20,000,000 under those of the same month a year ago. The heaviest losses were in cotton, some $16,000,000, and in corn, $3,500,000. The losses for April and March left our exports of domestic products for the ten months of the fiscal year only $7,000,000 above those for the same period of 1908.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Attitude of Brokers.

Brokers who have been conservative during the rise are now even more conservative, but it takes a different form, apparently. Hitherto they regarded the market as likely to react on any material betterment in prices, and their advice to customers was to take advantage of every betterment on which to sell short or to secure profits. The natural result is that the customers of these brokers have not participated in the profits that have accrued to those who have been consistently bullish, and it is only human nature for them to blame it on the broker. They may not do this openly, but occasionally opinions are expressed which give a hint of ruffled speculative tempers. Consequently the broker at this level of prices is not disposed to voice the same conservative opinions for one reason because it may invite sarcastic comment, and for another reason because he is losing faith in his own judgment, and he is not willing to give advice that may result either in direct loss or failure to obtain profits that might be obtained by buying stocks even at this level of prices. It might be noticed that those market letters which have not been unqualifiedly bullish have been of late oracular.

Profits of Brokerage Business.

During dull times there are some even outside of the business itself who pity the stock broker, and who comment audibly on the expenses which he must bear, and the lack of profits. There is no way of determining what the average profits of any brokerage house might be measured in the percentage of its capital, but an incident on this point is somewhat illuminating. A comparatively small house, known for its solidity if not for its spectacular traders, was seeking to interest a certain individual with the idea of his becoming a special partner in the house. One of his friends was in direct communication, and as a preliminary he suggested that he ought to know something about the possible profits in the event of his friend coming into the firm and putting up a substantial amount. He was permitted to examine the books, and his accountant reported to him that the profits of the preceding twelve months represented 160 per cent. of the capital invested. Whether this is an exaggeration or whether it minimizes the possibilities of profit or not, it is interesting. The percentage given represents the net profits.

Southern Pacific Preferred Rumors.

Whatever may have been the foundation for the story with regard to Southern Pacific preferred, it at least served to attract a great deal of attention. One story was to the effect that another considerable block of the preferred stock would be issued, and that the company would waive the right to retire any of the stock at 115, a right which it has now and which extends until 1910. It is understood that since the stock was issued there have been investors who have taken it on because it apparently represented a sure thing. Their process of arguing was as follows: A 7 per cent. preferred stock of the Southern Pacific ought to sell considerably above 115 if the company did not have the right to retire it. If the company did retire it, it would be worth at least 125 and accrued interest for six months, inasmuch as certain notice would have to be given so that it would be worth approximately 118½. The return on the money invested at anything under 120 would be nearly 6 per cent., and consequently, while the investment might be limited by the retiring clause, the return in the meantime would be ample. Below 115, of course, the stock was more attractive. Then there was always the chance that the company would not retire the stock and an increased speculative value would accrue.

Municipal Bonds Go Begging.

Bids were asked during the last month by a town in one of the Southern States for an issue of something less than $100,000 bonds to be used for water works and sewer purposes. The bonds were 20-40-year bonds, bearing 5 per cent. interest, and the assessed valuation of the town was about ten times that of the total bonded indebtedness, while the actual valuation was approximately five times greater than the assessed valuation. The bonds were duly advertised, but there was not a bid received. It was then determined to make the bonds bear 6 per cent. interest, and to offer them privately. It is understood that the bonds have been sold during the last week in this way. The general figures given here do not give a definite idea concerning the bonds, but generally even as 5 per cent. bonds they were attractive, basing the analysis on the official figures. Furthermore, it was not a repudiation State. This seems strange, but a town in Jersey within a short distance of New York had a similar experience recently.

Market and Politics.

Politics is again being discussed with much earnestness in brokerage houses, and the possibilities of the conventions are becoming one of the minor market factors. During the last few days the Republican nomination has become a subject for enthusiasm in those offices whose customers are bullishly inclined. It is pointed out that there is no question as to the candidate, and no doubt as to his acceptability from the Wall Street point of view. Presumably if the trend of prices had been downward the conditions in the political world would have been utilized to fit the market just the same. Brokers report a greater prevalence of stop-loss orders by traders on both sides of the account. Those who are willing to go short are not willing to let their losses run if the market movement is against them, while those bullishly inclined feel that a reaction is always possible from this level, and that they ought to obtain as much of their profits as possible.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Irregular with July Strong—Closes Steady 4 Points Up to 12 Down.

Cotton was very nervous and irregular yesterday with July making new high records for the bull movement while the new crop was easier on good weather reports. The market closed steady at a net advance of 4 points, to a decline of 12 points. Sales for the day were estimated at 375,000 bales.

The market opened at a decline of 7 points to an advance of 1 point, July being relatively firm. The market worked off during the early session. Later there was a sharp rally in July. Monday's cut in the price of fancy ginghams was an unsettling factor.

The range of contract prices was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Mon. Close.
May	9.33	9.30	9.37@9.38	9.35

The local market for spot cotton was quiet with prices 15 points higher, at 11.05c for middling upland and 11.30c for middling Gulf. Sales for speculation, 1,500 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows:

Savannah steady, unchanged, at 10¼c; sales, 40 bales. Norfolk steady, ¼c higher, at 10⅝c; sales 146 bales. Augusta steady, unchanged, at 10⅝c; sales, 457 bales. St. Louis steady, ⅛c higher, at 10¼c; sales, 628 bales. Galveston steady, ⅛c higher, at 10⅛c; sales, 873 bales. New Orleans firm, unchanged, at 10 11-16c; sales, 2,000 bales. Houston steady, ⅛c higher, at 10⅛c; sales, 134 bales. Memphis firm, ⅛@ higher, at 10⅛c; sales, 1,650 bales.

NEW LOAN TO FINISH THE WESTERN PACIFIC

$10,000,000 Note Issue by Rio Grande System Taken by Road's New York Bankers.

MERGER OF DENVER LINES

New Bond Issue to Secure the Notes—Bankers Take an Option on $5,000,000 More Notes.

George J. Gould and his associates, in connection with the financing of the completion of the Western Pacific, which is to furnish a Pacific outlet to the Gould system, have arranged a comprehensive plan for the unification of the Denver & Rio Grande system, which is now made up of several separate corporations. A new mortgage is to be placed on the system, the bonds to be issued to be made the basis of the new financing.

These facts became known yesterday in connection with information that the Denver & Rio Grande has completed arrangements for the sale of $10,000,000 notes to a syndicate headed by Blair & Co., William A. Read & Co., and William Salomon & Co. These were the banking houses which underwrote three years ago the Western Pacific's $50,000,000 first mortgage bonds.

The notes are to run three years, with the option to the road of extending them for two years longer, or a total of five years. They will carry 6 per cent. interest and be convertible into the new bonds of the Denver & Rio Grande, by which they will be secured. The notes will be redeemable at par on any interest day. In addition to the $10,000,000 of notes the bankers have taken an option on $5,000,000 more of the same issue.

The information had in banking circles yesterday regarding the terms of the mortgage was that it will be a first lien on about 100 miles of road and a general lien on other property of the Denver & Rio Grande system. For the purpose of this bond issue and to round out the finances of the Denver system the Denver & Rio Grande proper is to absorb the Rio Grande Western, which is already controlled by stock ownership. It is possible, moreover, that a number of other small or subsidiary lines now operated under separate charters will be made integral parts of the Denver system and will come under the new mortgage. The Denver & Rio Grande system also controls, through stock ownership, the Rio Grande Southern, but it is not expected that this part of the system will be merged with the parent corporation.

The Western Pacific now has outstanding $50,000,000 first mortgage bonds and in addition has an authorized issue of $25,000,000 second mortgage bonds. The Denver & Rio Grande, for the advances made to the Western Pacific for the completion of the line, will accept bonds of this second mortgage issue.

The proceeds of the present note issue, it is stated, will fully complete the Western Pacific.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, May 12.—Amalgamated was the active issue, selling up to above 65, while the balance of the list was active and higher as a result of the day's trading. Bull tips were in circulation on Amalgamated, and local traders were buyers throughout the copper list. The close was strong, with stocks in good demand.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, May 12.—Money was in abundant supply on the market to-day at easy rates. Discounts were quiet.

Trading on the Stock Exchange developed a more cheerful tendency under the lead of consols, which were ⅛ dearer on covering operations and fair new buying. Home rails hardened on prospects of the settlement of the shipbuilding dispute. Paris buying strengthened foreigners and caused a rise in De Beers.

American shares, which were 3 to 12 points higher on the fortnight, were carried over at 3 per cent. Business was fairly active, but realizations kept values below parity in the forenoon. Further profit-taking in the afternoon caused some irregularity, and after temporary steadiness the market finished dull. Copper shares eased after a steady opening.

Bar silver steady; 24 1-16d per ounce. Money, 1¼@1½ per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2¼ per cent., and for three months' bills is 2⅛ per cent.

PARIS, May 12.—Prices were firm and trading was active on the Bourse to-day on advices from New York.

Three per cent. rentes, 96 francs 60 centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 12½ centimes for checks.

BERLIN, May 12.—The tone on the Boerse to-day continued sluggish.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Weather and crop conditions were generally more favorable yesterday, although reports of Hessian fly damage in Kansas came late in the day. The strength of the September contract was the leading feature of the trade, while May was weak and sluggish. There was a reduction of 250,000 bushels in the Minneapolis stock for three days, and but 134 cars reported at Northwest points, against 555 a year ago. Wheat and flour clearings together aggregated 75,000 bushels. Liverpool closed 1 to 1½d. net lower, while Budapest was 1⅜ to 2¼c. net higher. Exporters took fifteen loads, all at outports. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, $1.08, elevator, and $1.07, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.17½; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.15, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—Moderate weakness was shown early on prospects for better weather, but sharp rallies took place later on small cariot estimates for Wednesday. Liverpool closed ¼d. lower, clearings were practically nil, and exporters took three loads. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted 72½c elevator, and sold at 78½c, free on board, afloat.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Strength of July contracts was the feature in the coffee market yesterday, being the first time that a near month has sold at a premium in New York for a considerable period. Trading was not active, but the general tone was steady, with the close steady net unchanged to 5 points higher. Sales for the day were 18,250 bags.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices. Receipts at the two ports were 22,000 bags, according to the morning cable, against 29,000 last year, and Jundiahy receipts were 4,000 bags, against 3,000 the previous day. Rio was 25 reis lower, but Santos was 100 reis higher. Spot coffee was steady; 6¾c for Rio No. 7.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

GILL & MANDEL.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Philip S. Gill and Oscar Mandel, who compose the firm of Gill & Mandel, manufacturers of waists, 42 Wooster Street, by these creditors: Haslin Mills, $208; Spiegelberg & Co., $179; Krower & Tynberg, $82, and Yanover & Meyer, $33. It is alleged that they are insolvent, removed stock valued at $1,000, and had a judgment entered against them. They began business in January, 1905, and were recently endeavoring to get an extension, but some of the creditors favored a cash settlement at 50 cents on the dollar. Judge Hough appointed Henry Melville receiver. Liabilities are $7,000, nominal assets $8,000, and actual assets $3,500. They used the style of the Specialty Waist Company.

JULIUS DAVIDSON.—Julius Davidson, baker, of 1,506 Lexington Avenue has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $9,454 and no assets. Of the liabilities $8,000 are contingent on an unexpired lease of a store which he formerly occupied. He has been at various locations in this city eight years.

DAVID COHEN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of David Cohen, peddlers' supplies, 104 Essex Street, show liabilities of $17,871 and nominal assets of $19,000, consisting of stock, $2,000, and accounts, $17,000, sold by the receiver, amount realized not given. Among the creditors are Bachrach & Berg, $2,800 secured; Dun Company, $22, and Mercantile Discount Company, $522.

NORMAN ABEND.—Judge Hough has appointed Herman H. Oppenheimer receiver in bankruptcy for Norman Abend, manufacturer of shirtwaists, 32 Greene Street. It was stated that he has not been at his place of business since Friday, and creditors who called at his house were told that he was not at home.

Out of Town.

BOSTON—Schedules of John N. Hughes, Malden, and Alexander L. Hughes, Lynn, of the firm of Hughes Brothers, dealers, Boston and Lynn, were filed to-day. Liabilities amount to $28,179 and assets $9,416.

Bankruptcy Petition Dismissed.

Judge Hough has dismissed a petition in bankruptcy filed on May 4 against Levy & Sideman, manufacturers of shirt waists at 329 West Houston Street, on application of Charles H. Brosa, who said that they made a settlement at 40 cents on the collar.

Discharged from Bankruptcy.

Judge Hough has granted a discharge from bankruptcy to B. F. Bramson and Isaac Raphael, who were partners in the firm of Salwen, Bramson & Raphael, cloak manufacturers at 185

REFEREES' NOTICES.

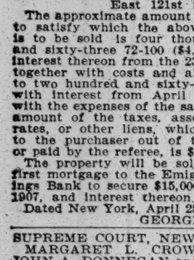
SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York.—CHARLES A. STEIN, Plaintiff, against CORNELIA HAWES et al., Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action, bearing date the 27th day of April, 1908, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 21st day of May, 1908, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that lot or parcel of land in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, with the buildings and improvements thereon, described as follows: Beginning at the corner formed by the intersection of the northerly line of One Hundred and Twenty-first Street with the westerly line of Park Avenue, and running thence northerly along the westerly side of Park Avenue one hundred feet and eleven inches; thence running westerly and parallel with One Hundred and Twenty-first Street twenty feet; thence running southerly parallel with Park Avenue, and part of the way through the centre of a party wall, one hundred feet and eleven inches to the northerly line of One Hundred and Twenty-first Street; thence running easterly along the northerly side of One Hundred and Twenty-first Street twenty feet, to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, April 28, 1908.
GEORGE PARR, Referee.
ALBERT I. SIRE, Attorney for Plaintiff, 99 Nassau St., Manhattan, N. Y. City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold as described above, the street number being 79 East 121st Street:



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold is four thousand three hundred and sixty-three 72-100 ($4,363.72) dollars, with interest thereon from the 23d day of April, 1908, together with costs and allowances amounting to two hundred and sixty-seven 93-100 dollars, with interest from April 27th, 1908, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the referee, is $325.99 and interest.

The property will be sold subject to a prior first mortgage to the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank to secure $15,000, dated January 24, 1907, and interest thereon.

Dated New York, April 28, 1908.
GEORGE PARR, Referee.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Auction Buyers Take 269 Hunt's Point Lots for a Total of $381,000—Oakdale, L. I., Acreage Sold—Deal for Grand Street Factories.

After selling 269 of the Hunt's Point Realty Company's lots in the Vesey Street Salesroom yesterday for a total of $381,275, Auctioneer Joseph P. Day announced at 6:30 P. M. that the remaining 100 lots would be withdrawn and disposed of at private sale. There was still a good-sized crowd in front of the auctioneer's stand, but a seven-hour auction room session is calculated to wear heavily on the patience and enthusiasm of any crowd, and as there was no possibility of finishing the sale within a reasonable time, the withdrawal was decided upon.

The sale as a whole was another remarkable demonstration of the interest of the general public, that is, the small investor and the non-professional speculator in the real estate market. Many savings bank books were given in lieu of cash deposits, and out of the entire list of buyers there were few, with the exception of the George F. Johnson's Sons Company and James F. Meehan, whose names are familiar among real estate traders.

The crowd was not the largest that ever attended a real estate auction—suffice it to say that it filled the salesroom to the doors, and that is all that any of the many "largest crowds" has ever been able to do.

Martin Pletscher, the first buyer, started things off with a rush. The lot on the east side of Bryant Street, 100 feet south of Garrison Avenue, was knocked down to him at $1,050, and Mr. Day offered him the privilege of taking one, two, or three more at the same price.

"Give me ten of 'em," shouted Mr. Pletscher over the heads of the crowd.

He got the ten and his judgment proved correct, as adjoining lots, not quite so well situated, were sold immediately afterward at a higher price.

The "cream" of the offering was not reached until late in the afternoon. The southeast corner of Hunt's Point and Garrison Avenues, a plot of about six lots, brought $33,800. Two Hunt's Point Avenue corners, at Seneca Avenue, were sold for $5,700 and $4,750, respectively, the higher price being paid for a lot 123 feet deep. Bids for other lots on Hunt's Point Avenue averaged $4,100.

The southwest corner of Garrison Avenue and Irvine Street, 28 by 129, brought $3,175, and the adjoining lot on Garrison Avenue $2,650. For the southwest corner of Seneca Avenue and Faile Street the successful bid was $2,525. For adjoining lots on Seneca Avenue $1,650 each was paid, and for those on Faile Street $1,550 each.

At Bryant Street and Garrison Avenue, northeast corner, a plot, 39 by 93, was struck down for $4,000, adjoining Garrison Avenue lots bringing $1,200 each.

The lot at the southwest corner of Garrison Avenue and Bryant Street was sold for $2,525. The northwest corner of Garrison Avenue and Longfellow Street brought $2,325. Inside lots on the west side of Garrison Avenue, between Longfellow and Bryant Streets, sold for $1,300 each. The southeast corner of Seneca Avenue and Bryant Street brought $1,700 while the northeast corner of Seneca Avenue and Longfellow Street sold for $1,625. Inside lots on the east side of Seneca Avenue, between Longfellow and Bryant Streets, brought from $950 to $1,075. On the north side of Longfellow Street, between Seneca and Garrison Avenues, prices ranged from $800 to $925, while abutting lots on Bryant Street brought from $975 to $1,100 each.

The block bounded by Garrison and Seneca Avenues and Whittier and Longfellow Streets, fifty-four lots, brought a total of $42,550. The corners on Garrison Avenue, at Longfellow and Whittier Streets, sold for $2,250 and $1,600, respectively. Inside lots on Garrison Avenue ranged in price from $1,125 to $1,325.

For nineteen lots on Longfellow Street Charles F. Pfizenmayer paid $750 each, and was immediately asked to take a profit of $50 a lot. The two easterly corners in Seneca Avenue, at Whittier and Longfellow Streets, brought $975 and $1,100.

Among the buyers were the Economy Real Property Company, R. J. Paterson, M. P. Michael, Henry Dreyer, T. A. Haggerty, Benjamin Sellers, Peter J. O'Hara, Charles O. Waller, Myer Kriger, M. J. McGrath, George O. Boldtmann, C. S. Baker, and C. W. Muller.

Mr. Day's next sale of Bronx property will be held next Tuesday, and will include about 700 lots in Lohbauer Park, adjoining the Country Club on Eastern Boulevard. On May 26 Mr. Day will sell the Trask estate property on Clason's Point Avenue.

Demand for Oakdale Property.

Bryan L. Kennelly conducted yesterday a successful auction sale of acreage property at Oakdale, L. I., owned by W. K. Aston. The sale, which took place in the Vesey Street salesroom, was well attended, and the sixty-three plots were disposed of in about two hours of selling.

The property, much of which is heavily wooded, lies north of the Long Island Railroad and Montauk Boulevard, between the game preserves of the South Side Sportsmen's Club and the holdings of F. G. Bourne, Oakdale Boulevard, Bayview Road, Waterford Road, and Oakwood Road intersect the tract. The offering was made in plots of from three and one-half to seven acres, and the prices ranged from $950 an acre for a plot of a little over two acres, with dwelling, opposite the railroad station, down to $110 an acre for some of the less desirable land on the northerly and easterly borders of the property. The total amount realized was $53,146.

Among the more important purchases was that of a plot of five acres on Bayview Road by M. P. Walsh. Mr. Walsh has engaged recently in several successful operations in Brooklyn and the Bronx, and will, it is understood, erect a handsome villa on the Oakdale site.

New Owner for Cracker Factory.

Moses S. Shill has bought, through Bernard H. Sandler, as attorney, the property 494 to 498 Grand Street, two six-story factory buildings, on plot 50 by 100. The seller is the S. B. Clark Corporation, cracker manufacturers, and the deal covers all of the machinery now on the premises. It is understood that Mr. Shill will operate the plant.

West 27th Street Purchase.

Andrew F. Gilsey and the Investors and Traders' Realty Company have bought the property 20 West Twenty-seventh Street, a five-story business building, on lot 25 by 98.9. It abuts on the offices of the Astor estate, in Twenty-sixth Street, and adjoins the new twelve-story building being erected by James Livingston at 18 West Twenty-seventh Street. I. T. Meyer and J. N. Kalley & Son were the brokers in the deal.

Matthew Rook has leased the eleven-story building recently erected for him at 13 and 15 West Twenty-seventh Street for twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $567,000. The lessee will use the store and basement and sublet the upper floors.

Sale of 83d Street Residence.

Charles Gulden and Andrew Smith have sold 127 and 129 East Eighty-third Street, a vacant plot, 51 by 102.2.

Joseph H. Hoadley is the buyer of 18 East Eighty-second Street, recently reported sold.

New Site for Iron Works.

Henry Brady has leased for P. G. Tighe to the Christie Iron Works the vacant plot 50 by 100 on the east side of Eleventh Avenue, north of Twenty-second Street, for a term of seventeen years. The plot will be improved with a reinforced concrete building.

Bernard Smyth & Sons negotiated the sale of the plot 75 by 100 on the north side of 113th Street, 150 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue for Osk & Edelstein to Sonn Brothers.

F. E. Mainhart has moved to his new offices in the Hamilton Bank Building, 217 West 125th Street.

To Improve Eighth Avenue Corner.

Plans have been filed for the four-story department store to be built at the southwest corner of Eighth Avenue and Forty-third Street for McPartland & O'Flaherty. The new building will front 75 feet on the avenue and 100 feet on the street, and will be of brick ornamented with cement stucco. It will cost $40,000, according to the estimate of Architect C. A. Jackson.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for Philip Braender 45,000 square feet of space in the new eleven-story mercantile building 26 to 32 West Seventeenth Street; also for the Middleboro Realty Company to Louis Scher the store and basement at 34 West Seventeenth Street.

East 110th Street Tenement Sold.

E. B. Schiller, represented by Joseph Carlisle Kadane, has sold to Pincus Rosenheim 336 East 110th Street, a six-story tenement, 25 by 100.

The Harlem Property Owners' Association will meet to-morrow evening in the Twelfth Ward Bank Building, 147 East 125th Street.

There will be a meeting of the Dyckman Taxpayers' Association this evening at the office of John N. Golding, 547 Fifth Avenue.

Philip Steinman has moved his office to the Bennett Building, 99 Nassau Street.

Company Sells Brooklyn Lots.

The Innovation Realty Company has sold a plot of about sixty lots on Johnson and Stewart Avenues, Brooklyn. The buyer is a construction company, which is planning to build on the property a row of three-story brick tenements. L. B. Wakeman was the broker in the transaction.

Hearing on Creedmoor Bill.

In response to a request presented to the Queens Borough Real Estate Exchange, through its Legislative Committee, of which D. Maujer McLaughlin is Chairman, Gov. Hughes has sent word that he will give a hearing to-morrow at 3:15 P. M. on the bill providing for the establishment of the Long Island State Hospital on the former military reservation at Creedmoor. The members of the Legislative Committee of the exchange, accompanied by delegations from other organizations, will attend the hearing.

Lots Sold on Staten Island.

Cornelius G. Kolff has sold for J. S. Graham a block of thirty-six lots on Barrett Avenue and Fingerboard Road, Arrochar, S. I., to R. Aberle.

Newport Lease to P. J. Rainey.

De Blois & Eldridge have leased for A. M. Coates his Newport villa, on Brenton Road, to Paul J. Rainey.

SURROGATE NOTICES.

HOMAN, SARAH BOURNE.—The People of the State of New York, by the grace of God free and independent, to ALICE NELSON and ERNEST WAKEFIELD, the heirs and next of kin of SARAH BOURNE HOMAN, deceased, send greeting:

Whereas Russell Homan of Lake Cushman, Mason County, Washington, has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York to have a certain instrument in writing, dated the 13th day of July, 1884, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved as the last will and testament of Sarah Bourne Homan, late of the County of New York, deceased, therefore you and each of you are cited to appear before the Surrogate of our County of New York, at his office in the County of New York, on the 8th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eight, at half-past ten o'clock in the forenoon of that day, then and there to attend the probate of the said last will and testament.

And such of you as are hereby cited as are under the age of twenty-one years are required to appear by your guardian, if you have one, or if you have none to appear and apply for one to be appointed, or in the event of your neglect or failure to do so, a guardian will be appointed by the Surrogate to represent and act for you in the proceeding.

In testimony whereof we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed. Witness, Hon. Charles H. Beckett, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said county, the 9th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight.

[L. S.] DANIEL J. DOWDNEY, Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

SAY NOTE SWINDLERS HAD MANY VICTIMS

Complaints Continue to Pour Into the District Attorney's Office.

A $250,000 PLOT ALL READY

Detectives Convinced Now That the Daring Operators Were Working All Over the Country.

Developments of the last twenty-four hours have convinced Assistant District Attorney Kindleberger and Detective Lieutenants McConville and Nelson that the gang of note swindlers now under investigation by the District Attorney have operated all over the country with ramifications which have hitherto not been suspected. Complaints literally poured into the District Attorney's office yesterday, and before night new warrants had been issued for John Gundlach and Regulus Shippy for the larceny of notes on false representations.

Last night it became known that Charles H. Gardiner, the fugitive ex-convict, who is believed to be the head of the gang, had been traced to Chicago and his arrest is expected at any time. One or two other arrests are probable.

The most important quarry bagged thus far is believed to be Charles Barry, or Bary, the former Chicago lawyer. He has not got through being indignant over his arrest and a preliminary hearing he had in the Tombs Court before Magistrate Moss yesterday afternoon. He still insists in spite of his unkempt appearance that he owns coal lands in West Virginia worth upward of $1,000,000, and has filed with Mr. Kindleberger a description of this property. The only thing that Barry lacks in making this story realistic is the deed of the property, which he thinks he must have lost.

A $250,000 Note Deal.

At the time of Barry's arrest, according to the statement he made to Mr. Kindleberger, he was in negotiation with the British-American Manufacturing Company of 72 and 74 Broadway to place $250,000 of that concern's notes on a 5½ per cent. basis. Papers found on Barry after his arrest confirm his statement of these negotiations and bring out the fact that the deal was to have been closed a week from yesterday, but was extended a day, under a supplemental arrangement.

Letters addressed to Barry by the British-American Company, and signed by William R. Sheldon, its Secretary, express great pleasure at the conclusion of the deal. The British-American Company operates, according to its letterhead, the Corliss Engine Works at Providence, the American Ordnance Company at Bridgeport, and the Green-Wheelock Engine Works at Worcester, Mass.

While Mr. Kindleberger was examining some of the new facts that had come to his attention yesterday, a lawyer named Soloman Oppenheimer of 320 Broadway walked into his office with a new tale of note transactions. He said he was counsel for Rudolph A. Breidenbach, a diamond merchant, of 51 and 53 Maiden Lane, who between Sept. 17, 1907, and Jan. 20, 1908, delivered to Maurice C. Dreshfield, a diamond dealer, of 170 Broadway, and to George H. Carpenter, President of a corporation known as the Monarch Company of Bridgeport, Conn., $182,000 worth of diamonds, and accepted in payment a series of notes which were of a disappointing character.

Breidenbach started bankruptcy proceedings against Dreshfield and Carpenter, and at hearings before Peter B. Olney, as referee, it came out in Dreshfield's testimony that Carpenter was introduced to him for the purpose of the transaction by one Charles Barry, a lawyer, whose description tallies with that of the prisoner in the Tombs.

Among the notes delivered to Breitenbach by Dreshfield and Carpenter were $35,000 issued by the Norwalk Steel and Iron Company and by the William Kavanaugh Company of Norwalk, Conn., both of which concerns are now in the hands of receivers under defaults on great volumes of notes issued.

Other Note Transactions.

The new complaint against Shippy is made by Henry M. Klink, formerly President of the Delhi Silk Company of 487 Broome Street. This concern, like various others that have had deals with the note brokerage gang, has gone into the hands of a receiver. The transaction described by Klink amounted to $3,000 in notes which Shippy is said to have obtained subject to a 10 per cent. discount, by representing that he was interested in a laundry business and a brick yard and could use them in his business. After issuing the notes to Shippy, Klink says he got back neither notes nor money, and, therefore, charges larceny. For references with Klink, Shippy gave the Bowery Y. M. C. A., and Klink found that he got his mail there and took part in the religious meetings of the organization.

The complainant against Gundlach on the new charge is Samuel A. Stein, who says that on May 27, 1907, Gundlach put in his hands two of the notes of the Sherman Cutlery Company of Keyport, N. J., under an agreement that he should discount them and pay one-half of the proceeds to Gundlach, who agreed to be responsible for the repayment of his half at maturity. Stein paid Gundlach $96 in different amounts on account of these notes, and then found that for some time before the last payment the Sherman firm had not only repudiated the notes but had gone into the hands of a receiver.

A Strange-Looking Party.

At the hearing before Magistrate Moss in the Tombs Court, evidence was taken on the charges made by President Sherman and Treasurer Hull of the Sherman Cutlery Company against Gundlach and Barry, and Shippy was brought in for arraignment on the new charge against him.

It was a strange-looking group that lined up on the bridge before the Magistrate. Shippy had the appearance of an habitué of a Bowery lodging house. His shoes were out at the toes and run over at the heels, his trousers frayed at the bottom, and the coat he wore had passed through many storms. Unshaven and unclean, he was the most remarkable-looking "note broker" that has been in the Criminal Court Building for a long time, saving only the negro janitor of 72 Trinity Place, Robert Connell, on whom the State has relied for some needed testimony. Connell was in court yesterday in his blue jumper and overalls. His testimony was not as frank as his talk had been to Mr. Kindleberger, and was something of a disappointment to the prosecutors.

The evidence taken against Gundlach and Barry was that contained in the statements of the officers of the Sherman Cutlery Company. Hull said under cross-examination that Barry told him he (Barry) was worth $10,000,000, and was the owner of much valuable coal land in West Virginia. The hearing was continued until next Thursday to enable the Assistant District Attorney to produce documents that are in Keyport.

In an affidavit made to Mr. Kindlebeger prior to his arrest Barry said he was a graduate of the University of Chicago, Northwestern University, and the Illinois Union College of Law. He said he was admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1885, and was associated in practice with Peter J. Somers, ex-Mayor of Milwaukee, John Mayo Palmer, son of Gen. John M. Palmer, the Gold Democratic candidate for President in 1896; E. F. Bogard, former Assistant Corporation Counsel of Chicago, and the late Abner McKinley. Barry said he first met Gundlach about five years ago and had always found him "honest and prompt."

ROBT. C. OGDEN GOING ABROAD

Says, Before Sailing, That Taft Is the Logical Republican Candidate.

Robert C. Ogden sails for Europe this morning on the Teutonic for Nauheim, where he has been ordered by his physician for rest and treatment. Mr. Ogden has been occupied in the work of the Taft organization of this State, of which he is President. While retaining his office he will be relieved of all active duties and simply serve in an advisory capacity.

Mr. Ogden paid a farewell visit to Chairman Louis C. Hay at the headquarters of the organization at 170 Broadway yesterday.

"With the utmost loyalty to one or two other excellent men whose names are mentioned for the nomination, Mr. Taft is certainly the logical candidate," said Mr. Ogden. "Mr. Choate has, in his admirable letter to the Taft organization of the State of New York made this fact perfectly plain.

"It is not our purpose to assume any functions of the regular party organization, but only in a dignified and respectful way to inform the National Convention that there is a very large and influential body of Taft opinion in New York State. Of course, when the will of the convention is made known we will bow to its mandates and work for the candidates, whoever they may be.

NEW PENNSYLVANIA BONDS.

Inquiry Here for the Portion Issued in London.

The large demand for the Pennsylvania Railroad consolidated mortgage bonds recently placed here and abroad has led, it was said in bond circles yesterday, to inquiries here for blocks of the bonds of this issue which were put out in the London market. The half of the issue which was sold abroad was issued in the form of sterling bonds, and those placed here in the form of dollar bonds, the two classes of bonds not being interchangeable.

It has been expected that there would be more or less trading here in the sterling bonds, which have been quoted at a premium of about 3 per cent. over the issue price, while the bonds of the New York issue have been quoted at a premium of 5 per cent.

BOSTON BROKERS FAIL.

Firm Which Traded on Curb Owes About $60,000.

BOSTON, May 12.—Nickerson, Simmons & Buss, stock brokers, assigned to-day for the benefit of their creditors. The firm has been engaged in business about three years as members of the New York Consolidated Exchange, and also with a representative on the local Curb. It has no representative on the Boston Stock Exchange, but transacted business through another house. The firm is composed of H. C. Nickerson, O. Simmons, and W. E. Buss.

The assignment was made to John M. Kendricken, a State Street lawyer. It was reported that the liabilities would amount to about $60,000, and that the assets would be somewhat less.

Erie Railroad Officials Shifted.

M. W. De Wolf, General Eastern Freight Agent of the Erie Railroad, it was announced yesterday, will become a special agent of the company on May 18, with offices at 50 Church Street. He will be succeeded by H. S. Stebbins, manager of the Erie Despatch Fast Freight Line, who will in turn be succeeded by W. R. Crew, Foreign Freight Agent. Mr. Crew's place will be taken by T. J. Skidmore, agent of the Erie Despatch in St. Louis.

SCHOOLBOYS ON FARMS IN VACATION MONTHS

Volunteers Can Earn Pocket Money, Get Outdoor Training, and Help the Farmers.

2,500 HAVE ALREADY APPLIED

One Boy's Routine from 5:15 A. M. to 6 P. M., Which Pleased Him—Chances for Girls in Hotels.

Bulletins from the State Agricultural Commission were distributed in the city High Schools yesterday calling for volunteers among both boys and girls to spend the Summer in the country, the boys to pick up apples, dig potatoes, and do a lot of other things, and the girls to be clerks, stenographers, and furnish other light help about the Summer resort hotels. Prof. E. W. Weaver of 25 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, will arrange to find board, transportation, and pay for them.

This movement, though just begun in real earnest, has met with what its promoters regard as remarkable success. Two thousand five hundred High School boys of New York have already applied to Mr. Weaver for the coming vacation, and the places are not half filled.

Prof. Weaver of the Boys' High School, Brooklyn, is the originator of the plan, which means help for the boys who cannot get work in the city, and help for the farmers who cannot get labor in the country.

"A few Summers ago," says Prof. Weaver, "while tramping through Dutchess County I saw hundreds of bushels of early apples of good quality going to waste, while at the same time fruit was sold from the retail stands in New York City, only sixty miles away, at almost prohibitive prices. The farmer in the busy season could not afford to use his regular hired help to prepare properly for the market these by-products of his farm, and occasional help was hard to obtain in country communities. At the same season I knew that there were thousands of able-bodied, intelligent young people out of school for the Summer months seeking work of any kind in the cities to earn a little something toward their own support while being educated in the High Schools and colleges of the State."

Here is what a boy did one day who went to the country last Summer from the Boys' High School of Brooklyn, as related by himself:

I got up at 5:15 o'clock. I watered the poultry, brought the kindlings, and sprinkled the flowers before breakfast. In the forenoon I drove the horses attached to the horserake, drew in a load of fodder, and unloaded two loads of hay. After dinner I picked raspberries and currants, pulled beans and worked in the vegetable garden. I usually finished up my work about 6 o'clock. My appetite was something enormous and our table was abundantly supplied with good food.

The farmers who got boys last year when the thing was tried as an experiment were as much pleased as the boys.

Of the thirty-two boys of the Boys' High School, Brooklyn, who went to the country last Summer Prof. Weaver says all but one remained from the last week of June to the middle of September at the places to which they had been sent. One of the boys brought back $70 in cash.

This is the committee in charge of the work:

E. W. Weaver, 25 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn; E. S. Augsbury, 345 East Fifteenth Street, Manhattan; Philip Dowell, Hamilton Avenue, New Brighton, S. I.; Henry N. Dickinson, 195 Kingston Avenue, Brooklyn; Benjamin C. Gruenberg, 49 West Eighty-eighth Street, Manhattan; George K. Hinds, 180 Broadway, Manhattan; Miss Jennie M. Jenness, 607 Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn; George W. Norton, Wilbur and Academy Avenues, Long Island City; A. L. Pugh, 155 West Sixty-fifth Street, Manhattan; Miss Henrietta Rodman, 114th Street, near Seventh Avenue, Manhattan; Miss Lydia F. Root, High School, Jamaica; Henry B. Slater, Newton, L. I.; Hobart H. Todd, Bergen Street and Albany Avenue, Brooklyn; John L. Tildsley, 155 West Sixty-fifth Street, Manhattan; E. M. Williams, 166th Street and Boston Road, Bronx; James P. Warren, 596 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn.

Under the direction of the Teachers' Committee it is expected thousands of boys will go out on the farms.

IDLE CAR EQUIPMENT.

The Pennsylvania Company's Report Notes a Big Change from Last Year.

The Pennsylvania Company, which operates a number of the Pennsylvania Railroad lines west of Pittsburg, and controls by stock ownership the other Western lines of the system, made public yesterday its report for 1907. All the lines reported increases in both gross and net earnings, those directly operated by the Pennsylvania Company showing an increase of $5,300,626 in gross and $1,254,125 in net. The report, however, calls attention to the rapid falling off in business during recent months, and states that much of the company's equipment is now idle.

There was a reduction during the year of $33,657,562 in the securities held by the Pennsylvania Company. This is explained by the payment during the year of the $36,000,000 Oregon Short Line notes held by the Pennsylvania Company and by a number of minor changes in the company's securities holdings.

Kansas City Southern Meeting.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Kansas City Southern, held in Kansas City yesterday, the retiring Directors were re-elected, with the exception of Y. Van den Berg, who was succeeded by W. G. Street. President Edson's report showed net earnings for nine months ended March 31 were $2,186,074. The net earnings for the balance of the year were estimated at $622,488, indicating a balance available for dividends of $1,583,509. There was expended in improvements during the nine months a total of $1,217,925.

American Beet Sugar Co. Report.

The annual report of the American Beet Sugar Company for the year ended March 31 shows gross earnings of $5,749,595, a falling off of $203,806 from the previous year. The balance for dividends was $912,362, a gain of $520,880. The surplus for the year was $638,312, an increase of $486,830.

COMMODITY PRICES LOWER.

The Lowest Level Reached in Three Years Touched on May 1.

The prices of staples indicated in Bradstreet's index number of commodity prices have made a further decline during last month. The index number on May 1 shows the lowest level of values here and abroad touched in the last three years. At $7.9629 the number represents a decline of 1.2 per cent. from the April level, and of 2.7 per cent. from the high level of the upward movement of prices which was touched on March 1, 1907.

The number at the first of this month is the lowest recorded since July 1, 1905. Commenting on the downward movement of the prices of commodities, Bradstreet's says:

"In connection with this movement in this country it is worth noting that the London Economist's price index number on May 1 showed a decline of 3 per cent. from April 1, of 15.6 per cent. from the high point touched on June 1, 1907, and is the lowest number reported since Aug. 1, 1905. This practical agreement of price index movements in two widely separated markets may fairly be regarded as good examples of the movement toward reducing costs in progress in the leading commercial and manufacturing countries of the world.

"Nine out of thirteen groups of staples moved lower during April, these including breadstuffs, live stock, provisions, fruits, hides and leather, textiles, naval stores, building materials, and chemicals. Three groups—metals, oils, and miscellaneous products—moved higher, while one—coal and coke—remained unchanged. In all, forty-one products decreased, while twenty-eight increased and forty-one remained unchanged."

SINGER COMPANY IN CONTROL.

Safe Deposit Company of New York to Have Vaults in Singer Building.

The passing of the control of the Safe Deposit Company of New York to interests identified with the Singer Manufacturing Company was made known yesterday through the election of an entirely new Board of Directors comprised of Singer representatives. At the same time the board was reduced from thirteen to seven. As now constituted it consists of Douglas Alexander, President of the Singer Sewing Machine Company; F. G. Bourne, a Director in the Singer Company; E. H. Bennett, Vice President of the Singer Company; G. C. Clarke, Charles P. Coleman, Secretary of the Singer Company; E. D. Cummings, and O. R. Graham. The directors will meet next week for the election of officers.

The Safe Deposit Company of New York is the oldest corporation in the country organized to rent safe deposit vaults. Its vaults in the basement of 140 Broadway were the first burglar-proof vaults built of laminated steel, that is of alternate layers of hard and tough material which would resist both drills and blows. When the company was organized in the 60's, the burglar-proof vault was a novelty.

Following the passing of control to the Singer interests the company has planned to move to the basement of the new Singer Building, where its vaults will occupy 10,000 square feet of space. Vaults have been ordered for the new premises, which will be ready about Nov. 1.

LOAN FOR SOUTHERN RAILWAY

Details of Contemplated Note Issue May Be Announced To-morrow.

The Southern Railway has in contemplation another note issue intended to meet the road's requirements for some time. A representative of banking interests closely identified with the Southern Railway, said yesterday that no official statement could be made probably until to-morrow, by which time, it is expected, the arrangements will have been completed.

It was not denied yesterday, however, that the financing would take the form of a note issue. It was surmised that the notes will be secured by bonds in the Southern Railway treasury, probably including development and general mortgage bonds.

$50,000,000 D. & H. BONDS.

$20,000,000 to be Put Out When Public Service Board Approves.

The stockholders of the Delaware & Hudson Company authorized yesterday the issue of $50,000,000 4 per cent. refunding mortgage bonds, of which $20,000,000 are expected to be issued in the near future. There was an unusually large attendance of stockholders.

Application will now be made to the Public Service Commission to issue $20,000,000 of the bonds. Until this permission is had no arrangements will be completed for the bond sale.

The Public Service Commission for the Second District has approved the application for permission to merge the New York & Canada Railway with the Delaware & Hudson Company. The merger will effect substantial savings in the cost of managing this part of the Delaware & Hudson line.

Big Order for Structural Steel.

A large order for structural steel was announced yesterday as having been placed with the United States Steel Corporation. The order calls for 10,000 tons, part of which is to go into the new La Salle Hotel, in Chicago, and part into another new building not yet named, both to be built by the United States Realty and Improvement Company.

M'DONALD AGAINST NEW SUBWAY PLANS

Builder of the Old Route Declares Proposed Lines Won't Pay Expenses.

WANTS EAST SIDE EXTENSION

Line Should Also Be Run on the West Side, He Declares, to Connect with Pennsylvania Terminal.

Controller Metz gave out yesterday a formal statement from John B. McDonald, the builder of the original Subway, giving in detail his criticism for the plans for future subways.

Mr. McDonald declares that, for the best results, the Broadway-Lexington Avenue line in Manhattan and the Bronx, and the Fourth Avenue line in Brooklyn, should be modified. He declares that the former would cost for construction, equipment, and easements over $127,000,000, and the latter $44,000,000.

These are the lines Mr. McDonald would like to see built.

In order to complete east and west side lines, extensions to the present Subway should be made.

For the east side extensions should be made from Forty-second Street, via Lexington Avenue, Southern Boulevard, Westchester Avenue, to Pelham Bay Park. This will give a through line from Pelham Bay Park to the Battery, with increased facilities at the Grand Central Station.

For the west side extension should be made from Broadway and Forty-fifth Street south through Seventh Avenue, Greenwich Street, West Broadway, to a terminal under Battery Park. This would complete a west side line from the Bronx to Battery Park. This extension is of the greatest importance to the business interests of the city, especially in connection with the Pennsylvania Terminal, which is approaching completion. It is unequalled by anything of its kind in the world, and will handle more than 200,000 persons a day, for whom transportation facilities must be provided in the very near future.

Another important feature of this extension is the construction of a short line through Canal Street, connecting with the Brooklyn-Manhattan loop now being built by the city, which will give a direct line to the new Pennsylvania station for people of Brooklyn.

Furthermore, immediate relief would be provided the people of the east side and the Bronx by adding for express service two tracks on the Second Avenue elevated road and by the extension of the west side elevated lines via Jerome Avenue.

Mr. McDonald criticises the present proposed Fourth Avenue route in Brooklyn. He says it should be a two-track, not a four-track, line.

By this modification the city would save enough to build another two-track road in Bedford and Lafayette Avenues to Williamsburg Bridge, connecting with the Delancey and Centre Street Subway in Manhattan, which is now under construction. In this way, thinks Mr. McDonald, the congestion on the Brooklyn Bridge could be relieved quickly and once for all.

HARD TO GET AT McINTYRE.

Doctors Refuse to Permit Service of Subpoena and Court's Aid Is Sought.

As a result of the refusal of the doctors in charge of Miss Ainslie's sanitarium, where T. A. McIntyre is recuperating, to permit the service of a subpoena on the failed broker, Irving L. Ernst, counsel for the receivers of T. A. McIntyre & Co., will apply to the courts to-day for an order for the appointment of a medical commission to report on his condition, and for an examination of the doctors in whose care he is.

When Attorney Ernst and Receiver Burlingham informally examined Mr. McIntyre at his bedside last week neither was impressed with the seriousness of his condition, and it was expected that he would be well enough to appear before Commissioner Gilchrist yesterday. The subpoena sent to the sanitarium yesterday was for his appearance to-day.

TOWER DENOUNCES WEIS SUIT

Iron Maker Denies Alienating Affections of Plaintiff's Wife.

Ex-Assistant District Attorney Charles Le Barbier of 31 Nassau Street, counsel for Albert Edward Tower, the Poughkeepsie iron manufacturer, whose wife is suing him for a separation, denounced yesterday the suit instituted by Louis M. Weis against Mr. Tower for $100,000 damages for alienation of his wife's affections.

Mrs. Tower in her suit alleged that her husband had given Mrs. Weis many presents, and had traveled on their yacht. Mrs. Weis subsequently brought suit for divorce against her husband.

Mr. Weis alleges in his complaint that Tower not only took his wife away from him, but that he had Mrs. Weis bring the divorce proceedings against him. Mr. Tower's answer is a denial.

Tower's first wife committed suicide, and killed their son in 1902. A few months later he married May Bogardus, a telephone girl. Last Winter Mrs. Tower brought suit for separation against her husband.
